Through some fortunate accident in some distant century some old Chinaman, I think it was, discovered a peculiar process of glazing, which up to date has not been equalled; but when we of to-day equal it, we shall do it scientifically and shall record our discovery so that it may not again be lost.

To Hold Them.

Some ancient savages in Rome or vicinity, as indicated, I think, by remains in Pompeii, knew how to temper copper to the hardness and toughness of our steel. It is too bad they mislaid the recipe, for it would come handy right now; but we have copper wire today which withstands much greater tensile strain than anything we had twenty years ago—and we are keeping right at it. We shall get it and we shall record it, which will prove that we are not savages; and think of the many other things we are doing at the same time. Never permit yourself to think that "the good old times" had any special advantages which we do not have—why, even our grocery stores are better! Some few things the ancients had—by accident—of which we have not yet regained possession; but when we get them we shall keep them—thus beating the ancients by several laps.

The Hybrid Error.

The Baldwin locomotive incident was brought in as a grotesque illustration of the futility of imagining that sauce for the goose can be indiscriminately fed to all ganders. Two and two make four, but two yeast cakes, plus two yeast cakes will hardly make four locomotives, nor will they answer the purpose for which the four locomotives were built. It was precisely because Baldwin's method of computing his profit on his cost would not do for us that I told the story.

The "hybrid method" to which Mr. Jamieson refers is right. It is hybrid. But the point is that, in computing margins on cost we are all liable to fall into the hybrid error; whereas we are absolutely certain not to make that mistake if we once achieve the habit of figuring from the Selling End.

Discussing Margins.

I said cost accounting did not enter into this discussion, and it properly does not. This is not to deny the fundamental importance of the most hair-splitting accuracy in cost accounting; for nothing is possible in business without the most analytical knowledge of costs. Those who have read my stuff for the past ten years well know that this is one of my most regularly-ridden hobbies. But we were not discussing costs, not cost accounting. We were discussing the proper method for computing margins and profits after cost was ascertained. I do not think my friend and I shall have any disagreement about cost accounting; and I feel sure he can teach us a lot of value in that connection—and I shall be a willing pupil. But we must not mix our subjects too much or we shall get nowhere.

The Law and the "Profits."

But knowledge is at best only a rickety stepping stone. Anybody can crowd a thousand facts into his brain. But the USE of knowledge is the "law and the profits." Thus, the most valuable service any of us can render to a fellow traveler is that we somehow give him a suggestion on which he will THINK. Now, there is a degree of abstraction about computing on the selling end; the confining ALL our calculations to the limits of 100 that is eminently wholesome. No man can put this thought into practice without becoming mentally broader than he was before. You will find that a man who has once grasped this idea hesitates just a fraction of a second before he answers an off-hand question; and when he answers, his words are delibertate and his eye is thoughtful. He has learned that figures can lie in a shameless fashion; and he is aware thereof. He has discovered that "things are not always what they seem;" he looks carefully before he feels that he knows. Thus the habit of computing margins this way tends to make better merchants.

Deceptive Figuring.

See the salesman enter your store and offer you, say, some flake washing powder thusly: 5 cases at $4 per case, delivered, and 1 case free. There are 24 packages in the case and the retail price is 20c a package; it is staple; you are selling it all the time; so you know just what you can do with it. The quantity is, however, rather excessive, so he proceeds to "show you" the big margin there is in it for you. He figures it this way:

5 cases at $4, come to	$20.00
Less 1 case free which you sell for	4.80
Making the 5 cases cost you	15.20

According to the salesman, this "stands you" a cost of $3.04, and you sell it for $4.80, showing a gain of $1.76 per case, or just less than 58 p.c. Decidedly you cannot pass that kind of an offer.

The Other Method.

But we, who are accustomed to figure on the selling end, look at things just a little differently. We divide the $20 by 6, getting a cost of $3.33 plus, per case, which we sell at $4.80 per case, showing a gross margin of $1.47, which, being divided not by $3.33, but by $4.80, shows us the very satisfactory marginal percentage of 30. Why is not this better in every way, on any basis of doing business, from any standpoint, than to divide by $3.33 and show an apparent margin of 44 p.c.

What we are after is to intrench ourselves in safety as a primary consideration. In this case, 30 p.c. is safe, absolutely reliable; 44 p.c. is fictitious. Let us eliminate the fictions.

Using Old Principles.

Mr. Jamieson says the modern grocer deals in no new principles, but makes advanced application of old principles. That is right. There is no subversion of mathematical rules in the right way to figure margins and profits. There is, however, a distinctly advanced and improved application.

And yet not so new after all. It is not that usuage and custom have changed much during the past generation or two. Rather is it that grocers have not thoroughly understood this end of their problem and have therefore been taking a dangerous straddle. That greater disaster has not resulted is due to the fact, as I have said before, that this continent was new—like the Newfoundland town from which those brothers recently wrote to me—margins were not closely shaven and therefore, with the "glorious privilege of youth" we have committed indiscretions without having to suffer the consequences.

Let Talk Go On.

But that state is passing away; we must get down to "brass tacks" and know just what we are doing, or it is us for the down-and-out club. So, to be safe, let us take the inside track and figure on the Selling End. Come to think of it, can you see any DANGER in this figuring?

Present, and past, usuage and custom favor this method. All methods pertaining to the retail grocery business are computed on the selling value, save only this one item of margins. It is mere oversight and lack of knowledge that has led to our working from the cost; and why continue, now that we know better?

I agree with Mr. Jamieson that discussion is only beneficial if each keeps on his side of the fence. If you want to know about a thing, argue it from the other side. We learn through attempting to teach. Let the good (talk) go on.

A. Campbell is commencing a grocery business at Vancouver, B.C.

James Hirst, grocer, Nanaimo, B.C., is erecting a new business block.

The branch grocery store at Prince Rupert, of Stalker & Wells, has been destroyed by fire.

Larry Driscoll, of Vancouver, has joined the clerking staff of Ramsay & Philips, Kamloops, B.C.

T. H. Stevens has been appointed manager of the grocery department of Ramsay & Philips, Kamloops, B.C.

PRAISE FROM OSHAWA.

C. H. Crysdale of Crysdale & Son, grocery and fruit dealers, Oshawa, Ont., Justice of Peace for County of Ontario, has been in business for 35 years, and a subscriber to Canadian Grocer for over 20 years—would not be without it for any money.

When he first subscribed for it he thought it would be of little use to him, as he had been in the grocery business for a number of years, and had a good deal of experience, but he found it of utmost value to him.

By acting on the information given in the markets, he says he has saved the subscription price many times over.

It is such a helpful medium that price is no consideration, he says. The store is noted for its good windows, and most of the ideas have been taken from The Grocer.

He finds it helpful to everyone connected with the business, and after careful study of it himself, he passes it along to every clerk in his employ.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

It would almost appear as if the King were unfortunate in having his birthday fall on the third day of June. From all parts of the country come advices carrying the news that the day will not be observed as a holiday by merchants. Branches of the various associations have decided in open meeting that that it would be too much to expect of them to give up their Saturday business.

This is not to be considered as meaning that the retail dealers of Canada are disloyal or even indifferent to his Majesty. King George has no more loyal subjects than the merchants of this country. The whole trouble has been that under the force of circumstances perhaps, too many holidays have been set too closely together and the natal day of the King coming on a Saturday only complicated matters. The dealers would no doubt, be pleased to celebrate some other day. Coronation day falls on a Thursday which is hardly as bad, but there is the first of July within a week.

Still for all that it is likely that when the King's birthday is heralded in a good majority of those who have signified the intention of keeping open shop will close up for at least a portion of the day.

REGULATION IN MONTREAL.

It is reported from Montreal that Mayor Guerin has called the attention of the Board of Health of that city to the fact that foodstuffs are exposed for sale in the streets. His worship is said to have enlarged upon the dangers of the practice and the health authorities are understood to have promised to bring in a by-law so strong that every possible menace will be covered completely. It is also proposed to carry out the provincial measure to the letter. This provides for a fine for each infringement.

It is generally advisable, and especially is this so in big cities, that all foodstuffs be protected from contamination by street dust and possible disease germs. The dealer who unnecessarily exposes his goods in the open street, knowing this, is only helping in his own downfall. This is an age when matters of hygiene are considered as of the utmost importance to every one.

But it is also generally found that municipal councillors take altogether too advanced an idea of the methods by which merchandising can be carried on. These men cannot see that a display stand in the front of a store is necessary to sell some lines of goods where a dealer with limited frontage is concerned.

That is usually the way. The municipal reformer is altogether too radical. To him it is not given to see the middle way. It is not given to him to understand that regulation is the only thing that really does meet the conditions. He must wipe out the whole system, and so he always accomplishes but little.

THE OILING OF ROADS.

In Galt, Ont., where the citizens have decided to use oil on the streets in attempting to allay the dust nuisance, the merchants have been protesting because of its ineffectiveness after a certain test.

It might be well for them to have investigated both the equipment used in spreading the oil and the state of road that was oiled.

Oil, it has been demonstrated elsewhere, is effective in the laying of dust, but the conditions must be perfect, if this happy result is to be obtained. First of all, the sprinkling device must be so constructed that the fluid can be spread evenly, and, secondly, the macadam road should be scraped or swept clean of dust before the sprinkling is done. Otherwise the test will be a failure, and only the surface of the unstable dust will be touched.

There is no doubt that the proper oiling of roads has proved a blessing to those suburbanites who live along the great highways leading into great cities. It can be comparatively as great a blessing in the small town.

TWO MILLION IN TEN YEARS.

There is food for much thought in the announcement from Ottawa that nearly two million immigrants have come seeking new homes in Canada during the last ten years, for it means more than the mere citation of the fact that there are that many more mouths to fill in 1911 than there were in 1901.

That statement is to the new man starting in the little store on the prairies a glimmer of hope that soon in the days to come thousands will be settling down to their life work close beside him. It is to the established dealer the assurance that his sphere of operations will be ever-widening in the future. It is an evidence of the realization on the part of the discontented in all parts of the world, that Canada, of all countries is the land of opportunity.

For the man who will seek it, there is a wealth of optimism in that report of the Department of the Interior. The weak-kneed, doubting merchant will find in its perusal a buoyant faith that will carry him on a long way on the road to achievement. It is indeed hope realized, that this, will be Canada's century.

FOR A UNIFORM CIVIC HOLIDAY.

Nothing but the highly-developed local pride in the chief magistrate of some small community often stands in the path of some great country-wide movement, but it is enough.

Nothing but the individualism of many communities both great and small stands in the way of a uniform Civic Holiday.

During the next few months there will be an epidemic of holidays purely local all over this country. Unlike an epidemic, they will not fall upon the same date. The traveler has not been informed of the chosen time, and, as a consequence, he loses a day when he steps off the train only to find the town in gala attire. Sometimes he strikes one or two Civic holidays in one week, and occasionally there is a weekly half-holiday thrown in.

There is yet plenty of time for the merchants of well-defined districts to get together and prevent this waste by proclaiming the same day as Civic Holiday. The wholesale houses could then be informed so that their drummers would not be wasted for that day.

Surely the merchants of any given place are influential enough to have some little deciding say in this matter of selecting the municipal holiday. If they are not then the only other thing to do is to have the matter taken up at the next meeting of the Union of Municipalities when the mayors and reeves of all localities get together to discuss methods for the betterment of the province and country as a whole.

WHEN AN ADVERTISER SAVED THE LIFE OF A BUSINESS.

A noted publicity expert told a story anent the advertising of a big corporation the other day, that aptly illustrates the view some people take of advertising.

The business was in a bad way, and was steadily becoming deeper and deeper into the mire, when a new man was called in to assume entire control of the management. He delved deep into the affairs of the corporation, and come to the conclusion finally that publicity on a big scale was needed. So he called a meeting of the directors and laid his proposition on the table. It called for the expendtiure of a considerable sum of money and the services of one of the outstanding men of the advertising fraternity. This announcement took the breath of most of the conservative board, but all of them kept their opinions to themselves, save one. He bolted outright and stated his determination to allow of no such outrageous scheme going through as long as he remained upon the directorate.

The manager rose in his place, and looking the "bucking" director squarely in the eye said quietly: "When you got sick last year, Mr. Blank, did you depend for your life upon the plodding physicians of this neighborhood, or did you send to the city for one of the experts to pull you through?"

"Why, I sent for the real doctor, of course, but you can't make that apply here."

"That's just what does apply. This business is deathly sick, and I intend to call in the best business doctor I know of to pull it through."

He had his way, they spent the money, and the corporation was saved.

That is typical of human nature the world over. Talking and theorizing are all right so long as it remains simply talking and theorizing, but just as soon as the money is called for, then the row begins. Usually, it is the better policy to foot the bill when a capable man is spending the money, because his reputation is at stake almost as much as the man who pays, if not quite.

ON WHAT IS DUE TO THEM.

Ever and anon from out the depths of the low-lying regions inhabited by the retail dealers there rises the wailing cry: "Behold the hands of all men are turned against us." And they refuse to be comforted.

And yet, ever and anon a great wonder rises in the mind of the judicious onlooker if sympathy were really the thing to which these men are most entitled.

It is this way. From Napoleon's time it has been the creed of all strong men that Providence fights on the side with the heaviest artillery. In other words it is the unwritten law that in this country of great opportunities only he who grasps the chance can hope to succeed. A week or two ago one of the members of the Toronto city council brought in a measure calculated to prevent the dealers from using the outside front of the store to display his goods. Nothing was excepted. He urged the legislation, because, he said it would tend toward the beautification of the city and the health of the citizens.

There was an issue of the most vital importance to the grocers of the Queen City. A meeting of their section was called to hear the alderman's views and to discuss the question. ONLY A DOZEN OUT OF THE ENTIRE MEMBERSHIP RESPONDED. The dealers did not seem to have the slightest interest in the matter. And yet had it gone through the fruit trade of practically all the little fellows would have been paralysed. It was not owing to them in the slightest that it did not go through. The committee that was appointed at the meeting to interview the aldermen in every ward and to wait upon the city council when the motion came up for discussion, was the body of men who saved the general body in Toronto.

If every member of every association attended every meeting and took an interest in the work there would not be so much of this.

REBATE ON CASH SALES.

Every grocer in Canada should hesitate before accepting as a necessity the policy which demands the giving away, in the form of rebate, of a percentage of the profits he has legitimately earned in cash sales covering a more or less extended period of the past.

There is no economic defence for this method of merchandising. Considered apart from an excessive profit it would mean the giving away by the left hand along with the goods, a portion of the money his right hand received as payment for those goods. It is simply a case of the "right hand not knowing what the left hand doeth."

No grocer in Canada is making such a high percentage of profit on turnover to-day that he can afford to give away, let us say, fifty cents worth of goods, when a customer brings him in checks for ten dollars' worth of goods purchased mayhap during two, three or four weeks as the case may be. And considered at its best, the scheme is only a doubtful expedient to secure or hold custom. The man who is counting upon it has either made a greater profit than he need on the sales themselves or else he is cutting prices to a point farther than is necessary. Altogether the system is not in the best interest of either dealer or customer. It fails somehow to convince.

EDITORIAL NOTE AND COMMENT.

There seems to be quite a healthy demand on the part of clerks in the west, for a weekly half-holiday.

Calgary merchants are contemplating the formation of an association independent of the Board of Trade, and purpose giving special attention to credits.

The clerks in Portage La Prairie petitioned the council for strict enforcement of the holiday closing. It is understood that this was not done on Victoria Day and people are asking questions. The reason advanced is simply insufficient notice and hardship to farmers.

William Maxwell, of Rothesay, Scotland, the apostle of co-operative stores has reached Vancouver. It is reported his purpose on going through to the Pacific Coast was but to see the Rocky Mountains. He is also said to be responsible for the statement that individualism is particularly strong in Canada.

OUTSIDE DISPLAY.

Council Throws Out Radical By-law Amendment.

Toronto, June 1.—Under the protest of a deputation from the grocers' section of the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association the motion of Ald. Sweeny to amend the municipal by-law so that it would be against the law for merchants to display goods on the street before their doors, went down to defeat at the city council meeting on Monday.

The councillor had attended a meeting of the grocers' section last Thursday night to explain the situation to the dealers, but he failed to convince both on the argument that the passage of the amendment would tend to the beautification of the city, and also that the health of the citizens might be improved thereby.

He was subjected, it is understood, to considerable ridicule, and finally a resolution was passed, protesting against the measure as an infringement upon the rights of dealers. The council did not waste much time in discussing the matter when the deputation informed them that the passing of the by-law would put a whole lot of the little fellows out of line for the fruit trade, and for other branches where outside display was absolutely necessary.

LEMONS IN MONTREAL.

Demand From the Country as Well as Local.

Montreal, June 1.—The lemon market apparently lost no time in responding to the bullish influences that have affected it of late. Last week quite an advance was made when the price went up to $3. Early this week jobbers were asking and receiving $5 and freely stated the likelihood of still higher prices. To a representative of The Canadian Grocer one of the local jobbers said he was almost out of supplies. "A day or so ago," he added, "one of the jobbers along the street asked me to let him have fifty boxes, and he is regarded as particularly strong as a lemon dealer. Of course I could not let him have any for the fact that I am short myself. The demand is not only from the city, but from the surrounding country. It will probably be ten days or two weeks before more goods come in and prices may then decline a little, but it is just a question. In the meantime as supplies become shorter it is to be expected that still higher prices than those now existing may be asked."

In addition to this condition of the present, the fact remains that the supply of Sicilian lemons is smaller than last year, according to the various reports and the decrease is quite appreciable. Summer is still to come, and with a continuation of real seasonable weather the demand for lemons is bound to be felt with the result that the market may retain much of its present strength.

EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW.

Royal City Council Seeks to Compel New Departure.

New Westminster, B.C., June 1.—The regulation of stores, including early closing and a half holiday on one day in each week, was food for discussion at the meeting of the city council last week. A by-law covering this had been drawn up, and was given its third reading, but it is claimed it must be brought up again for reconsideration.

One of the clauses compels the closing of all retail establishments at 6 o'clock in the evening, and on holidays. The power of the municipal body to enforce the closing of stores was questioned, but, the clause was finally passed.

A CALGARY ASSOCIATION.

Merchants Contemplating Breaking From Board of Trade.

Calgary, June 1.—The special meeting called for to-night will settle in all probability whether or not the retail merchants of this city are to have an association independent of the Board of Trade, of which body formerly they constituted a section. The matter was discussed pretty fully at the meeting last Thursday.

Keeping closer watch on credits is to be one of the chief objects of the new organization. That is to say, those who take advantage of the merchant to "charge" goods, while later refusing to meet the account will be given special attention.

If an independent body is formed it will probably be along the lines of the Lethbridge Retailers' Protective association, which is supposed to be doing effective work, and B. L. Cope, the secretary, for the dealers in the southern city, will speak on the subject at the gathering to-night.

HALF-HOLIDAY IN REGINA.

Clerks Present Memorial to Retail Dealers With Success.

Regina, Sask., June 1.—"We the undersigned clerks and employes of the City of Regina, are desirous of obtaining a half holihay out of each week during the months of June, July and August, 1911. By doing so we do not consider that it will inconvenience the public in any way, as it is done in all the large cities and in most of the eastern towns. The benefit derived from the recreation by the employes will more than repay the employers. We trust that you will favorably consider this request and grant the same. We would suggest Wednesday afternoons."

This memorial, drawn up by the clerks of the city was presented to the retail merchants, bearing the signatures of more than two hundred clerks, warehousemen and drivers.

The matter came up for consideration last week at the last meeting of the Retail Association, and finally on motion of J. F. Bole and John McCarthy, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"That this meeting of business men of the city endorse the principle of the half holiday and that we will co-operate with the clerks in obtaining such on condition that they obtain the signatures of the business men of the city to that end and undertake on their part the organization of an athletic association to fitly spend the holiday."

The clerks appreciate the recognition of their request at the hands of the dealers and purpose, it is said, "forming an athletic association so that the afternoon may not be wasted."

Mr. McCarthy was strongly in favor of the clerks approaching the council and getting a by-law passed, making the holiday general all over the city. This will be attempted.

PETITION IN ST. JOHN, N.B.

Some Merchants Protest Against Council's Ruling.

St. John, N.B., June 1.—While many of the leading grocers of the city are in approval of the early closing by-law which has recently been passed by the common council, compelling all stores, excepting druggists', confectioners', tobacconists' and liquor dealers', to close at 7 o'clock each evening under a penalty of $40, there are several of the smaller dealers who are strongly opposed to the law. A petition is being circulated for presentation to the common council, asking for the reneal of the law, or for an amendment. The law it is claimed will be a benefit and give an impetus to the trade of the larger stores but the smaller grocery shops will suffer, as many of them transacted considerable business after 7 p.m. or on the mornings of holidays.

POINTERS—

Canned Goods.—Up and down.

New Muscavado Sugar—3½c a lb.

Montreal, June 1st.—There is no denying the fact that the local market is stripped of dried fruit. Some jobbers state that they are without a single box of prunes. Already it is a bare market and it seems quite safe to say that before new supplies are available there will be nothing at all to offer consumers. The dried fruit departments of the jobbing houses are pretty well out of business.

Canned goods are rather interesting this week from the fact that there is a tendency in some quarters to dispose of their surplus stocks. For instance, a member of one of the firms told The Grocer that he was offering peas at $1.15, 3 lb. apples at $1.10, strawberries at from $1.25 to $1.80 and tomatoes at from $1.37½ to $1.40. It is easy to understand that strawberries in heavy lots are not desired at this season with the new crop so near. Apples are a little different in this respect and have a longer period to stretch over. The West is still calling for canned goods. One local firm reported a sale of a car load of gallon apples to Winnipeg and another wholesale grocery house disposed of one car load of peaches. These are only a few of the orders that are coming in and are mentioned to convey an idea of the business that is passing even now. One of the houses report an advance in tomatoes, asking $1.50 for 3 lbs. and $3.75 for gallons. That is a move in the opposite direction to that just mentioned but it is regarded as justifiable by the firm who announce it. Conditions in this and the dried fruit market will depend upon the supplies of the individual houses very likely until the new crops are received.

It is believed that the scarcity of dried fruits has turned much of the demand into the canned goods channel.

New Muscavado sugar has arrived and is quoted at 3½c.

Sugar.—The heavy purchases of sugar made in the winter are now practically exhausted according to a local traveler who visits the trade. Just now the market is rather quiet, with demand only steady. New Muscavado is quoted at 3½c.

Dried Fruits.—As far as new crop prunes are concerned the only change is a little more willingness on the part of growers and packers to make offers. The movement after June 1st is expected to be more noticeable. Advices from France say indications there point to a good crop of prunes and better reports are received from Bornia and Servia. In the meantime the local market is up ½ cent with but little fruit offering. One jobber said he felt the high prices for new crop goods were not fully warranted but brokers say otherwise and state that prices are up ½ cent over quotations of several weeks ago. Prunes may be summed up as follows:—Spot market very strong, futures now seem to be a little more favorable to the buyer.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Prunes—Up ½ cent.

Dried Peaches—Scarce.

Raisins—Firm.

Toronto, June 1.—Dried Fruits continue to attract attention as supplies grow smaller and prices travel upward Trade in prunes and evaporated apples is not large from the fact that wholesalers' stocks are exceedingly small and prices are so high that retailers display little interest in pushing sales. Some wholesalers have no supplies of these two fruits and peaches is another line which is small in supply and of which some houses are already sold out. Raisins are gradually firming up. The new crop of dried fruits will assuredly come on the barest market that has been known in many years.

Business in groceries is fairly good according to reports, with collections quite good for this season of the year. Demand for summer lines is now being felt, and on account of the warm weather during May, it has set in a little earlier than usual. Besides summer lines of canned goods, lime juice, lemonade powders, and similar lines are now being asked for. Trade during May compares favorably with last year. Sugar has been an exception, trade being very inactive during the month, one wholesaler commenting that during May, sugar was duller than he ever knew it to be. As sugar soon runs into money, it makes sales look smaller than they really are.

The consumption of sugar should now begin to show an increase, with the advent of the preserving season. It is expected that Canadian strawberries will be received within a week, which is counted the opening of the heavy sugar demand.

Sugar.—The market is marking time. Conditions would seem to indicate a continuance of strength. Trade is quiet.

Dried Fruits.—The market is certainly an interesting one. Predictions of higher prices which have been made in these columns so many times seem to be well warranted. Prunes in sizes of 80 to 90 and 90 to 100 are up another ½ cent this week. Stocks are smaller than they have ever been known to be at this time. Those who have any 80 to 90 or 90 to 100 are inclined to ask higher prices than present quotations and spot stocks seem to warrant. Peaches are also extremely scarce on this market and none are to be had at less than 13 cents and it looks like higher prices than that. The raisin market is gradually firming up. Valencias are also firm. Tap figs are getting well cleaned up.

Tea.—The local tea situation is practically unchanged and firm. Opening prices on Japan teas have so far ruled high and above those of last year. New Japans have not arrived yet and in them there has not yet been a great deal of interest shown. The Ceylon market is steady.

Coffee.—Coffee options after firming up last week weakened again and so they have on the whole gained little ground. Under the higher market there was a better enquiry for spot coffee in New York, but this demand dropped off when options failed to maintain their advance.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—There is considerable business passing in canned goods with price concessions here and there as an extra inducement to buyers. The approach of the fruit and early vegetable season has something to do with this movement.

Tomato prices are higher according to one of the local houses. Quotations on new pack salmon are offered.

Toronto.—A fair trade is being done in canned goods, but as can be expected at this season, retailers are not purchasing in large quantities. Dried fruits in many cases have advanced more in proportion than canned fruits, so that the canned article is enjoying a steady demand. Stocks are not large and wholesalers report themselves out of certain lines, which vary with different houses. Both wholesalers and retailers have been giving orders quite freely for new crop canned goods, according to report. Opening prices have not as yet been named, and will probably not be until well on in August.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Unchanged.

Syrup and Molasses—Firm.

Coffee—Firmer.

Beans and Peas—Steady demand.

Winnipeg, May 27.—A steady trade is being done in groceries on this market, although there is little increase over last week. The summer business is now on, and orders continue to arrive in large numbers and size. It is expected by the wholesalers that a steady market will prevail for some time. The holiday in the middle of the week made it necessary for travelers to stick to their routes and so a large proportion of them were unable to take advantage of it. On the other hand, the warehouses all closed, which necessitated the doing of two days' work the next day, as the holiday was not observed in many of the smaller towns, and travelers kept right on.

Continuous rain and colder weather has made it harder for the country merchants to get in their supplies, as the roads have all been put out of condition. The arrival of the heavy rain has, however, insured a supply of moisture that will help the crop a considerable time, and the present fear is that instead of having too little, there will be too much moisture stored up for the plant when it is just forming its secondary roots.

Sugar—The same steady market prevails, and several large orders from country points were filled last week. Conditions continue to exist in such a state of undecisiveness that wholesalers who have a large stock on hand are just sitting tight and waiting for developments. Some predict higher prices in the near future, while others refuse to give any opinion whatever

Several lines are predicted to advance next week, but as similar predictions have been made from time to time, little attention is paid to them till the advance does take place

Syrup and Molasses—A firm demand continues to exist, and prices are holding steady. Maple sprup of various brands is being offered by the different houses, and all report that an excellent demand is in existence for this line. NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., June 1.—One of the most marked changes of the week in local market quotations was the advance of fifty cents in the price of lemons, said to be caused from a shortage in the crop. The high prices on dried fruit still prevail, and next fall quotations are extremely advanced.

The flour market is steady, and no change is looked for in Ontario or Manitoba patents for some time. Although sugar is unchanged, it is believed that before long, higher prices will be asked.

In the country market the price of butter and eggs had declined. Tub butter now ranges 18 to 20 cents, while from 19 to 21 is asked for roll. Hennery eggs bring from 18 to 20 cents per dozen. Two cents a pound is being asked for native rhubarb, a commodity which is becoming plentiful as the season advances.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, June 1.—Price changes are few and unimportant in the local grocery market this week. Business continues brisk and collections are considered satisfactory. Travelers are sending in good orders from the shore districts where the high prices for fish have put considerable money into circulation.

The receipts of eggs are improved, and the price is a little easier at 20 to 21 cents. The demand, however, is not up to expectations.

There has also been considerable improvement in the butter market. Small tubs of fresh dairy are now coming on the market in better supply, and the price has dropped. This grade is selling at 23 cents. Creamery prints are quoted at 27 cents.

Egyptian onions have arrived in quantities and prices are somewhat lower, 2¾ cents against three cents and 3½ cents last week.

Evaporated apples are practically done for the season, none being left over in first hands and few dealers have any either.

Another advance has taken place in California raisins for fall delivery, making the price to-day (by the carload) 10 cents for choice and 10½ cents for fancy.

Sugars are beginning to improve somewhat owing to the increased consumption since the local rhubarb has made its appearance. Extra standard granulated is selling at $4.75.

Cranberries have touched a record price. They are selling at retail for 22 cents per quart.

Fruit was in heavy demand this week due principally to the holiday, and dealers report large sales. Valencia oranges are meeting with a heavier sale than usual on account of the higher price quoted for navels. One Halifax dealer this week handled over 600 bunches of bananas, and this is said to be the average turnover for the other wholesale houses. There is a marked improvement in the quality and the price quoted is $2.00 to $2.50. Lemons are quoted at $3.00.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Canadian Grocer:

In the issue of The Canadian Grocer of April 28th, on page 32, there is an item saying: "A man who will keep his store open from 7 in the morning to 10 or 11 at night all the year round is not respectable; he is dishonest with his clerks." This item comes under the heading of "Remarked on the Side," after the report of the Toronto Retail Grocers' meeting.

I presume this has been said by some grocer at this meeting. If I am right in presuming so, you would oblige me by publishing my answer to this party.

In the first place I keep my store open from 7 in the morning until 11 at night all the year round, and I consider myself just as respectable as the party that said this. No hiding b hind an association to say what I mean. In regard to honesty with clerks, if I ask any of my help to come back at nights, I pay them for it. I do not pull down my blinds and have my clerk slaving away in a back room, without any thanks.

In the second place, there are circumstances that make it necessary for a man to keep open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. In my locality I am safe in saying that 75 per cent. of the women go out to work, as well as the men, and the bulk of my business is done at night. I would be foolish to close at 7 p.m.

He may be a person able to afford closing at 7 p.m., or it does not pay him to keep open after this hour, but, that does not give him any reason to attack another man's respectability. I think if this party had weighed his words they never would have been uttered, for he is certainly touching a spot that all men hold sacred.

E. C. Matthews.

TRAVELERS' HOLIDAYS.

Retailers Informed Ahead as to Dates When Drummers Rest.

Toronto, June 1.—Following the custom of the past years, it has been decided that the travelers for the wholesale grocery houses shall all take their holidays during the same period. By making the announcement some little time ahead, it gives the retailer plenty of time to anticipate his wants during that period.

This year, the Ontario knights of the grip who cover the country districts of Ontario will holiday from July 17th to 29th, both days included. The city travelers will put down their sample cases on the evening of July 20th, returning on the morning of July 31st.

DEALERS UNANIMOUS.

Forest City Grocers Averse to Closing Saturday.

London, Ont., June 1.—The London Retail Grocers' Association have succeeded in inducing the Port Huron Grocers and Butchers' Association to bring their annual excursion to London, on Wednesday, August 23rd. They will come fifteen hundred strong. The local association will take them in hand and see that they have a good time.

There is a general mix up in regard to the King's birthday, the grocers are almost unanimous for keeping their places of business open on June third.

GODERICH, ONT., NOTES.

Goderich, Ont., June 1.—The grocery store of Morrish & McClinton, Hamilton street, was broken into last week, and about $4 taken from the till, besides articles from the store. The thieves entered by a cellar window.

J. W. Vanatter has sold the Opera House Grocery business on Kingston street to A. E. Matheson. Mr. Vanatter was formerly part owner of the Maple Leaf Grocery, Hamilton street. He will remain in Goderich.

NEW MONTREAL STORES.

Among the new grocery stores that have opened up in Montreal quite recently are the following: The Viauville Cash Grocery, Mr. Woodward proprietor, 89 Catherine St., Viauville; John Heney, corner of Lafontaine and 4th Ave.; Jos. Bennett, 1069 Mount Royal Ave.; H. Ward, corner of Esplanade and St. Viateur St.

The special Spring Number of The Canadian Grocer is a prosperous looking publication of 218 pages, well printed on fine toned paper, and containing several illustrations. A glance at the contents shows that The Grocer is a valuable aid to those in the business. Not only does it give market reports and other such information, but it has many special, well-written articles dealing in an intelligent manner with the everyday problems that meet the men in the business.—Hamilton Times.

BUILDING FOR TRAVELERS.

Ald. Ashplant Proposes to Provide Accommodation.

London, Ont., June 1.—Ald. H. Ashplant announces that he will erect a three-storey, or possibly four storey building on Carling Street, in rear of his shoe store on Dundas street, to accommodate commercial men with sample rooms. This plan, though purely an investment scheme of Ald. Ashplant's, may work out as a great accommodation. His idea is for travelers to leave their goods here when out on the road, instead of in rooms in various parts of the city. Customer would have the advantage of centralized and convenient quarters. The building would be fitted up with bathrooms and other conveniences.

ENEMY OF THE CURRANT.

Perenosphorus is an "animal" of the crop-killing family found in the classic fruit fields of Greece. It is a near relation of "frost" and "hail" peculiar to the Western Canada wheat zone, or of "lean year" in the salmon rivers along the Pacific coast, or the "rubber boom" in Ceylon tea areas and so on. The family is extensive and prolific. No matter what the crop, there is some natural or unnatural destroying influence forerunning higher prices. Among currants it is known as perenosphorus and according to some jobbers it has already been reported in the Grecian fruit plains. Heat and rain in too great an abundance is said to be responsible for it. Currant brokers may tell you all about it one of these days when they call upon you for your order of new crop currants.

Sugars & Canners, Limited, Montreal, the originators of a number of fast selling candy specialties beg to draw the attention of the trade to an error on our part in the spring special number of our paper. Mikado mixed candy (in 32 lb. pails), was quoted at $2.20 instead of $2.40. We certainly regret such a misprint, as this line is one of the best on the market to-day and has proven a source of great profit to grocers all over Canada.

The old established business of W. G. Nixey, London, Eng., has, for family reasons been registered as a private limited company, with a share capital of £60,000. Provision Market is Holding Steady

Canadian Live Hog Markets Higher — Better Feeling in Provisions—Summer Lines of Pork Products Firmer — Eastern Butter Markets Well Supplied—Some Demand From West—Looks Like Large Production—Eggs Unchanged to a Shade Easier—Cheese is Weaker.

Prices for Canadian live hogs under a steady British bacon market and a limited supply have this week ruled steady to a shade higher. The markets of the Western States are fairly steady and certain dealers are predicting a steadier provision market. The action of the Old Country bacon market will rule to a large extent however. Meanwhile the summer demand has reduced spot stocks of goods that are called for at this season and the result has been a firmness in these particular lines.

Lard production during the past three or four months has been large and prices are now down to a low basis, especially when compared with the high period of a year ago. During the high prices, consumption turned to a certain extent to lard substitutes, but the cheaper price for the pure article is now switching the demand back, so that stocks are being absorbed better than expected. A dispatch from Chicago says: "Foreigners seem to take kindly to the present price of lard in this market as shipments were made to over fifty foreign ports last week. This fact shows that substitutes for lard are being laid aside and that the real article is coming into general use again in the markets of the world."

Butter continues quite plentiful in supply in the eastern markets of the Dominion and while prices have ruled steady there seems to be a tone of easiness. One redeeming feature is the demand from the west, but it has not been so large of late. However it can be depended on to take a certain share of surplus supplies, while storing may be resorted to when the grass butter arrives. To all appearances, there will be more butter made in Canada this year than for some time. First, because the milk production is larger and secondly the falling off in demand for our cream in the United States has made it necessary for the farmer to find some other method of using it. Cheese will however, absorb a certain amount of this. Cheese this week exhibits an easter tendency, English bids being lower.

The warmer weather has brought out a larger supply of eggs and good-sized quantities are going to the markets. The receipts for May have exceeded those of last year. Surplus supplies are being taken care of by storage, but the market shows a little easier tone.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Demand for hams and bacon has been so well maintained that the resulting stronger feeling has caused an advance in prices of 1 cent and 1½ cent per lb. A decrease in spot stocks constributes to the strength of the situation. Packers report a good demand from the city and country. One report says the impression is that the advance in the price of live hogs will not be maintained, as prices were lower in the western markets. As high as $7.25 was paid for hogs weighed off cars.

Eggs.—Prices may be a little weaker but no reduction is quoted. Receipts from May 1st to May 27th were 60,400 cases as compared with 52,503 cases for the same period last year. Provisions.—There is a steadier and more satisfactory tone to the provision market this week. Live hogs are higher at $6.00 to $6.10, and are steady at that figure. If the British market holds firm, these prices are expected to be at least maintained as offerings are not overly large. In sympathy, provisions in general are slightly firmer. Butter.—Supplies on this market continue plentiful, and while a fair demand is being experienced, it does not measure up with arrivals. This is particularly true in dairy butter, the make of which is large. Some sales of dairy rolls were made this week at 15 cents, which shows the condition of the market. With the arrival of the grass butter during June, dealers will begin to put stocks away, but only, as one dealer remarked, "at the right price."

Butter—Trade in creamery butter has taken on a firmer tone during the last week, Dairy butter is still being offered in large quantities of questionable quality. Dealers, however, are objecting to handling the inferior class of stuff, and have warned shippers that they are only paying 19 cents per pound for strictly fresh made, while inferior grades will be handled according to their quality. Many have put the ban against moldy butter, and refuse absolutely to handle it. Prices quoted are as follows:

Eastern solids		0 24½

Eggs—The supply of eggs continues to hold out and an increased demand appears to be looking after the surplus stocks arriving. Many of the local retailers have direct contracts with farmers throughout the province to supply them with strictly fresh eggs, as well as older eggs. The prices being paid by jobbers in the city to country merchants, or to formers for large lots, is 18 cents per dozen. Retailers buying direct from the farmers for guaranteed strictly fresh eggs pay as high as 22c to 25c per dozen. These latter, of course, are limited in amount, and retail at 30c per dozen.

Cheese—No change has taken place in the cheese market. Fresh made Manitoba chese is expected on the market in a short time, as there are over a dozen factories already in operation. Eastern is still quoted at 14c to 14¼c per pound, and 14½c for twins, while Manitoba is offered at 13c to 13¼c per pound, and 13½c to 14c for twins.

Bright Prospects for Growing Wheat

Conditions Excellent—Wheat's Sharp Advance in Chicago—Canadian Markets Higher—Flour Trade Dull—Export Inquiries Out of Line With Values—Rolled Oats Steady—Oats Maintain Position.

Just at present in the face of a stronger wheat market, flour would seem in sympathy to be a little firmer. How long it will remain so is a question. A number of dealers express the opinion that present prices in wheat are hardly warranted. However, speculation is always a factor in the moving of quotations.

Trade in flour is not particularly brisk. True it is that domestic trade continues of a steady nature, but dealers are buying on a hand-to-mouth basis. Export business is quiet, for while there has been some inquiry, bids were out of line. One dealer said: "Mills are not pressing for business as wheat is too high just now for flour to be exported at enquiry prices."

A sharp advance in May wheat took place in Chicago on Monday on account af the alarm of shorts who raised bids, trying to escape a possible squeeze at the end of the month. As a result values on Canadian markets were also boosted.

Spring wheat has so far advanced with all the promise that can be hoped for, but it is still a long time to harvest and much can happen between now and then. The experience of last year is still fresh enough in mind to prevent too high hopes being raised at this season. The crop cannot go to maturity on such moisture as it has available at this time, but must have at least a normal supply of rainfall during the intervening weeks to fulfill the hopes which present conditions inspire. Nevertheless it seems a safe assumption that the present year will be a record one so far as the wheat crop is concerned and on such conditions a low level of prices should prevail.

Rolled oats continue steady in sympathy with oats which have so far maintained their position. Some dealers are looking for lower prices in oats after the expiration of the May option. Crop conditions generally are also excellent, but a good export demand is now in evidence. The larger share of the oats exported have been of the lower grades.

Flour.—The flour situation shows little change, 1st patents bringing $5.10 per barrel. Wheat is above the values of last week, quotations under a sharp rise in values in Chicago, ruling just now at $1.00¾, but most dealers are not looking for any further upward movement. It is felt that present quotations do not warrant higher prices, but speculation has at all times to be reckoned with. Trade in flour is inclined to quietness.

Flour—The domestic demand for flour has fallen off during the last few weeks and the export trade is also off color. Millers state that they are unable to accept much business at current prices, and the natural result is that stocks on hand are unusually large, and the mills are working on short time. The expected advance which was being looked for two weeks ago is now a thing of the past. Millers state that owing to the recent rainfall, which has been general over the three Prairie Provinces, prospects of a good crop have increased so that buyers are being influenced The present situation does not warrant any decline in price, however, and it is likely that a draggy market will prevail till the wheat market takes some definite action. First patents are selling at $2.65 per 98-lb. sack; seconds, $2.45; bakers',

Cereals—The demand for feeds has taken the same turn as that for wheat, yet when the time of the year is considered the amount of trade being transacted is by no means discouraging. The demand from Manitoba points has been filled, but orders from Saskatchewan and Alberta are still to be filled by the local mills. Last week there was an active call from Montreal for bran and shorts, this is, however, now slackening off somewhat. Prices remain unchanged, as follows:

Give Prominence to Cereal Holdings

Warm Weather Induces People to Change From Firm Foods to Cereals—Reminders in the Store—How Flour Should be Kept—Loose Goods in Covered Drawers—When Cereals Get Stale.

Now is the season of the year when cerels should be given all prominence. When the weather is warm, people change from the firmer kinds of food and the amount of cereals consumed is large and the merchant should look after his share of the trade.

In the display of cereals a jumbled pile of packages as we see in many windows will receive little attention. It must be of a special nature. If the packages are built into some unusual design, it will attract the attention of passing customers. In showing package cereals or breakfast foods, if they are at all new and the public liable to be in ignorance as to their nature, it is well to empty a package into a dish, so that the customer will have an idea of what it is like.

In Country Towns.

A merchant in a country town says that customers quite often forget to order the cereals for the morning meal, so he put up a reminder in his store. It was headed: "Buy to-day for to-morrow's Breakfast," and followed by the names of the different lines about 12 in number carried by him. He states that he got good results from it. Customers had no idea of the big range that they had to select from for their morning meal, until they seen this list.

Should Keep Separate.

Flour as far as possible should not be stored in a room with goods that have a strong flavor or odor such as oil, fish or stale vegetables as it is very liable to absorb these odors. Rats and mice have proved a big hindrance to the flour trade of many merchants and therefore every effort should be made to keep the store house clear of them. Flour should be piled on slightly elevated platforms, where rats are not so liable to attack it. It is also in less danger of being spoiled in any other way.

The time when a little mould or a few worms in cereals or a few creepers in the cheese was taken lightly by customers has passed away. People now demand clean food handled in a sanitary method. The dealer should see that his cereals come within the demands of customers.

All kinds should be bought in small quantities and oftener so as to be assured of this. Loose goods should be kept in covered drawers so as to exclude dust and flies. Cereals of all kinds should be kept in a cool, but still a dry place. They are sensitive to odors and care should be taken in handling them.

Often a customer who has been using a cereal will stop suddenly. They are tired of it, they say, but the real reason is generally that a package they got was stale and their desire for it dwindled. It is therefore well that the dealer purchase in small quantities so that his stock will be kept fresh.

Another cause of cereals getting stale is that when a new case is opened up, the old packages are shoved to the back and the new goods placed in front, so that when the old goods are sold they are decidedly stale. This should be avoided.

CLERKS CLASSIFY COFFEE BY ITS TASTE

British Grocery and Provision Trades' Society Holds Series of Tests in Manchester—More Than Hundred Clerks and Students Compete—Practical Conclusion to Winter's Work.

Manchester, Eng., June 1.—A series of competitions arranged by the Manchester and Salford Grocery and Provision Trades' Technical Education Society was held on the 26th ult., in the Manchester Corn Exchange. A hundred and twenty young men, most of them students of the grocery classes of the Municipal School of Commerce, submitted themselves to the tests which had been devised to try their skill and efficiency in the practical work of the trades with which the society has to do. There were altogether ten competitions. The most difficult of them seemed, to the uninitiated at any rate, those which were designed to test the sense of taste in the competitors. On one table were eight cups of coffee, two cups made of each of four different kinds of berry. The task was to pick out the two cups of each kind and couple them together. The same thing had to be done with samples of tea.

Another competition which presented difficulty was to distinguish by tasting a number of samples of butter and margarine. This looked not only a difficult but a somewhat bilious job. Men of experience in the trade admit that margarine is often so close an imitation of butter in texture and taste that it will baffle the palate of anybody but an expert. Other competitions were in weighing and wrapping various commodities, in window dressing, and in writing advertisements with chalk on blue sugar paper.

These competitions are intended as a kind of practical finish to the winter's work of the grocery classes at the School of Commerce, which are under the direction of the Grocers' Technical Society, founded seven years ago. These classes were the first definite effort to give systematic teaching to those who wished to prepare themselves for the grocery trade. There have now been seven sessions, each extending from October to April, and 700 students have passed through the classes. To students completing a three years' course and securing a certain percentage of marks diplomas are given by the Education Committee. Students can also qualify for the examination of the National Institute of Grocers.

JUST SELL GOODS.

Sales are the most important thing in the store and clerks should recognize this fact. A customer is more important than a display, or the sweeping of the floor, and should be attended to first.

When a clerk is employed at some minor job such as sweeping or fixing the shelves and a customer enters, it sometimes seems hard to break away from the less important work, but when it is remembered that the great object is to sell goods, and that all the other jobs are of secondary importance, will help to make it easier to promptly attend to each customer's wants.

SOME HINTS FOR THE ADVERTISEMENT

Just Naming Different Lines and Articles Not Enough to Stimulate Interest Desired—Some Pointers That Might be Used to Advantage in Treating Various Lines in your "Ad."

The mere naming of the different articles you carry, in your advertisement, with the price does not interest the public, the way you wish them to be interested. Tell them something about the goods that will create a desire for that particular line.

Now if you say merely: "Oranges—40c dozen," it will develop only passing interest but if you say: "these are California navel oranges, bright, sound, juicy fruit of fine flavor—extra large, at 40c," you have described them in a way that will appeal to the customer.

The descriptions of some of the articles might be along this line:

Coffee—it is composed of smooth, rich, heavy bodied coffees, which are blended in such exact propostions as to produce a delightful flavor.

Biscuits—so different from the ordinary biscuits. Everything used in the making of these is the best.

Starch—of the best quality—full strength—always uniform. Smooths out ironing day annoyances.

Peaches—Do you know that evaporated peaches are as wholesome as they are palatable? Serve them frequently—everyone will enjoy them—ask your physician as to their wholesomeness.

Strawberry jam—couldn't be made purer or more delicious. Most people know of the delicious flavor and superior quality of this jam, and also know that it can safely be eaten with freedom by the little ones.

Tomatoes—Ideal quality for particular families. Fresh-from-the-vine flavor, solid packed cans, strictly pure and packed under positively clean conditions.

Flour—Where is the home baker who does not want the best flour? Our flour is ideal for those who want cakes and pastry that are creamy, light, tasty and nutritious.

Baked Beans—Are nutritious and palatable. Rich, fine flavor—the tomato sauce adds to their tastiness. Serve hot or cold—they are appetizing both ways.

Sardines—Genuine imported. Rich, plump and appetizing—in pure olive oil.

Sharp Advance in the Price of Lemons

Phenomenal Advance for Month of May—Shortness of Supplies the Cause—Primary Market Also Strong — California Valencias Arriving—Looks as if They Will be Moderate in Price—Pineapple Season on—Mississippi Tomatoes Give Some Relief to Market.

Lemons are occupying the position of importance on the fruit markets, values having seen a big increase within a short time. To begin with the primary market is particularly strong, while the Canadian position is further strengthened by the fact that supplies here are small and the present good demand is cutting deeply into stocks. Lemons have to be brought such a distance that it will be around the middle of June, dealers say, before relief can be hoped for from the primary markets. In the meantime, higher prices for this fruit are predicted. However, the weather will be a factor in determining demand, and accordingly, price. While prices may not go higher it seems though that even when new supplies arrive that the market will rule quite high. The same increase in price has taken place in New York. The Journal of Commerce says:

"The phenomenal advance in lemons during the past couple of weeks, which has carried prices far above previous records for May, has upset all calculations. Even those most conservative have changed their opinions, and instead of attributing the advance to manipulation in the interests of importers have concluded that they were mistaken in their estimates and are now with those who think that the advance is not only warranted on the basis of supply and demand, but are ready to subscribe to the predictions that the market may go even higher."

While there are still some supplies of navel oranges on Canadian markets, present stocks will not last long. California valencias of good quality are arriving. There seems to be a good-sized crop of the valencias in California and prices should rule quite reasonable. This orange will continue until late in the fall, but supplies will begin to slacken somewhat about September.

The quality of the imported strawberries has not been extra good, on account of drought in the growing districts in the Southern States. While Canadian berries will not be in evidence in quantities until about the middle of the month, there are chances that the first offering from the Niagara district may be received within a week. The district around Baltimore will also begin to ship about the same date.

The pineapple season is now in full swing and plentiful supplies are found on all markets, while a good steady trade is being experienced. Supplies will be liberal within the next few weeks, and there are hopes of at least slightly lower prices.

While tomatoes continue quite high, there is hope of relief from Mississippi stocks now coming forward. Some supplies in crates of four baskets have been received on Canadian markets and are of good quality. With larger supplies, there is a likelihood of lower prices.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—With the trade practically cleaned out of lemons, and new supplies two or three weeks distant, lemons are up to five dollars this week, with a likelihood that they will go higher. The demand is good, the extremely hot days bringing in much new business. Practically the only oranges offered are Sorrentos, with late Valencias coming. Navels are practically off the market. The same is true of grape fruit which is practically off the market with the season about wound up. Pines are coming in freely with the price reduced. Demand shows improvement. Strawberries now are the bane of the fruit jobber's life. There is considerable waste and prices are up and down, more often down. As low as eight cents was reported on one day this week, but was due to the particular circumstance attending that sale. Apples are moving slowly and are rather uninteresting.

Vegetables.—New tomatoes are arriving from Mississippi. They are handled in what are called flats of four basket carriers, and are quoted at from $1.75 to $1.90 per flat, with the likelihood that they will be lower within a week. Canadian asparagus from around St. Catharines, Ont., has flooded the market, and prices are down to $1.00. Spanish onions are off the market. There is a good demand for new Florida potatoes even if they do bring $6.50 a barrel. Demand for cucumbers, carrots, lettuce, etc., is satisfactory and business on the whole is moving along well.

Green Fruits.—Lemons are the feature in the market this week. The strength of the market has been spoken of lately and this attention was well warranted. Prices have advanced to $3.50 to $4 per case, and even now the market looks strong as values here have not advanced as much as elsewhere, Montreal asking $5. One dealer said: "I would not be surprised to see lemons go to $6 per case within the next few weeks, while I believe they will rise to over $5. There is an extremely heavy demand and as supplies cannot be set down here for some time, prices are bound to be high. Furthermore, the primary market is very strong."

The condition of the weather will be a factor in determining prices. The first car of Valencia oranges from California arrived on Monday and they are selling at $3.50 to $4 per case. They are of good quality. Strawberries on account of the drought in the growing centres in the States have not been extra good in quality. The weather has been very favorable for the Canadian berries and there are some chances of the first of the season being received within a week.

Pineapples are enjoying a good trade at $2.50 to $3. Cherries are now adorning the local market, with 10 lb. boxes bringing from $3 to $3.50. Tomatoes continue scarce and high in price. They are offered this week in smaller crates, consisting of 4 boxes, which are selling at $2 to $2.25 per crate. These are received from Mississippi and larger supplies and lower prices are expected.

Vegetables.—A fair amount of trade is being transacted in general vegetables. New goods are finding a steady demand. These include onions, carrots, beets, beans, lettuce, cucumbers, parsley, spinach and asparagus. Prices are tending easier, noticeably beans, spinach and asparagus. The potato situation is practically unchanged, but prices seem to be holding firm at present quotations. A steady demand is being experienced with supplies none too large. New imported potatoes are somewhat easier and are receiving their share of attention.

Green Vegetables—On account of the cold weather during the last week the demand for green vegetables was not as brisk as the week before. A large quantity of southern or American vegetables are being offered on the market, but the native-grown materials are gradually making their appearance, which are a little late owing to the backward spring that prevailed this year. The latest addition to the list is native rhubarb, which is only being offered in moderate quantities, and is costing the dealers 3 cents per pound. Prices prevailing are as follows:

Native mint, per doz	0 20

Fresh Fruits—There is little change in the fresh fruit market. An active market is in existence, the holiday during the week making the sales in the city greater than ever. The quality of the strawberries coming from across the border is by no means all that could be desired, and both dealers and retailers are looking forward to the appearance of the Ontario berries, which should be in a few weeks. A few changes in the lists will be noted, as follows:

Washington box apples	3 00

Poultry—A very quiet trade prevails in this line of the grocery business, and at present only eastern poultry is quoted by the large wholesale fish and poultry houses. Local supplies offering are extremely small, and what there is is generally looked after by the retailers with steady customers.

Heavier Fish Demand for Pentecost

King's Birthday the Vigil of Pentecost and a Fast Day—Supplies Arriving Freely—Steady Trade Being Done—Halibut a Popular Line—Sea Bass, Bluefish and Sea Trout Added to Fresh Supply—St. John, N.B., Fish Dealers Object to Early Closing.

The fish markets are running along rather smoothly and with a fair trade reported. Supplies are coming along freely, prices are moderate and business assumes considerable proportion. Saturday of this week being the vigil of Pentecost, is a fast day and those to whom it applies it is a fish day. Consequently there will be an extra fish demand. Wholesalers are bringing in additional supplies for this occasion, anticipating heavier demands than usual. Lake fish of all kinds are now in good supply. Brook trout has about reached the height of its supply.

QUEBEC.

Montreal, June 1.—Fresh fish is naturally the market feature now. Gaspe salmon is arriving more freely and the price is lower. Cod and haddock are plentiful. These fish are now in good condition and prices are holding at a low figure. Halibut is one of the popular fish now, and on their reaching the market receive special attention as in fact do all fresh fish now arriving.

Sea bass, bluefish and sea trout are added to the supply of fresh fish this week. Saturday being a fast day there should be an appreciable increase in the demand for fish, as it is the day before Pentecost.

ing with as high as 700 quintals. Some grocery fish of this cure are already on the market, and it is reported that some sales have been made to exporters at a high figure. Actual sales, if any, are not confirmed, and rumor says that the fish are selling at $6.75 per quintal. However, for fish that are not well dried, this figure is absurd, and should not hold. The great scarcity, of course, would make the early Bank catch in fairly good demand, and there is no doubt it will be readily salable at around $6 a quintal, for early arrivals. Scale fish are also in good demand. Haddock are bringing $4.25 to $4.50, and Pollock and Hake from $3.50 to $4. It is doubtful if ever in the history of the dry fish business in Halifax the stores were so bare of stock in the month of May as they are now.

It is reported that if the reciprocity agreements are passed by the United States and Canadain Governments, that two or three American firms will immediately open branches or agencies on the different parts of the Nova Scotia coast.

There is practically nothing doing in the pickled fish line. No mackerel have as yet appeared. With the possibility of fairly high prices, excellent results would accrue if the fish should show up. Stocks of salt mackerel in exporters' hands are down to rock bottom, and high prices rule at the present time. Herring are in excellent demand, due to the scarcity of dry fish, and it is expected that the new spring herring from Newfoundland will open up at least $3.00 per barrel. The first arrivals should be along early in June.

Lobsters continue in fairly good supply on the western coast, and on the Cape Breton coast the catches are quite heavy.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—The price of gaspereaux is down to $1.25 per hundred. Fresh shad are becoming plentiful, and fishermen expect that the season will be a good one. They are asking from 20 to 30 cents each for shad. Salmon is scarce thus far, and sells for 30 cents per lb. by the whole fish.

Strong objection is taken by fish dealers to having to close at 7 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, as they declare those nights to be their busiest, and similar to Saturday to the butcher. J. E. Smith, proprietor of Smith's fish market, Sydney Street, last week displayed a sign "Open to 10.30," and kept open, in spite of the $40 fine, claiming that the law was unconstitutional.

Competition, and How Best to Meet It

Sterling Address Given Before Business Club in Vancouver—Competition Valuable Because it Compels Realization That Work was Necessary to Success—The Incompetent Dealer and the Price-cutter—Co-operation Among Competitors.

Vancouver, B.C., June 1.—"Competition is valuable because it compels us to realize that to succeed we must work and must learn to be patient, to be resourceful, and to be self-reliant. . . . The business men of a community are its backbone, its life, its breath."

These statements culled at random from the address of Fred Welch on "Competition," to the Business Science Club at its last meeting, give an insight into the healthy condition in which apparently the business of the grocers of this city is as the present time. Ald. James Ramsay was another speaker and his talk was also most interesting to the members, for the reason that his theme was: "How to Handle Competition."

In the discussion which followed the value of co-operation was enlarged upon. Good service and integrity were held up as of far greater importance in the building up of a business than price-cutting and all such dark and kindred evils.

Competition Defined.

"Competition," said Mr. Welch, "as we most commonly view it, is the constant striving after our business by others. Undoubtedly there is not one of us present who would not be glad to have the other man quit. Competition is defined in the dictionary as emulation. Most of us define it by a stronger name, and call it what Gen. Sherman called war.

The kind of competition we meet is what worries most of us. The competition, for example, of the incompetent merchant and the price-cutter.

"In discussing this subject with you my point of view is necessarily that of the retail grocer, in which business you will readily agree we have lots of competition. Its forms are many and varied, sometimes fair, often unfair. But competition whether it be fair or unfair, has its value if we are able and willing to learn.

"Picture to yourself the plight of a man place in a position where there is no incentive to strive. We live only because we fight off death by hygienic and proper habits of living, and strive against ill health. We strive daily with each other, in every walk and way of life, every man with whom we come in contact we are in some form competing with.

World Growing Better.

"We as business men maintain our positions in the mercantile world to-day because of the competition we meet and successfully oppose, and we are the better men for it.

"We never look forward expecting a perfect world. It will be the same old world a thousand years after we leave it as it was a thousand years before we entered it. The same old human passions, the same striving after the unattainable, yet unconsciously the world is growing better by reason of this competition.

"Learn from your competitor; his viewpoint differs from yours. Cutting prices is not competition. In 99 cases out of 100 it is folly. Learn to meet competition by selling 'quality goods' and giving efficient store service. And above all, fight to gain a reputation for absolute reliability. Too many men overlook this prime essential. The most successful men of our time are men who prove their good name and business honor.

Teaching Fairness.

"Competition is valuable because it compels us to realize that to succeed we must work, we must learn; to be patient, to be resourceful; to be self-reliant. We become by its aid better men and better citizens, and becoming these we are helping to build up a great nation. The business men of a community are its backbone, its life, its breath.

"The work of such a club as yours teaches men to be fair. Having learned this the evils of competition are largely eliminated, and fair methods prevail.

"Don't fear competition, welcome it. It will help you play fair with others, and you will get fair treatment. Be friendly with your competitor. In helping others you help yourself. Join your trade association. Get together!

"My adult life has been spent in business in this city. I have seen competition of the keenest kind, usually in the cutting of prices. Like others, I have had my periods of madness, and have imagined that I too could cut and fight.

Competition Valuable.

"I have seen the folly of this; I have learned that I gain knowledge and help from the competition of my competitor by being friendly with him.

"To the young men gathered around this board to-night my message is:

" 'Competition is valuable to you, though it may sometimes seem hard; it makes you a better man, and fits you for the best if you are capable. Be fair and honest and your reward comes sooner or later, if not in riches, in esteem and regard of your contemporaries.

" 'Money is not everything; your good name is. Be proud of your calling, or get out of it. Aspire to so live and work that your chosen profession may be the better for your having been in it.' "

In his address Ald. Ramsay defined competition as simply rivalry, and he could only advise the men present to do the best they could with it. He considered honest, honorable competition as good, both for seller and consumer. Competition would, he thought, make them all the more enterprising, and would develop their business ability. It would make them more civil and obliging to customers; it would make them systematize their work, and would develop their executive ability.

To Handle Competition.

"As to how to handle competition," he added, "I will merely make some suggestions by giving my own opinion, experience and observation, because this is a broad question, and so much depends upon who the competitor is and the circumstances. Be honest and honorable with your competitor and your customer. This is one of the strongest points that should actuate a business man.

"Don't knock your competitor; sell your own goods.

"Don't antagonize, but try and harmonize.

"Don't look on your competitor as an enemy, but as a man who has as much right to try and make a living in the same line as yourself.

"The policy of competitors should be co-operative as far as possible—not for the purpose of bleeding the public, but for the purpose of securing a legitimate profit and the conducting of a business on an honorable and honest basis.

Character Best Asset.

"Dishonest, untruthful, tricky competition is the worst competition, while it lasts, you can experience. But a man or company of this kind is sure to lose in the end, either in name or money. And I think we all recognize the fact that the greatest asset any man can have is character.

"Give your customers good attention.

"Don't hesitate to make an allowance if it is coming to him.

"Give good and quick delivery of goods.

"Employ good salesmen that will consider the interests of the customers as well as the house that he represents.

"Handle good goods, and sell them for a reasonable profit, as everyone has to live.

"Always be honest and truthful with your customers, which is a very strong point to keep your trade, and will eventually win out.

"Have your business so systematized that you are in a position to meet any emergency or competition. This is what I call 'business statesmanship.'

"Advertise your goods and your house, so that the public know that you are in business.

"Do not be averse to giving extensions of time on payments of account sometimes, if the account is a safe one.

"Give close attention to your business, and always keep yourself up-to-date.

"I am sorry that I did not have more time to put this very important question in shape. However, I hope that I have raised some points that may be worthy of consideration."

KNOW THE GOODS.

Knowing the goods you are selling is one of the assets of the salesman, but Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the U.S. Government's food expert tells a story that might suggest that too much knowledge is rather a detriment in some cases. A lady entered a grocery shop not long ago and asked:

"Have you any currants?"

The clerk, a college graduate, replied:

"Yes, madam, we have very fine Corinths, or small dried grapes, from the Greek town of that name—currants you know is the corrupted form of that name. How many pounds will you have?"

"None at all, if they are corrupted," muttered the old lady as she turned the handle on the door. "I belong to a pure food league."

The Grocer's Encyclopedia The Banana

Interesting Points in Connection With Growth of This Popular Fruit—The Vast Quantity Absorbed by United States and Great Britain—Comparison With Potato as to Food Values—How it Grows—Things to Know When Purchasing.

Bananas are now of excellent quality and the grocer who conducts a fruit department should make his sales of this line as large as possible, because besides the extra profit derived, chances of loss are a great deal less when a large quantity is sold, as they can be sold out before they commence to spoil.

In this matter of promoting sales some information regarding the banana may be made use of by the dealer. The nutritive value of the fruit is almost the same as that of the potato or rice. The chemical make up of banana and potato are strikingly similar as shown by this table :

Constituents.	Banana.	Potato.
Water	75.71	75.77
Carbonaceous matter ...	20.13	20.70
Albuminoids	1.71	1.79
Woody fibre	1.74	.75
Ash	.71	.97

Besides its agreeable taste and food value, the banana as a medicine dispels constipation in children, and for adults has good effects in cases of acute indigestion, while bilious people are advised to eat the banana the first thing in the morning.

The fruit flourishes in tropical and sub-tropical regions. The tree closely resembles the fig and for this reason, bananas are often called "paradise figs." The soft spongy stem, although rising 15 to 20 feet high, is made merely by the union or sheathing of its leaves as they grow. These leaves, of a beautiful emerald green, are from 3 to 6 feet long and 2 to 3 feet wide. The plant and leaves, however, vary in size according to location.

One Bunch to Plant.

A single banana plant produces but one bunch, taking eleven months to do it. From this one may form an idea of the vast acreage that it requires to grow the bananas now exported from the tropics. Forty million bunches of bananas were imported into the United States in 1910, that country being the largest importer of this fruit. The United Kingdom comes next, her imports in 1909 being 6¼ million bunches. Canada's imports are not large compared with these, but the consumption is steadily on the increase.

Wild Variety Inferior.

The banana plant is rarely found wild, although some have been found in Ceylon, Cochin China and the Philippines ; these, of course have seeds, but are much inferior to the long and seedless cultivated vatieties. Still, the banana, requires but little cultivation, all that is necessary being to remove the suckers and plant these at convenient distances. They grow rapidly and in ten or eleven months bear fruit. In the fruit stores and markets, bananas are generally hung with the fruit curving downward, but it grows on the plant with the fruit growing upward.

The banana being a strictly tropical plant, has to be transported a great distance. It is an exceedingly sensitive and delicate fruit, responds readily to atmospheric conditions and is easily bruised. All these things have to be taken into consideration in transportation. The fact that heat will ripen bananas renders it necessary to take precautions as will guard against the fruit ripening before it reaches it's destination. Ventilation has been found to be the only efficient method of treating bananas in transit as refrigeration will not do the work.

One authority has said : "Not everybody knows how to choose bunches of bananas. Look at the thick end of the branch on which they hang—if it be black the fruit will be black in a day or two, and will ripen too fast and rot. But if the branch be green the bananas will ripen slowly and be of good flavor. The biggest and handsomest are generally chosen by ignorant purchasers, but the smaller are the sweetest and juiciest."

Strong Selling Arguments.

FIRST, Extensive advertising the bill-boards from coast to coast are telling the people about "Crown Brand."

SECOND, the quality of "Crown Brand"—the user who once tries it comes back for more.

THIRD, (and by no means least important) the grocer's margin of profit in "Crown Brand" is all it should be.

Your individual sales should have been more. Were they? Let people know you're selling "Crown Brand" Corn Syrup; GET YOUR SHARE.

WHICH BRAND WOULD HE CHOOSE?

IF a man were starting in business with the intention of carrying only one line of each of the different articles sold in a grocery store, which brand of laundry soap do you think he would be likely to select? If he asked the housekeepers of the country to decide for him, which one would they choose? Or suppose his clerks were young men of experience in the grocery business and they were asked to make the selection. We do not need to answer these questions, because it is quite patent to every business man who reads this paper that SURPRISE so far surpasses all other laundry soaps in the esteem of people generally that the man who tried to secure and hold trade with any substitute would soon find his customers making tracks for another store. His clerks would tell him they wanted the SOAP that is easiest to sell; and the women of the country would say: "Give us the old reliable brand" SURPRISE, which washes everything to a healthful cleanliness without the necessity for hard work —the soap which makes child's play of wash day.

And so in deference to the wishes of his clerks and the needs of his customers he would be forced to the belief that while there might be other brands on which the selling margin is greater, there is none that all things considered is so profitable and in every way so satisfactory as SURPRISE.

Don't substitute

You can substitute some other brand of Macaroni for Codou's, but when you do it you are not "fair to yourself"—you cheat yourself out of a woman's confidence.

There is no Macaroni quite as good as Codou's---quite as white, tender and delicate. "Be fair to yourself" next time when a woman asks for Codou's, and if you don't happen to have it on hand it will pay you better to get it than to try to convince a woman that something else is just as good, because "She'll find you out."

Devised to Cut Cost of Living in Cities

Cost of Distribution of Goods in Large Cities and Towns Wrong—Pity of Petty Jealousies Stopping the March of Progress—Sketch of Practical Co-operative Scheme — Tributes to Centralized Idea—The Saving.

Jealousy is very old. A regular hag is she. In the beginning of things one can picture her whispering things calculated to anger in the ear of Cain before he was moved to slay Abel. She, also, it has been, who all down through the ages has been a rock in the path of Progress, a stumbling block to the feet of the reformer, and a false hope of reward to the man who would fain help on his brothers in toil to better things.

But it would be a very shame if the old hag could have still enough vindictive power to fill the ears of many good grocery men in all the big cities and towns of this fair land of ours, with false, black, jealous lies as soon as one man or two begins to talk of the blessings that would follow in the wake of the co-operation of city dealers.

Distribution Cost Wrong.

If there is any one feature more than another that is wrong with the grocery trade in big communities to-day, that thing is the cost of distribution of goods. This has been repeated so often that it has become a platitude. But every time some progressive dealer rises in his place to propose a scheme wherein co-operation of all is the moving note, one and all, his fellows rise about and inform him in many different ways that what he dreams is not possible for the big city. It would be all very well, they tell him, these doubters, in a small place where everybody is known, but in the big city,—Oh! no; it cannot be. And so those who would try to help the others are classed as wild-eyed dreamers, whose visions are not to be taken seriously.

It doesn't seem to occur to these men of jealous mind that it is only the thought of the thing that appals them. For never having tested co-operation, how can they really KNOW anything about it. But human nature never changes.

Something at Fault.

No one but will admit to-day that something is at fault in our machinery of distribution. At the convention of the Ontario Board of the Retail Merchants' Association in Guelph last winter. G. E. Gibbard, secretary of the Toronto branch, made the statement that it cost more to get the tin of canned beef from the shelves of the grocery store to the consumer than it did to bring the product in raw state all the way from the ranges of Texas and the south-west, to the packing houses at Chicago and elsewhere, and on to the jobber and to the retailer. He wanted the convention to put itself on record as being in favor of working out some better scheme for retail distribution, and the convention would have none of it. Not one of the men who gave the death sign to his motion would dispute his statement, but they simply sat there believing that JEALOUSY had such a terrible hold upon the dealers of all big cities that to attempt any co-operative or centralized delivery scheme was to court disaster. And all this in the name of petty jealousy. What a pity! The toad-like whisperings into the ear of Cain, to be perpetrated down through the ages, until they settled down as councillor to the retail grocer.

Any good scheme of co-operation for the delivery of all the goods bought in all retail grocery establishments of the cities of Montreal, Halifax, Vancouver, Winnipeg, or Toronto, to say nothing of the host of smaller cities, would mean a saving of almost fifty per cent. in the individual dealer's cost of distribution. That is not a guess; it is a statement based upon the results of other cities where some such advanced merchandizing has been worked out. Then the deliveries would be more satisfactory because no one customer of any one dealer could offer reproach that: "Brown will deliver her goods any time." There would be none of that. Moreover there would be fewer delivery outfits on the street, and much less noise and racket. But that is another story.

How is all this to be brought about? you may ask.

The Co-operative Plan.

Just this way. Let the city be divided into districts of say from fifteen to twenty or twenty-five stores each. Let each district have local autonomy as far as its own work is concerned, but make it report to a central bureau in case of big disputes. Let the outfits of each establishment be appraised, and then let the fifteen, or twenty, or twenty-five men buy from the central, dominating city board the necessary horses or rigs or motors, as the case may be, to give to their district just so many deliveries per day. There would not have to be any central shipping centre because the goods could be picked up at the store doors.

Now then multiply this one organization many times over, according to the size of the city, and you have the whole plan. The central organization would be run by officers elected by all the grocers using the service, and these men during their term of office would be supreme. To the treasurer of the body the individual dealer would have to pay in a sum based upon the valuation of his delivery, and the amount of work the concern would have to do for him. The whole thing would be quite automatic. Any profits there would be after expenses of operation and cost of new outfits had been accounted for could go back to the men using the service.

That is the co-operative idea of delivery. It has been tried over and over again in many parts of the United States, and has, where carefully managed, generally proved a success. In some cases it has been wonderfully efficient as is evidenced by the city of Adrian in Michigan, the history of which was published in The Canadian Grocer about a month ago. In that city they have the delivery down to such a system that they even make considerable money out of the waste paper that usually goes to waste about the store.

The Centralized Way.

Then, of course, there is the other, or the centralized delivery system, by which a private man or company does the town's delivering. This has been working to splendid advantage in several good-sized communities, the last large convert being the city of St. Thomas. The writer has been in several towns where this method of delivery is used, and in every case the merchants were enthusiastic over it. There were many of them ready and willing to prove by figures that the proposition had cut their delivery bill in two, while the worry was all gone forever. You couldn't get any of these men to admit that he would want to go back to the old style of distributing goods with all its attendant worries. But there were many of these self-same men who came out flat-footed with the statement that the only thing they could have done to make the system more satisfactory was to have adopted a co-operative. But even as they would make this assertion they would remark with a knowing laugh, "but then we couldn't have done that; there's too much petty jealousy in this town."

There you are,—petty jealousy. And it is supposed to be a relic of the dark ages.

Societies and associations if they never did anything else, have justified their existence in the effect they have had of causing the members to keep this same petty jealousy in the background, while their deliberations were going on. And the meeting of these men always made for a better state of affairs. Now it's up to more men to attend the association meetings, and it's also up to some good big dealer to come out in favor of some scheme to save money in the distribution of goods. The trade demands it of him. Who will be the man?

Dividends in Careful Order Writing

How Systematic Clerk Can Save Great Amount of Worry to Other Departments of Store Organization—The Confusion that Follows in Wake of the Careless Salesman Who Trusts His Memory.

By H. T.

Taking an order over the counter or at the telephone is worthy of more attention than it receives from the average clerk. Every sale begins with the giving of an order, and the delivery and payment depends to a large extent with the clearness of the clerk's writing and the information his sheet contains.

An order should give first of all the date of the purchase. Next comes the name of the purchaser with initials, then the street address and lastly the articles sold. In addition, it would be well if the order check gave the name of the clerk who received the order and of the time the goods were required by the customer. When system is aimed at by the grocer he should strive to leave no loopholes by which his plans might come to grief.

Think for Future.

It is self-evident that the clerk should exercise great care in his work. It is true he may frequently be in a hurry, but that is just the time he should realize his position and be particularly cautious that his work is correct and will be clearly understood by those who later handle the check and its duplicate. "A stitch in time saves nine" may be well applied to the grocery business. A few extra seconds or a minute spent with a customer will provide for that care which prevents mistakes.

Where is the grocer who has not on his list of customers several Browns, Smiths, Henrys, Davidsons, etc.? Why it is more often the case that these names appear in triplicate. Therefore it is not to be denied that there exists a danger of sending one family's order to one of the others, thus arousing the suspicion thereby, that other mistakes are being made. Articles are charged to one family that were ordered and received by another, and many other forms of mistakes occur from time to time simply through carelessness.

A Few Examples.

In those stores where the salesmen do not put up the orders particular care is necessary, but where the clerk receives and prepares the order he often trusts to his memory for items that should have been put on his order slip. Examine example No. 1. Mrs. F. W. Whyte enters the store and takes from her handbag a piece of paper. She is apparently in a hurry. The clerk knows her and simply puts down her name without the initials which identify her from the other customers of that name. Her first order is for one line of soap, but the clerk trusts his memory to save time and probably scrawls "soap" over the leaf. He is not positive that the carbon paper is in its proper position. He may have to copy the order for the bookkeeper after Mrs. Whyte is gone, not having provided against such a loss of time before writing a word.

Mrs. Whyte leaves the store and this clerk is called to the nearby phone for another order, and by the time he begins to make up the Whyte order his memory is crowded with the goods Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Brown and other customers have asked for. In a morning rush he may have written all his orders in a manner similar to that of Mrs. Whyte.

The Other Way.

It is such a simple matter to have a customer wait a few moments to arrange the order book that no reason exists why she should not be content to bear with you. The customer should know or should be reminded—if it were necessary—that it is to their interests that mistakes be avoided.

Geo. S. Phelps waits on Mrs. Whyte. He gets the customers name and address first. Then he takes the order, giving the name of each article, the amount asked for and the price. He probably suggests one or two lines and finally asks when the goods are required. This he marks at the bottom. The customer turns away and Mr. Phelps puts the date on the check and his name on it or the number by which he is known in the store. He then tears off the check and glances over the duplicate to make sure it is legible. He puts the check on a particular fyle.

Example No. 2 suggests the appearance of this check. It goes on the rush fyle and is sent out that morning. The delivery man coming in finds the parcels in the place for immediate delivery and does not need to ask any of the clerks about the individual orders. The information he requires is on each order sheet.

The Order Fyles.

A customer may not want her groceries until the afternoon. The order is marked 4 p.m. or 2 p.m. as the case may be and is placed on the afternoon fyle. She may not want it delivered until Tuesday afternoon and it is marked Tuesday 3 p.m. And so it goes. One clerk should be delegated to watch the latter fyle that none of the orders may be overlooked. The general staff can take care of the others.

Protects the Bookkeeper.

The duplicate of Mr. Phelps' order goes to the bookkeeper, who can read it quickly and again no time is lost. The office has a complete record of the sale. There is no room left for questions by the customer. If she loses her order sheet the office has its mate, and it is known that Mr. Phelps was the clerk who received the order. All this detail presupposes that the grocer desires system in his business, and if he has system of any kind it should be complete. All the effect is destroyed if loopholes remain here and there. A chain must be strong in every link, and the grocery business is important enough to demand systematic methods in every department.

HAD TEN REASONS.

A Kentucky grocer offered prizes of from $5 down to $1 to the customer who gave the best reasons why the consuming public should patronize his store. Many replies were received, that of the winner being :—

Because—The high quality of their goods is commensurate with the price paid.

Because—They never fail to "Deliver the Goods."

Alberta Dealers Petition Government

Lethbridge Business Men's Association Circulates Petition Asking Legislation to Amend the Existing Exemption Ordinance That Collecting of Debts May be Easier—Boards of Trade to be Asked to Take up the Fight—An Old Law.

Lethbridge, June 8.—The following petition was circulated early this week by Secretary Cope of the Lethbridge Business Men's Association in an endeavor to induce the Alberta legislature at the next session to change the law so that the collecting of debts would be made more easy. It is felt that the exemptions now in force are much too liberal, and boards of trade throughout the province have been asked to take up the matter.

The Petition.

The petition of the undersigned, representing the retail merchants and professional men carrying on business in the province of Alberta, respectfully represents.

(a) That many business and professional men are defrauded and suffer losses by reason of unscrupulous debtors taking advantage of the delays, leniency and costly procedure of the present law.

(b) That merchants, business men and professional men being unable to collect accounts are thereby discriminated against.

(c) That the present exemption ordinance was passed at a time when this province formed part of the northwest territories and at that time this country was sparsely settled and the conditions such that it was thought to attract by such legislation every class of settler, however unworthy, and to offer to delinquent debtors from older countries practical immunity from obligations incurred by them and that conditions have now altered so that it is no longer necessary to hold out such a bait to undesirable immigrants, but that it is in the interests of all classes of the population of the province that a proper regard be had for obligations deliberately incurred, and that the incuring of debts be held to imply a corresponding duty to pay the person extending credit.

Injury of Curtailment.

(d) That the curtailing of credits in a farming community, particularly as regards the necessities of life, necessarily injures the class that legislation such as is contained in the exemptions and similar ordinances is mainly designed to protect.

(e) That the exemptions ordinance is in its provisions so wide and comprehensive that it offers equal immunity to all classes as regards goods and land that are only necessities of life to a particular eclass.

(f) That the exemptions ordinance does not put a restriction as to value on exempted articles, so that a debtor who is not willing to pay his debts may be well able to do so and may be possessed of thousands of dollars of carefully selected property and yet be immune by exemptions.

(g) That an unwilling debtor may be in receipt of an ample salary over and above his living expenses to satisfy his creditors, and yet, if such salary is payable at intervals when not more than $25 is due, or, in case of collusion between the debtor and his employer, such salary is not attachable by any process of court, nor can it be reached by any process, such as obtains in England and the eastern provinces, by way of examination of judgment debtors and collection orders.

The Request.

Your petitioners, therefore, pray:

1. That the exemption ordinance be amended by allowing exemptions only to a fixed amount in the aggregate and by allowing exemptions of particular articles, such as farming implements and machinery, homesteads and livestock, only to those debtors who are actually and mainly engaged in making their livelihood by the use of the said articles or farms, and that no greater exemption be allowed for the price of board or lodging or clothing than are allowable to a tenant in case of distress for rent.

2. That when an attaching order of debts is served on the employer of a debtor and the debtor continues in such employment, the judicature ordinance be amended so that such order shall operate as a continuing attachment until the debt is satisfied.

Limited Exemption.

3. That no exemption in the case of attachment for debt be allowed of more than $25 per month, and none at all in the case of debts incurred for board, lodging, food or clothing.

4. That the time for entering a dispute to small debt summonses be reduced from twenty to ten days in the case of debtors served within a radius of thirty miles from the place of issue of the summons and that small debt actions be automatically set for trial at the next sittings of the district court to be held after the expiration of ten days after service of the summons.

5. That court and sheriffs' fees and poundage (except mileage) be abolished in small actions.

6. That a collection act similar to the English debtors act or corresponding to the acts in force in the eastern provinces, be enacted.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

License for Salmon Packers in the Old Colony.

St. John's, Nfld., June 8.—The Department of Marine and Fisheries has decided that salmon packers in future, must have a license like lobster packers. The object is to get after packers of inferior fish. Every packer will be given a number, by which he will be identified in case of bad fish or poor pack. A few years ago this plan was adopted with lobster packers, with marked success, the prices paid being much higher, and the quality up to the standard.

The Newfoundland Board of Trade, alive to the situation has appointed inspectors for this other of our products, and their services are available to anyone needing them. While the rigid cull and strictness of these inspectors has caused some grumbling among packers, still they are beginning to see that in the end, they are bound to benefit. The price realized will be better and the quality passing the inspectors will leave no room for complaint.

Fish exports to date are about 15,000 lbs. behind last year. Stocks held in the city at present are small, and new fish coming along will be eagerly sought after, and will command good prices.

At a meeting of the Fish Exporters, H. LeMessieur, for many years in Bowning Bros. mercantile office, has been appointed agent in Southern Europe. He replaces J. E. Ruedell, lately deceased.

CONTRACT ISSUE NOT TRIED.

Wholesaler Discusses Recent Decision of Supreme Court.

New York, June 8.—When the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Dr. Miles Medical Company case was announced some time ago, it was felt, among wholesale grocers in this city, that the decision would have a most far-reaching effect upon the grocery trade, because of its bearing upon the relations between the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer.

The finding still may have a marked influence upon the business relations of all the sections of the trade, but a wholesale dealer who has made a close scrutiny of the text of the document, claims that the contract issue had not been on trial at all, for the reason that the defendant wholesale house had not signed any contract with the Miles Company as to the price at which its goods should be sold.

How Are You Going to Figure Profits?

Being Another Attempt to Set Out Beyond Room for Doubt, of the Value of Estimating Margins From the Selling End—A Transaction in Tea, and Demonstrations of Figuring Both Ways —Slang and English.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Mr. Jamieson's second article, published on May 5, is so courteously fair, and manifestly aims at such friendly controversy as will result in our deriving the greatest measure of benefit from this discussion, that it is a positive pleasure to pursue the subject. A discussion conducted along these lines must surely be good for everybody if the subject be good for anything; and I welcome the opportunity to continue the talks, even though I feel that I am ill-equipped to answer every point made by one who has the technical training of Mr. Jamieson. It is one thing to know a subject and to know it is correctly interpreted; but it is quite another thing to say WHY. If you want to get the scope of that remark, try to explain why two and two make four. In other words, it is easy to "get into deep water."

Ways Old and New.

To say that my respected opponent is right as a mathematician is not so much of an admission. The old style bricklayers were "right" in taking sixteen motions to lay a brick. They had all rules and precedents behind them. But a new way was discovered, and a brick is now laid with four motions. The old way of computing profits, from the cost, was long accepted; but it is now known to be wrong, and is passing away. Mr. Jamieson's mathematics partake of the obsolescent and theoretical; mine of the present and practical. I may not be able to show just WHY—because I do not always know; but I shall try to tell what I am trying to get at.

The Meat of the Cocoanut.

That the grocer should know the rightest and bestest way is proper. It is because he needs a school that these articles are written. He has not the time nor opportunity to go to night school, for he must make his daily living; but fortunately a better way is at hand. He can read here, in the evening, how it is better to figure profits from the selling end, as a logical, simple method—and I shall try to show WHY it is better to figure that way than the other—even granting that he knows all about mathematics, etc. That is the meat in the cocoanut, for the merchants that are and for those whom Mr. Jamieson is turning out.

I should like to have Mr. Jamieson stop right here, and, without reading further, state what he knows and what he teaches about the average expense in the grocery business and how it is arrived at and computed. He must have thought that out ere this, so it should not be hard for him to make the statement—and I for one should like very much to see it stated.

The Fundamentals.

The fundamental point of my method is, that 100 p.c. is the whole of anything; and therefore, an article sells for 100 p.c. of its value. In other words the only 100 p.c. that enters into business is the entire selling price. It is thus manifestly impossible for you to make 100 p.c. margin on any transaction—unless you get your goods for nothing. It is better to take these conservative figures—the whole selling value —and divide what you you receive into cost and gross margin; deduct the expense of doing business and KNOW that the remainder is net margin, than it is to expand your apparent gross margin into absurd figures and run the risk of miscalculation thereby.

Transaction in Tea.

Take a package of tea which sells for $1, and which costs 70c. That is 30 p.c. gross margin. The average expense of doing business is, say, 12 p.c. Thus you have 18 per cent. net margin—certain, sure and indubitable. Any slight variation here and there in your expense is well cared for and you are always on the safe, conservative side. Computing your gross margin on the cost you would have 43 p.c. and you would have to deduct 13.63 p.c. plus, leaving the fictitious net margin of 29.37 p.c. I say fictitious because at the end of the year you would have to find your sales, and deduct therefrom your expenses, and then figure your profit for the year on the remainder. Then your final profit would appear as a wider percentage, but you would not have a dollar more money; hence, the wider profit would be fictitious. It would also be misleading to the keenest computer for he would always feel safer in withstanding the loss of margin on sugar, flour, etc., than he should have any right to feel. To feel that way is to rest on false security. In the instance quoted you will have 18 p.c. figured my way—the correct way, I should say—while by Mr. Jamieson's method you would seem to have 29.37 per cent. There is a quicksand in those wide figures.

The Strange Advertisement.

A short time ago I saw an advertisement wherein a certain line of articles was offered at special prices "one hundred per cent. below cost." What did that man mean? What was in his mind? Was he giving the goods away? In what other way could he quote at 100 p.c. below cost? Would not 100 p.c. wipe out the entire cost?

Suppose a merchant should run along a year and sell $10,000 worth of goods. Let his gross margin be $2,200, and the cost of doing business $1,400, leaving a net profit of $800. Computed on the sales of $10,000, this would read: Gross margin, 22 p.c.; less expense, 14 p.c.; leaving net profit, 8 p.c. As Mr. Jamieson suggests, it would read: Business done, $7,800; gross margin, 28.20 p.c. plus; less expense, 18 p.c. minus; leaving net profit of 9.80 p.c. plus. The dollars would be the same; but the effect would be somewhat different. He would find his margin exceedingly wide and his expense—meaning, always, expense, depreciation and all other proper charges —excessive; also, his net profit unusually good.

Inviting Disaster.

He would be apt to feel that he was making too much gross margin, which was holding back his business and thus enhancing his expense; and he would be liable to cut his margin to correct the evils he imagined, thus inviting disaster. In the multiplicity of little transactions which are turned in the grocery business, it is mighty easy to lose $800, or any other net profit; and only the closest and most carefully conservative figuring will yield success.

There is much to this subject and much even in Mr. Jamieson's article which I shall have to leave for next issue; but I feel like touching ever so lightly on his suggestion that the earlier English is "purer" and more beautiful than the "slang" of to-day. I must say, I prefer the slang for two reasons. It is more expressive and it is up-to-date. In fact, the slang of to-day is the English of to-morrow. Thus do custom and usage lead, as aforesaid. Of course, we can get into a lot of things foreign to Store Management in this discussion. They would be interesting and no doubt instructive; and I therefore promise not to digress after this, but I must give one or two examples of expression of ideas for the judgment of the general reader.

THE RISE IN LEMONS.

Less than one month ago lemons were selling at from two-fifty to three dollars. To-day they are quoted from four-fifty to five by most dealers, and there are some who believe that the ultimate price will be even higher than that. New stocks calculated to relieve the situation seem slow in arriving in the country.

The situation that made this high market possible was a peculiar one. The month of May, this year, was unusually warm, with few exceptions, over practically the whole Dominion. The taste for the cooling drink accordingly developed early with amazing rapidity, and stocks of lemons held by retailers melted away under the call, like snow in a chinook wind. This was about the twentieth of May. The market at once stiffened and quotations commenced to creep higher. There arose a grumble from dealers everywhere at first, because it was felt that importers were manipulating a situation that lent itself admirably to rising prices, but this discontent soon vanished under the realization of the steady requests from almost everywhere.

Now June is ushered in and although there have been one or two chilly days the month bids fair. Accordingly there will soon be anxious looks being cast towards the lands whence the lemons come if the condition of tensity is to be alleviated. As has already been said, there are many importers who believe that the price of lemons will be higher before it is lower than it is now. But it all rests with the primary markets and the strength of the sunshine.

LICENSE FOR SALMON PACKERS.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries of Newfoundland has decided, that it is necessary if the unscrupulous packer is to be reached, that the salmon men must work only under a license. Accordingly each man has been given a number by which it will be easy to trace his pack. This was tried a few years ago with the lobster packers and has been generally conceded to be a distinct success.

Canada has already provided that the salmon packers of this country must conform to regulations similar to those imposed on Newfoundlanders, all in the interest of a more uniform pack. It appears to be a step forward, being calculated to weed out packers of inferior fish. In Newfoundland, to further the scheme, the Board of Trade has appointed inspectors, available to all, and it is reported that most of the packers are using the service. There has been some grumbling because the standards set by these Board of Trade men is high, but the packers now seem to be looking ahead to the better prices for the pack.

The work of the Board of Trade inspectors constitute almost a government inspection, and the goods they pass are accordingly treated with respect. The dealer is sure to be a gainer by this.

THE ILLICIT COMMISSION.

In this editorial pronouncement given below the Hamilton Herald takes up the interesting question of "illicit commissions." The Canadian Grocer drew public attention to this matter nearly two years ago and since then there have been frequent expressions of opinion from different parts of the Dominion. The article follows :—

"Very many people in this country—probably a large majority of them—do not know that there is a Dominion law which makes it a criminal offence for any person acting as an agent of another to obtain, or even to attempt to obtain, a secret commission for doing something or refraining from doing something in connection with any business which he is transacting as agent. It is also a criminal offence for any person to give or agree to give any such agent a gift or reward as inducement for him to do or refrain from doing something in his capacity as agent.

"This Dominion statute was enacted two years ago. It was designed to suppress or at least check the secret commission evil which flourished in every branch of industry and commerce and in most of the professions too. It still flourishes. Probably the reason why the statute of 1909 is almost a dead letter is because so few people are aware of its existence. It is well, however, for people to know that it is still alive and may at any time be put to use with unpleasant results to petty grafters.

"The reason why we assume that but few people are aware of the existence of this law is that only a few days ago a Hamilton lawyer gave evidence of this ignorance. In the capacity of agent, he brought a legal advertisement to this office for insertion in the Herald, and demanded for himself 25 per cent. commission on the cost of the advertisement. Of course the demand was refused, whereupon the lawyer took the advertisement to another city paper, in which the advertisement was duly published. Whether he got his commission from the other paper we do not know, but it is pretty certain that in demanding it of the Herald he committed a criminal offence and exposed himself to severe punishment. We assume that if this lawyer had been aware of the existence of the "act to prevent the payment or acceptance of illicit or secret commissions and other like practices" he would not have incurred the risk he did ; and if a lawyer did not know of it, is it likely that many laymen would ?

"The act will be found in the Dominion statutes of 1909, chapter 33. It says that everyone is guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding $2,500 or to two years' imprisonment, or to both, who "being an agent, corruptly accepts or obtains, or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain, from any person, for himself or for any other person, any gift or consideration as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do . . . any act relating to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favor or disfavor to any person with relation to his principal's affairs or business." The act also makes it a criminal offence to give or agree to give or offer any gift or reward or consideration to any agent as an inducement to him for doing or forbearing to do what the act forbids the agent to do or refrain from doing. And further, every person who is "a party or knowingly privy to" any offence under the act is as guilty as the principal offenders and incurs the same punishment.

"It is well for every person to be equipped with a knowledge of this law. For almost anybody is liable to be called upon sometime to act as the agent of somebody or to have business dealings with persons acting as agents."

SELLING COOLING BEVERAGES.

Because of the failure of the fruit men to send along a bountiful supply of cheap lemons, that standard raw material for the mixing of cooling drinks, a splendid opportunity presents itself to grocers to commence the building up of a trade in lime juice and other beverages calculated to cool and soothe the palates of heat-distressed citizens.

Ordinarily one thinks automatically of a drug store when the desire to purchase these beverages develops, and because of that the chemists have been able to do quite a thriving business in those lines. There is no real reason for that. Generally speaking the grocer gets the first call for these goods because the purchaser comes first for lemons. When they are unobtainable it should not be difficult to shift the demand over to the lime products, orangeades and other soft drinks.

The druggist should not be allowed to monopolize this field. He has done so too long already. The grocer in the past has seemed content to sit passively by while other dealers develop lines which should have been his exclusively. There are a great many grocers who do carry these cooling drinks but there are also a great many who do not. Now is the time for these to break in and by persistent work to endeavor to swing back the demand into the channels from which it should never have been taken. Opportunity comes not often to any man. It is waiting on the grocer now.

SIXTY DAYS FROM DATE.

Some dealers in the Georgian Bay district complain that wholesale houses are not treating them fairly in the matter of delivering goods. They say that when they buy goods to be delivered at a certain date the wholesaler expects them to pay within sixty days from that date. But they also state that often the goods will come along so late that only thirty days is allowed them to sell the merchandise and make the expected remittance to the house from whence it came.

These merchants believe they are entitled to sixty days from the date upon which the goods were shipped, to make the payment to the seller, and they are asking only what is fair. There has been, palpably, some misunderstanding somewhere. It may be the wholesaler is at fault, or it may be the transportation company or companies handling the goods could explain the trouble if they would, or it may be that the dealers ordered the supply under a misapprehension of facts.

If the dealer is right and the wholesaler wrong, then the grocers of the Georgian Bay district have a reason to complain, and the fault should be remedied without further delay. There seems nothing unreasonable in a dealer expecting to be allowed sixty days from the date upon which his goods were shipped to meet the payment due the shipper. A slight delay would probably be overlooked at each end, but a full month carries the question out of the accidental class.

THE CO-OPERATIVE DELIVERY.

It has been said that "no man by taking thought can add one cubit to his stature," and probably rightly so, but no business man would be guilty to-day of the folly of believing that his enterprise will run along without his giving thought ard much thought to its welfare.

One of the phases of business that are causing him uneasiness to-day is the steady mounting of the costs of getting goods from his shelves to the homes of his customers. The whole cost of retailing in fact seems to be continually increasing and people everywhere are ready to add the modicum of vague distrust to that already making uneasy the sleep of many an honest grocer. So it behooves every dealer to take thought of his business, and to strive earnestly and constantly for some means of reducing his expenses. This is especially true of merchants in the big cities.

There is in this issue an article on co-operative or centralized delivery that would repay a thoughtful and painstaking perusal because it provides to the mind of the philosophical grocer food for meditation. It is an old scene in a new setting ; an idea proved in small communities but deemed unworkable in the big ones, and yet there set down as a real possibility.

A little sober thought often convicts some long-cherished custom or idea of error. Under mature reflection the best, apparently, of all store systems may gain by the introduction of new and more modern ideas.

The sensible man is he who thinks, but the wise man acts on his thoughts and works out for himself the ideas he knows they contain for him.

YIELDING BIRTHRIGHT TO THE WEALTHY.

In the days of feudalism no one would have been angered to see a tradesman bow low before a great lady of either wealth or station. In these days democracy causes the lip to curl and the eye to light with scorn when a similar spectacle is seen. Primarily this is so because in this country there are supposed to be no distinctions of class. Theoretically all men are equal, because all are born free. There is then a great pity in the mind of the well-balanced that any one should so forget his birthright as to "kotow" to the rich or to those of high degree.

But there is more than that to it, and therein lurks the danger to the dealer who so far forgets himself as to allow his inclinations to be seen. The average woman customer of average means know that given a rich woman in the store with her she is going to be neglected. Proud democracy asserts itself at once, to the detriment of that particular merchant, and rightly so.

Just such a case as this developed in a certain store in a certain big Canadian city not long ago. Two woman of the middle class entered the establishment, which does a certain percentage of trade with the residents of a wealthy suburb, and because they did not evince a desire to purchase the store and its contents outright they were treated to the coldest possible politeness while the head of the business scurried about in response to the merest whim of some grand dame who had entered in the meantime. In disgust the two women left the store, and the incident served to regale many a chat around the tea table.

That merchant undoubtedly lacked tact. He also was sadly deficient in judgment, and he lost business by his mistaken and false attitude.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS:—

Clover Leaf Salmon—Price higher.

Prunes—Further advances.

Sugar—Interest awakening.

Montreal, June 8th.—The general grocery markets have been rather quiet during the past week, as far as feature events are concerned. Business remains in a flourishing condition, with the various large houses reporting continued enquiry and no diminution in the demand.

Stocks of salmon are short, and one of the firms that is fairly well supplied quotes an advance this week of 2½c on Clover Leaf. Salmon like other canned goods is in limited supply, with new stocks not to be expected until after the summer months have passed. Speaking of canned goods, the order sent in by one local firm will keep somebody busy filling it. The figures are not for publication, but when it is stated that they are fairly well up in six figures, some idea of the order can be obtained. In addition, this is a considerable increase over their order last year, testifying to the faith they have in the growth of the consumption of canned goods. Although they will not receive their goods for months, that does not prevent them selling them before they even exist, and they have orders for between one-third and one-fourth of the goods they have ordered. That is advanced methods with a vengeance. The price paid by the wholesale firm is an open one. It is stated by those in the business that twenty or twenty-five years ago canned goods had but little or no demand throughout the province. Now it is an appreciable factor and includes not only the vegetables, but also the dearer fruits.

Puffed rice went up on the first of June from $3.60 a case to $4.25. This was referred to some time ago in these columns, to the effect that the advance was going to be made.

Muscavado sugar is quoted at $3.50 and raw crystals at $3.80.

Dried fruits are following the same lines that have been apparent for some time. Prices are becoming higher as supplies diminished, and this condition will probably obtain until new goods are received to meet the demand.

Sugar.—The market is beginning to show signs of awakening, but is still rather quiet. The season is not far distant now, and dealers are inclined to commence preparations for it. The market is steady and firm, with no marked tendency just at present.

Dried Fruits.—The local market is rather devoid of interest in spot stock for they practically do not exist in some cases. Prunes are firm and the same may be said of the other fruits.

A report on the currant crop says recent rains in Greece have apparently done no great damage as the market is inclined to show a slightly easier tendency, particularly for the new crop. Expectations are held out for a good crop but it is early to begin looking upon the situation as anything like being assured. Frost is estimated to have done from 35 to 40 per cent. damage to the raisin crop in California. This will likely make the market later than usual and new seeded are hardly to be expected before October 15th. However, new crop currants for September shipment are offered by cable at 22-6 according to a New York statement and old crop are quoted at 25s for prompt shipment. The present prospects for the crops of Sultana raisins is 35,000 tons against 20,000 last year. Smyrna figs are reported to have been affected by cold weather and the probability now held is for 20,000 tons against 25,000 tons last year.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Business is good in spite of the stiffening market conditions. Tomatoes, corn and peas are moving along most favorably with other lines trailing here and there. Prices are inclined to reach to higher levels. Clover Leaf salmon is quoted at an advance and is apparently in small compass among the trade.

Toronto.—Salmon, which has been mentioned in these columns of late, is the line that is now attracting attention in the canned goods market, and price advances have been made in several lines. Dealers have recently been looking over stocks, and find them to be getting quite low. Especially is this so in the lower grades and supplies of humpbacks, pinks and cohoes are quite small, while other lines are well reduced, and advances of from 5 to 10c per doz. have been made in clover leaf, horseshoe and sockeye. Considerable interest is being directed to to the new pack, and while no prices have been named and will probably not be until August, the opinion has been expressed by several dealers that the opening prices will rule at any rate 50 cents above last year's opening prices. One dealer said: "It is anticipated that the new pack will rule anywhere from 50c to $1 above last year's prices. Packers now have no stocks, while dealers' are less than for many years at this time. This is a lean year in the salmon run and while no definite idea of the pack can yet be formed, with the small stocks now held, it looks like higher salmon."

New pack lobsters are now on the market and prices are higher than last year's opening prices. Vegetables and fruits are receiving considerable attention. Stocks of canned apples are getting quite small and prices are firm.

POINTERS—

Canned Salmon—Up 5 to 10c.
Raisins—Higher.
Canned Apples—Firm.
Peaches—Scarce and higher.

Toronto, June 8.—Business, with the exception of sugar, is reported satisfactory by wholesalers while even that staple is expected to shortly show an improvement. Summer lines are being taken up well and trade generally appears to be in a healthy condition, collections being reported good also. Prices are steady to firm, included in this list being such staples as sugar, canned goods, dried fruits, teas and coffee.

This is an exceptional year in canned goods, the same acuteness applying to all lines and dealers are fearing no carry over in any line. Present supplies of salmon are reduced to a low figure for this time of the year, and are such that prices have been advanced locally 5 to 10 cents per dozen. The anticipation of a higher range of values on the new pack may also have been a part reason for the advance, although the different wholesalers report themselves out of or short of certain lines of salmon. Canned apples have been heavily taxed by the scarcity of dried fruits, so that supplies are quite small and prices firm.

Dried fruits during the past month have gone upward with a speed that clearly denotes the condition of supplies. Prunes and evaporated apples were the leaders in price movement at first, but peaches and raisins have been particularly noticeable of late. The extremely high prices in prunes this year have aroused considerable interest regarding prices on the new crop, but advices so far are rather contradictory.

A local wholesaler said: "Indications are that the price of prunes will go above those now being quoted by packers. The crop has been considerably damaged by frosts and the output will be smaller than first reckoned on."

A broker took a different view of the situation and said: "It looks to me like a lower range of values for prunes than bids so far would lead a person to believe. Our advices are that California will produce the third largest crop so far in its history and it is estimated that its output will be 150 million pounds while the largest yet known was 170 millions. Besides the crop in Oregon will be twice as large as last year.

Sugar.—The only change in sugar from last week lies in the fact that the raw market is a little stronger, and refined accordingly firmer. Refined in New York advanced 10 cents last week, and it is probable that the same thing may happen here when refiners again go to the market for supplies. At least a number of dealers have expressed that opinion, and that they look for a continuance of a firmer sugar market for some time if the European market retains its present position. Beets landed in New York on the present basis would be worth $4.24, which is 32 points above Cuban raws. If refiners find it necessary to purchase supplies from Europe, higher values will accordingly have to be paid. Java is now quoted at $4.05 to $4.10, but supplies cannot arrive before August. Local trade has not shown any material improvement as yet but is expected to do so in the near future.

Syrup and Molasses.—There are no new features in either syrup or molasses. Trade continues moderate in volume and apparently satisfactory to dealers for the season of the year, while prices show no change.

Dried Fruits.—From bad to worse explains the situation in dried fruits. Three or four months ago when prices in many cases were considerably below present quotations, and when supplies were much larger, prices were described as high and the situation as acute. Since then supplies have been gradually growing smaller and prices gradually advancing, so that the situation now is one unequalled in many years. Prunes and evaporated apples are practically done, there are few apricots, peaches are gradually drawing to a close, currants continue steady while raisins are gradually firming up. Dried peaches this week are quoted higher at 13½ cents. Hallowee dates are higher by ½ cent per pound. The strength in the raisin market has been spoken of before, and both valencias and seeded have gone upward in price.

The statistical position is such as to leave no cause for worry to holders of tea, while primary advices are encouraging, and all markets in the East are firm and active. Japans, although the first crop teas are reported about all settled, continue strong.

Elsewhere the market seems to be in a healthier condition, and I believe that the general situation warrants steady prices. Besides, there will be no new stocks available until October and there is a good-sized period of consumption ahead yet."

MANITOBA MARKETS

Pointers.—

Evaporated Apples.—Put up to 17c.

Syrup.—Lower.

Coffee.—Firm.

Winnipeg, June 8.—An active trade continues to be carried on in all lines and the summer business is on with a rush. Wholesalers report during last week that some increase in the summer trade has been noticed and so great has been the general growth for the year that they are all taxed to their utmost to keep ahead of the orders that continue to arrive in large quantities from the country. The heavy rains have been followed by warm, sultry weather, ideal for growing, with the result that crops are rapidly advancing and all are in good spirits.

There is little change in the market this week as far as prices are concerned. The decline of 5c in syrup being about the only change. All other lines are strong and active. Evaporated apples have reached 17c per pound.

Sugar.—A steady demand is prevailing and stocks are being kept up to the limit, as there appears to be a feeling that the market will hold steady for a few months at any rate. Campers are laying in large supplies with the result that the city trade is increased considerably.

Syrup and Molasses.—A decline of 5c is noticed in syrup in spite of the fact that an excellent demand exists. On account of this decline it is expected that increased orders will be received from country merchants. Stocks held are of Green Vegetables.—An active trade continues in this line and some new varieties have made their appearance on the market. Southern vegetables continue to be offered here in large quantities. Native lines are beginning to arrive, however, the latest being asparagus which is offered at 90c. per doz. bunches. Spinach is also present at 17½c per pound. British Columbia is sending in rhubarb in fairly liberal quantities which is being offered at $1.25 per box. Some declines are noticed.

Fresh Fruits.—Some improvements are noticed this week in the fruit trade. A few warm days having added considerably to the retailer's sale. The demand for strawberries continues. Hood River berries, which are from a week to ten days late this year, will be offered on the market next week. Missouri is at the present sending a large supply which sells for $5 per 24 box crate. California black and white cherries are being offered on the market at $3.50 per ten-pound cases.

Butter.—A short decline has taken place in the butter market owing to large supplies arriving from the local creameries. Manitoba fresh made creamery in boxes has been offered in large quantities at 20c per pound.

Eggs.—Supplies of eggs are anything but large and some uneasiness prevails in some quarters over the stocks being received. The market is, however, holding steady at 18 to 18½ cents for ordinary Manitoba fresh.

Cheese.—The cheese market continues to hold steady. Some Manitoba fresh made has been quoted at 10c per pound, delivered in Winnipeg. This supply is expected to increase considerably in the next few weeks. Eastern cheese is still quoted at 14 and 14½ cents per pound, and 14½c for twins. Old Manitoba cheese is offered at 13 to 13¼ cents per pound, and 13½ to 14 cents a pound for twins.

Flour.—There has been a slight improvement in the domestic demand for flour during the last week. Export inquiry has also been fairly liberal, but little direct trading has been done as prices offered are too low. Stocks in retailers' hands are reported to be getting low, and millers are predicting more active conditions in a short while. Mills are not running at full time yet. No change is expected, however, in the prices for the present.

Cereals.—There is little change in the cereal situation. The demand during the week from the east and west has been almost greater than the supply. Montreal and other points in the extreme east were heavy callers. A few changes will be noticed in the price for chopped feeds, $25 per ton being asked for all kinds.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., June 8.—The past week saw few changes of importance in the local market quotations. Sugar from the New York refineries advanced 10 cents. It is thought possible by local dealers that this may go still higher. Other commodities remain the same as last week.

The country market is beginning to brighten more each day with the stock of spring vegetables and early berries and rhubarb. Although vegetation has been greatly retarded because of lack of rain, the dry spell was broken last week, and expectations are that the rainfall will prove of enormous value to the public, and dealers, and the farmers, particularly. New beets and new carrots were brought into the market last week, but are selling extremely high, the price asked being $1.00 a dozen.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, June 8.—Prices generally are lower on the local grocery market this week. Business continues brisk in all lines, with the exception of flour, sales of which are light. Collections are considered good. Butter has declined. The receipts have also increased, and the demand is steady. Most of the butter coming on the market is in small tubs and the prices ranges from 21 to 23 cents, according to the quality. Eggs are more plentiful and easier. Some stock sold down to 19 cents this week, but the choicest bring 20 cents. Cheese is quiet but steady, large (new make), being quoted at 12½ to 13½ cents, and twins (new make), at 13 to 14 cents.

Lemons scored a heavy advance this week. Extra fancy, which were quoted at $3.25 to $3.50 last week, are now selling at $4.00 to $4.50. Fairly large stocks are held here.

TO ERECT NEW PLANT.

Toronto, June 8.—It is understood that the property owned and occupied by E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., fronting on King, Duncan and Pearl Streets, is in the market, and that this company find it necessary to construct a specially designed plant for their use, including a grain elevator. Buildings on the property referred to do not at present meet the requirements of the company as is evidenced by the fact that they are now occupying additional premises on the opposite side of King St.

WILL GO TO TORONTO.

London, Ont., June 8. — The Retail Grocers' Association held a special meeting on Tuesday, May 30th to decide whether they would run an excursion this year or not. There was a lengthy discussion over the question. A great many grocers thought they should stay at home this summer, and have an outing at Springbank on August 23rd, the day the Port Huron grocers come to London. However, the majority wanted to go out of town and have a day to themselves.

Detroit, Toronto and Niagara Falls were the places voted on. As there are so many excursions to Detroit, the grocers thought it best to go to Toronto.

There was some interesting talk on a blacklist for dead beats, and it was decided to hand in the names to the secretary at the next meeting, so one grocer could call another up and find out about any person who might want to open an account with him.

Frank Paul has sold his business to F. A. Silcox, formerly of the firm of Silcox & Smith, St. Thomas. Frank will be greatly missed as he is the manager of the grocers' baseball team. He is also a member of the executive committee.

E. J. Ryan is removing his place of business from 360 Richmond street to 224 Dundas street. The firm name will be changed from Ryan & Russell to E. J. Ryan. Mr. Ryan has been fourteen years on Richmond street.

Stronger Feeling in Live Hog Prices

Prices Steadier—Advance in Toronto — Small Offering the Cause—Montreal Market Stronger—Western States Markets Firm—Increase in Visible Supply of Lard—Good Demand for Cooked and Smoked Meats.

Live hogs are steadier again this week and quotations on the Toronto market are higher, while at Montreal, although there has been no actual advance, a stronger feeling is noticeable. Western American markets are ruling firm, while the English market is steady. The stronger feeling in Toronto is explained by the small run which has caused packers to pay higher prices in order to get supplies, while in Montreal, although hog arrivals have been quite liberal, there has been a keener demand from packers. Trade is satisfactory in most centres, with smoked and cooked meats running into larger consumption.

A dispatch from Chicago says: "The distribution of pork products keeps on a fairly good scale. The export of lard was somewhat less than the preceding week, but the export movement is heavy, and as a result there has been a large movement of lard from this country to European centres."

The world's visible supply of lard, however, shows an increase. According to Fairbank's circular, on June 1st it was 271,262 tierces, as compared with 214,370 on May 1st of this year and 145,750 tierces on June 1st last year. Of this amount, America has 121,062 tierces, as compared with 85,370 on May 1.

The butter situation shows no material change from a week ago. The make is reaching large proportions, and at some centres, the demand is not large enough to take care of all supplies. The West has been making considerable enquiry, but prices have in some cases been out of line. There is no opportunity to export surplus supplies to England. Late advices from Great Britain say that the butter markets are badly demoralized. The make of home, Irish and Continental is large and with phenomenal receipts for the time of the year from Australia and New Zealand, buyers have things all their own way.

The egg market is unchanged. Supplies continue to come forward just as freely, while demand is reported quite satisfactory, while most surplus supplies are being cared for by storage.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Demand for smoked meats is good and the market is steady. Hams and lard are in fair demand. While there has been no actual advance in live hog prices, there is a stronger feeling. The arrival has been quite liberal, but there has been a keener demand from packers with the above result.

TORONTO.

Provisions.—Live hogs are higher again this week and quotations locally are $6.60 per cwt., while at country points they are bringing $6.30 to $6.40. This is not due so much to general conditions as to the small offerings. The English bacon market is barely steady, but prices here are forced up because the packers must have the hogs to keep the factories going. Cooked hams, which are having a big sale just now, are higher at 22 to 23 cents. Other lines are steady, but exhibit no particular firmness.

Butter.—Receipts continue heavy. Wholesalers complain not so much of this as the present lack of demand which falling below supplies, leaves a surplus stock on the market to be cared for. Especially is this so in regard to dairy butter. Such a condition of affairs naturally indicates an easier feeling in the market. However prices are now down to a low level, slightly lower in fact than a year ago, and storage may take care of any surplus supplies of June butter.

SARDINES IN NORWAY.

It is only within the past thirty years that sardine packing has become an industry in Norway. Before they were simply the prey of larger fish, but now they supply employment for thousands of people and food for countless thousands more. The packing is done in the summer because the fish are fatter then. They are caught and packed with great dispatch. "I have known," said one packer, "the fish to be swimming in the fjord at 5 a.m. and by 8 a.m. they were packed and out on the steamers on their way to foreign markets."

Sugar Market to Still Wait Upon the Cuban Reports

Toronto, June 8.— The preserving season is about to open and as retailer's stocks of sugar become exhausted, the future of that market is regarded with a great deal of interest.

There are so many things to be taken into consideration that it is difficult to accurately forecast a sugar market, but according to a local dealer in close touch with the situation, it would seem as if the market would be likely to move upward.

"The sugar situation in New York at the present time is peculiar," he said, "for usually at this time the market is active, while now it is decidedly quiet. New York refiners under the quiet demand are holding off their purchases. They are waiting, in the expectation of a larger output from Cuba than has been predicted. During the past couple of months the estimates have run around 1,500,000 tons, up as high as 1,600,000 tons and down as low as 1,400,000. From present indications with twenty centrals still grinding, it would seem that the yield in Cuba will be well above 1,500,000 tons. But even if it should amount to 1,600,000 tons, that will not be enough to completely supply the refiner's wants and, as a result, outside sugar will have to be brought in, either European or Java.

"At the present time European beets landed in New York are worth $4.19, while raws there at the present time are worth $3.86, so that if refiners find it necessary to purchase European sugar, it will mean that they will have to pay 33 cents above present raw prices.

"On the other hand, there is Java sugar to be reckoned with. Prices for Java to arrive in August are $4.09, ten cents below European so that it may probably prove a check on the market. But even so, and refiners are able to purchase Java sugar, it is at present prices, 23 points above raws in New York.

"Refiners' supplies are not large, and a better demand for refined will soon be felt which should force them into the market for supplies. So from present conditions this looks like an upward movement in values.

"Still, there is some uncertainty regarding this, for sugar is always sugar, and no man can be positive in forecasting the market."

Trade Notes.

Does Advertising Help You Any?

As between two brands of the same product, one advertised to consumers, and the other not, can't you practically always sell the advertised one easier?

Apply your answer to our Dromedary Dates, which are and have been advertised to your customers in all the leading magazines, as compared with ordinary bulk dates. Is there any comparison as to their comparative salability?

And we haven't mentioned one very important fact—their relative attractiveness. Dromedary Dates, selected fruit, clean and moist in a tight carton; and bulk dates, exposed to the dust and sold from a broken and crumbling bundle.

The carton means a good deal more in dates than it means in most other things.

We also pack ROYAL EXCELSIOR and ANCHOR BRAND package dates.

Uncertainty in Wheat Quotations

Speculation Big Factor in Wheat Market — Uncertainty of Values During Next Six Weeks — Flour Steady — Millers are Not Predicting Any Change — Trade Not Particularly Brisk—Bakers and Dealers are Using Up Present Contracts—Cereals are Unchanged.

It was pointed out in the last issue that speculation is always a big factor in moving wheat quotations. Even in the face of the excellent crop prospects, wheat has advanced considerably during the past week, but values have again dropped back. During the period of high quotations there was some talk of advancing prices on flour and some Western Canada mills even did advance them 20 cents a barrel, but there has been no general change, while most millers, with present conditions existing are not predicting any upward movement in flour values, unless wheat is forced by speculation.

While domestic trade may be considered fair for the season, there is no particular briskness in either home or export business. Bakers and merchants are using up present contracts, while with the present good prospects for the future they are not making any new contracts.

The next six weeks will be interesting to all who are concerned directly or indirectly in speculative operations on the wheat market. To outside observers the greatest interest will arise from the uncertainty of values, depending not so much upon crop prospects as upon the actual operations of a group of manipulators at Chicago, and especially upon one Lichstern, who has some 15,000,000 bushels, more or less, of cash wheat for which he must find a market within the period named. Conditions themselves, as given in the general news dispatches, would belie reports of damage, and in any way it would be just as well to hold something in reserve.

Crop conditions as reported so far seem to be good. Winnipeg this week reports ideal growing weather throughout Western Canada, and one dispatch states they have enough moisture for a month.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—With the wheat market exhibiting a stronger feeling there is a firmness in flour that is quite noticeable. The primary market has been making fair advances, but flour prices remain unchanged. There is a good steady demand reported, and on the whole the flour market appears to be in a healthy condition.

TORONTO.

Flour.—From $1.00¾ per bushel as reported last week, wheat advanced until on Monday No. 1 Northern was quoted at $1.03½, the highest figure for about three months but values have since fallen. This upward movement was caused by speculation on other markets, particularly Chicago, local dealers expressing the opinion that with the present conditions of the world's crops, these advanced prices were not warranted. Flour is steady under present prices for wheat, but in the face of present conditions, local dealers are not predicting higher prices for flour at least for a time, unless speculation forces wheat values upward.

THE HAMILTON PICNIC.

Hamilton, June 8.—The committee in charge of the picnic of the Hamilton grocers to Niagara Falls, on July 19, recently paid a visit to that resort to spy out the land. The manager of the park and his assistants cordially welcomed the visiting delegates and gave them the most positive assurances that every convenience will be placed at their disposal on that day. Accordingly every energy is being brought to bear to make of this year's outing the largest in the history of the trade in the ambitious city. Trains will be run over two lines of railway, and the committee is sparing no expense. "Ed." Hazell is chairman.

A LITTLE BIT more care in the making and baking results in Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas being a good deal better than the next best line.

Simple But Effective Ways to Advertise

Methods by Which One Retail Grocer, at no Expense, but Only With a Little Work, Contrived to Advertise His Store and Goods—The Cleaned Boulevard—Value of Well-dressed Window and of Interior Display—Graduated Water Glass for Christmas.

By a Grocer.

Now there are dozens of ways for a grocer to advertise without going to the expense of paying a printer if he would only use his head a little.

I want to set down the simple way in which I advertised my place last winter to passers by. The street I am on has a five foot sidewalk and a three foot boulevard. Now naturally when shoveling snow you would shovel it on to the boulevard only, but I kept my boulevard clear as well as the sidewalk. Persons passing would be attracted to the clean boulevard then to the store. On Saturdays when I would buy my week's supply of charcoal and have it piled neatly on this cleared space, this drew attention from both sides of the street and I reaped the benefit from this cheap advertising.

Getting a set of rubber stencils and printing your own tickets and show cards is another cheap and effective method of advertising. You may say the stencils cost too much. They are dear I will admit but printing price tickets, etc., for my neighbors has more than paid for mine. Well displayed goods in your store is another way to advertise. And one of the best is a well-dressed window often changed and not too crowded.

Another idea is to get a small rubber stamp made with your name and address. Keep it so handy that if a new customer comes in and buys a few things you can put your stamp on the goods; if your goods suit, the customer does not have to look all over the street for your store but just looks on the wrapper, or bottle or tin, or whatever you may have stamped your name upon.

If you keep a horse and rig see that your harness is clean, the brass polished brightly and the waggon clean and bright. It is not necessary to spend money on this, use lots of water. This does not cost much, then, see that your driver has a clean collar, clean face and hands and if he uses an apron see that it is clean, for you cannot get better and cheaper advertising than from your outfit and driver.

Don't stick to calendars every year for your customers. Get rather some useful novelty next season, something that is useful to every housewife, something that she will save and look after and at the same time use. Don't wait for travelers to come and show you their samples of novelties, look around, keep your eyes open.

The best advertisement I ever had was a water glass with my name and address and alongside my name a graduating measurement scale so that the housewife could measure her flour, essence and other things in. This did not cost me as much as a poor calendar and was appreciated to a much greater extent.

TO MAKE VEGETABLE DEPARTMENY PAY

Some of the Things Absolutely Essential for the Proper Handling of Green Stuff—Knowledge of Buying and Gauging Demand—The Necessary Care—Methods That Might Be Followed.

Proper handling is essential if the vegetable department is to pay a profit. In many stores the money disappears in spoiled goods and those that have to be sold at reduced prices.

It is not meant that the dealer should hold out for full price on his vegetables when they should be moved. It is the wise grocer who knows when a line should be moved regardless of cost. But proper buying methods and careful handling of vegetables will reduce the amount that have to be sold at cut prices to a minimum.

Proper buying methods consist in using judgment so that you will not find yourself with left over and unsalable goods on hand. Because you had a larger demand to-day than you could supply does not signify that you will have an equally large demand to-morrow. This is where many grocers begin to make mistakes. Encouraged by a big trade one day, or week, they order a larger supply for the next, the demand is not as large and they are left with unsalable goods.

How to keep green stuff looking fresh for the longest time is also a question puzzling many dealers. There are those who say it should be put on ice at night, while others maintain, that only makes it wilt faster when taken off and put on display again. It is true that the stuff will not stand many warm nights, so that some method has to be used to keep it fresh. A good way is not to put them directly on the ice, but in some upper part of the refrigerator where it is only cold enough to keep them fresh without freezing. In this way they come out almost as fresh as when they went in, and can be sold along with the fresh goods.

Vegetables must be handled as quickly as possible and for this nothing is better than good display. People buy them mostly on sight and they should be shown in the right manner. Make your display as attractive as possible, which can be done by having each kind sorted out by itself and arranged neatly and by allowing no stray leaves or other accumulation to lie about.

Keep all green stuff sorted over and looking salable. Do not stack them up in great piles so that they "heat" in the centre. The loose leaves should be plucked from lettuce and the stem part cut close. Asparagus should stand on a thoroughly water soaked sack doubled four times. Cabbage should be trimmed and celery washed and the yellow leaves pulled off. Radishes and beets should be displayed with the leaves lying down. Occasional sprinkling gives a refreshing effect.

FORMOSA SUGAR IN CANADA.

Sixteen Thousand Bags of Unrefined as Experiment.

The Tokyo Nichi Nichi reports that the Ensui Port Sugar Company of Formosa, has contracted with a certain sugar manufacturer in Canada for the consignment of unrefined Formosan sugar amounting to 16,000 bags at six yen per bag as an experimental shipment. This is the first instance of Japanese sugar being exported to Canada, though the trade has before now been considered by Japanese merchants, but never realized until the decision has been formed by the Formosan Sugar Companies' Union to extend the market for their production not only to China, but also to India in competition with Japanese sugar.

It is thought that it will not be difficult for the Formosan sugar to find a market in Canada provided freight and the customs tariff do not make its export unremunerative. Hitherto a prohibitory duty has been imposed on sugar exported to any country which is a member of the Brussels Sugar Union from a country which is not a member, but Great Britain decided last year not to collect such duty on Japanese unrefined sugar exported to Great Britain and her territories. Therefore the Formosan sugar exported to Canada is now exempt from the prohibitive duty heretofore imposed on it.

Practical Methods in Retail Stores

London Dealer Intends Stocking Patent Medicines—Bulletining New Goods—Value of Store Equipment—Montreal Merchant Pleased With Cash Register—Vancouver Man Talks of Spice Receptacles—Interior Display in Regina—A Bookkeeping Machine Pleases.

Bulletin Latest Goods.

Chatham, Ont., June 8.—John McCorvie & Son make a practice of bulletining their latest "specials" in their show window. For this purpose cards about 8x18 inches are used, each card calling attention to a single item, the cards being pasted in the window in a horizontal row, just below the level of the eye. Among the items recently bulletined were: "Rhubarb, 2 bunches 5c.," "Green Onions, 3 bunches 10c.," "Good Butter, 20c. to 22c. lb.," "Cooked Ham, 30c. lb." White cards are used, the lettering being done with a lettering pen and being of conspicuous size. The bulletins are especially helpful in announcing the latest prices in fresh vegetables, butter, eggs, and similar lines the prices for which are constantly shifting.

To Stock Patent Medicines.

London, June 8.—Harry Coates, corner of Stanley street and Wharncliffe Road, South London, will carry a stock of patent medicines in future. A druggist who has conducted a branch store in the Coates block is giving it up, and Mr. Coates will make use of the cases which he happens to own. The Coates store is already a sub-post office, has a shoe department (due to Mr. Coates' connection with the shoe firm of Coates, Burns & Wanless), and the ice cream parlor inaugurated last year is starting out again with a large patronage.

Believes in Cash Register.

Montreal, June 8.—The value of a cash register is fully appreciated by J. D. Boileau, a Montreal grocer. Doing a cash business as he is, it is of special importance. His bookkeeping is reduced to a minimum, a receipt is given for every purchase a customer makes and pays for, the register is safe and if the clerks are honest the proprietor need not worry about having all the money at the end of each day showing the earnings for that day.

There are methods for finding out whether in the absence of the proprietor sales are being registered. The grocer with a register need not worry about customers questioning particular payments and sales. The register's receipt settles that point. The machine is so compact and reliable that it commends itself to the trade, and Mr. Boileau has expressed himself as greatly pleased with the service his register has given him. He thinks that it is simply indispensable to a cash business.

The Spice Receptacle.

Vancouver, June 8.—"There are several reasons why I installed spice receptacles in my store," said a local merchant to-day. "In the first place they present an even and attractive appearance compared with the tins in which spices originally come, which are of all sizes and heights, making an uneven and unsightly appearance when on the shelves. Then with the receptacles you have a place for every spice and every spice in its place. The receptacles are also airtight which means a great deal, retaining the full strength of each spice much longer than the ordinary tin which generally will not close tightly, and in some cases will not close at all, thus affecting the contents."

Value of Display Racks.

Regina, Sask., June 8.—"Interior display is an important factor in making sales," said a merchant of this city the other day, "and one of the most convenient arrangements for this purpose is the display rack. Having the different steps, it allows a number of lines of goods to be displayed at the one time and also in an attractive manner. Another advantage which it has over some other lines of fixtures is the fact that it can be moved easily to any part of the store. If I want a display in my canned goods department, I can place it there, if I want one in the biscuit department I can change it to there or to any other portion of the store I wish. It has also been of use to me when I want to arrange a window in a short time, for as soon as placed in the window, the trimmer can start to arrange his goods without any trouble in arranging the necessary platforms."

The Oil Tank.

Fredericton, N.B., June 8.—A grocer of this city in speaking of his oil tank says: "I find the self-measuring oil pump besides a time saver, a money saver also. In the first place there is no spilling from the measure or when emptying it into the customer's can. A simple operation and the can is filled from the tap with the required amount. It requires only the one operation and the can is filled without loss of oil or of time. The tank being closed in and the oil shut off from the air is also another big saving. Before I purchased this tank I kept careful account of my oil for a month and found that I did not get as much out of the tank as I put in, a great deal disappearing by evaporation. However, with this closed in tank this loss is done away with and I believe that it is fast paying for itself. Especially in a grocery store, where food is handled, this is a real necessity so that no oil will be spilt about, or that the clerk's hands may not be covered with it."

Guards Against Leaks.

Halifax, June 1.—A local grocer takes particular care that no leaks may creep into his business that might eat up a portion of the profits.

Speaking on the subject recently he said: "I instruct my clerks to be constantly on the lookout for any way in which I might be losing money. I know that in many business establishments large amounts are lost annually by not giving attention to the matter of these small leaks which may creep into the business and which in many cases go on unnoticed and unremedied. Quite often I go on a tour of inspection from cellar to garret and very often pick out flaws which when remedied mean more profit. Some time ago I found that in the case I had, the cheese dried out a great deal, and by purchasing a new cheese holder I found that this was overcome and I believe that the new case has nearly paid for itself already in the amount it has saved."

Uses Sample Booklets.

Peterboro, June 1.—Very often manufacturers' samples and booklets when sent or left with the merchant are set in some back corner and made no use of by the retailer. A local grocer believes that when handling a line of goods that everything possible should be used to increase the sales for that article. Following this argument he is continually sampling his customers with some line which he does systematically, giving them not only to regular customers but to everyone in the neighborhood. He also uses these to advertise his own store by stamping his name on all samples or booklets before they are sent out. In this way when the customer, uses up the sample, they know where they may secure more.

Featuring Picnic Goods.

St. John, N.B.—Local grocers of an enterprising turn of mind, with the commencement of the warm summer days, which mean a continual run of Sunday school, society, and private picnics, are beginning to feature in their windows and on their shelves, the most attractive lines of food-stuffs, which will appeal to excursionists. They realize that the time is opportune to display potted and devilled meats, lamb's tongue, lunch tongue, potted chicken, jams, marmalades, and other preserves, pickles, sauces and soups, lime juice and fruit syrups, and other such articles which are both convenient and useful not only for picnickers and excursionists, but for suburbanites going to their summer cottages, and for campers planning on a holiday trip.

Note particularly the neat appearance of the whole: the silent salesmen, the display racks in the foreground, and the receptacles for goods behind the counter, that they may be kept free from touch of dust. The beamed ceiling, so clean-appearing, and the fruit arrangement near the door to the right are also worthy of attention.

First Canadian Berries on June First

Niagara District Sends Out First Crate — Early for Canadian Article — Lemons Higher — New Crop Verdelli Will Arrive at End of Week — Limes Higher—Texas and Mississippi Tomatoes on Market

Lemons are quoted higher again this week as expected, as the demand has been good and the markets quite bare of supplies. Verdelli are expected to arrive by the end of the week, and will afford some relief to the market, but the present lack of stocks will make them badly needed. A great deal depends upon the weather, which during the past month has been such as to create a good demand, but a higher basis than that ruling a month ago can at least be expected. The Verdelli lemon is generally higher in price than those received earlier in the season, being a firm and good keeping fruit. Supplies of this kind will be prominent until the fall.

Limes are also higher under temporary scarcity. The New York market at present is bare of supplies, but expects fairly liberal quantities during the week. This is a line, the sale of which it would appear could be greatly extended in Canada by a little more attention by dealers. It is one of the most important producers of citric acid, the juice being highly valued for making cooling drinks, while hotels use it more or less extensively for flavoring fish, meats, etc.

Tomatoes are now being received from Texas and Mississippi in 4-box crates, and are going out well. Stock runs mostly into large sizes. Grapefruit is about wound up, but what supplies are left are of good quality and large in size. Prices are higher this week. Pineapples are selling well at about unchanged prices.

The imported strawberries have been of a little better quality lately. The Canadian article made an early start this year, June 1st being the date that the first crate was shipped from the Niagara district. Supplies are larger this week and prices are tending lower.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Lemons are now at $5.50 with the demand good. It depends largely on the weather, but so far the fruit dealers have had little cause for complaint as the heat has been handed out quite liberally. Supplies of apples are diminishing rapidly. Strawberries are one price to-day and another to-morrow, depending upon more than one condition.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—As expected lemons are ruling higher this week at $4 to $4.50, and the market is pretty well cleaned up. New crop Verdelli are expected to arrive at the end of the week and quotations have been set at $4.50 to $5 for them. During the past month there has been a record demand for lemons, which has been responsible for the cutting down of the stocks. Watermelons from Florida are expected to be added to the collection of fruits on this market by the end of the week, but opening prices will be high. Texas and Mississippi tomatoes in four-box crates are coming along in larger quantities and are quoted at $1.75 to $2. They are of good quality and quite large in size. Grapefruit is firm at present prices. Pineapples have experienced a heavy demand and it continues at about unchanged prices. The first crate of Canadian strawberries was received here on Thursday, June 1st. They have been in quite moderate supply this week with prices ranging from 13 to 16 cents, but no quotations can be made as prices tend to a lower level as the supplies increase. Limes under a temporary scarcity of supplies are quoted up as high as $1.60 per box this week.

Vegetables.—Asparagus is quoted higher at 75c to $1 this week. The season is drawing to an end, this vegetable having ripened very quickly. There is also a firmer feeling in South Carolina cabbage. Canadian carrots are about finished, while parsnips fail to find buyers, even at low prices. Cucumbers are going out well, while there is also a fair demand for beans, beets and carrots. The latter is quoted in boxes containing all the way from 3 to 4 dozen at $1,75 to $2 per box. Potatoes are steady at $1.10 per bag, with the situation showing little change.

Ember Week Brought Larger Fish Trade

Three Days of Consumption Instead of One—Demand Heavier With Fresh the Favorite—Brisk Lobster Industry in Cape Breton—Fishing Season in St. John River Progressing—Mackerel Appear off Nova Scotia Coast—Salmon is More Plentiful—Prices Easier—Cod and Haddock in Good Supply.

Demand for fish received something of an impetus this week with three days of consumption instead of the usual one. Supplies are coming forward quite satisfactorily, and the business according to general reports is good. Fresh fish of all kinds is naturally the favorite, although it by no means receives all the trade. Halibut, white, cod, haddock and salmon are prominent, while other lines are also getting their share of attention.

Mackerel have appeared on the Nova Scotia coast, but are still far off the shore and the netters' catches have been small as yet, but cod and haddock are plentiful. Good catches of lobsters are reported from Cape Breton and the lobster industry there is brisk. Salmon is in fair supply at most of the eastern coast provinces and prices are generally lower.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—With ember week just over the demand for fish was naturally heavier than ordinarily, as there were three fish days, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, instead of the usual one. All told the business was satisfactory, amounting as it did to quite a figure. Fresh fish has been arriving quite plentifully and the prices quoted are reasonable. The price of Gaspe salmon is lower thanks to increased supplies. Brook trout, on the other hand are higher, owing to the fact that they are becoming scarce. It is claimed that the price will not be lower this season. Lake fish of all kinds is coming forward freely. Cod and haddock are not so plentiful. These fish are now in better condition than for some time past and prices are easy.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Mackerel have struck in along the Nova Scotia coast and already several large hauls have been made by American seiners, one vessel having a catch of two hundred barrels. Thirty American vessels are on the coast seeking the fish. So far the local fishermen have taken on a few mackerel. The fish are still far off-shore, and the netters have only caught scattering. For the first time this season fresh mackerel were offered for sale on the local market this week, at 25 cents each. The fish were in good demand.

There has been a big drop in fresh salmon. The receipts were heavy this week and they are now quoted at 20 cents per pound.

Reports from Victoria County, C.B., indicate a great harvest for the lobster fishermen. The catch especially at Meat Cove and vicinity so far has been phenomenal, and as the different fishermen have sold their season's catch at high figures, there is every reason to believe that the industry will be a profitable one.

There has been a falling off in the shipments of lobsters to Boston during the week, but the exports of salmon have increased, twenty-five cases of fresh salmon having been shipped.

The salt fish markets are rather quiet owing to small quantities of cured fish on hand. The schooner Evelyn that sailed from here this week for Barbados, took a cargo of cod and haddock, valued at $27,000.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—There was a slight decrease in the price of pollock, salmon, and cod this week, but otherwise there were no changes of interest in the fish market. Reports received here from Charlotte county are to the effect that fishing is almost at a standstill. Sardines are said to be quite scarce so far, and hake have not struck in in any large quantities, so that quiet times are being experienced by the fishermen.

The fishing season in St. John Harbor and river is progressing well, and though no large catches are reported, the men engaged in the work are bringing some good-sized shad and salmon to the local dealers, and because of the earliness of the market the demand is fairly brisk.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

St. John's.—The price of cod fish now rules higher than for a long time, and with the large rates that can be secured for it, the outlook for fishermen during the summer seems encouraging. Bank fishery will be more largely followed than for many years. The shore fishery will also be largely undertaken and while it was expected that the Labrador fishing would show some shrinkage, it is now believed that this will be less than at first thought. The bankers report fish as plentiful, but the weather is rough, and a number of vessels have been damaged. With the new pack now coming on the market, it is probable that tinned salmon will fall in price. The fresh article continues plentiful, while herrings are also in good supply.

Tea Boom Makes Heart of Grower Glad

Receipt of Old Age Pensions Said to be Responsible for Increase in its Use—History of the Growth of Popularity in This Popular Beverage—Troublous Times of Boer War Days—One Man, One Pound of Tea.

By A. H. M.

At present there is a terrific boom in tea, owing, it is said, to the interesting fact that those in receipt of old age pensions can afford to drink more, and whilst it may not equal the recent booms in rubber and oil, it is nevertheless, causing wise speculators to gather in golden harvests, and, of course, the price is going up.

It was in the reign of Queen Anne that tea first became a popular beverage in this country. But, as the duty was five-and-sixpence a pound, and the price eighteen shillings, it may well be imagined that tea was never tasted, except by the wealthy.

Tea has always been taxed from the very beginning, but in the year 1790 the Chancellor of those days dropped the duty from three shillings to sevenpence a pound, and the result was a tremendous boom.

Alas ! wars came, and up went the tax till, in 1810, it had risen to three-and-tenpence a pound. The duty came down by degrees, till, in 1890, it reached the minimum of fourpence.

Later, when owing to the Boer war, the tax went up again, tea-growers in Ceylon and India were in despair, for the production was so enormous that the price rose but slightly, and the tea-planters were in a very bad way. The worst of the depression came about five years ago, but since then things have slowly mended, until at present there is a boom which makes their hearts rejoice.

Up to the forties of the last century all our tea came from China, where it had been cultivated since the sixth century B.C. In 1820 the tea plant was noticed growing wild in the jungles of Assam, where it made a regular tree forty feet high, and in 1835 the first Indian tea planation was set out.

Soon afterwards tea was planted experimentally in Ceylon. But in that island coffee was the the great crop, and it did not seem worth while to grow tea. It was not until 1869 that the first clearing was made for a Cingalese tea-garden.

In the year 1881 the coffee planations of Ceylon were stricken with the leaf disease, a fungus which, within a very short time, absolutely destroyed the whole industry. Then the planters turned to tea, and within thirty years Ceylon had become the greatest tea-producing country in the world.

In India and Ceylon together there are 900,000 acres under tea, and about eleven hundred thousand people are employed in this huge industry. The duty paid on Ceylon and Indian tea is over four millions a year.

It is reckoned that it takes the labor of one individual for one day to produce a pound of tea; so, although tea will grow almost anywhere in the tropics and sub-tropics, India and Ceylon will always be the main producing countries, owing to their abundance of cheap labor.

In India tea-picking is done by coolie women and children at from fourpence to sixpence a day.

The Building Up of a Fruit Department

Hints by Which This Section May be Converted into Profitable Part of Business—How Grocer Should Plan to Get Most From Each Line—Selling for the Future—Sugar and Sealers.

By a Fruit Dealer.

There are now before the grocer, four months, including June, July, August and September, in which he should be able to convert his fruit department into a most profitable side line. It is advisable that he start early so that he may reap in full the benefits of his season's efforts in this line.

One reason for an early start is that the customer who starts to purchase her fruit supplies from one store early in the season, will continue to find her way to that establishment during the whole year.

From now on, fruits continue to follow one another in succession, there being ample time for the grocer to concentrate his efforts on each kind as it appears on the market. Therefore let him plan how to proceed that his fruit business during the season may be the most profitable.

Oranges and Bananas.

A steady trade generally continues for bananas and oranges the whole season through and they should be given their share of attention. Keep stocks complete, but be careful not to over buy thereby causing a loss which eats a hole in the total profits for the season. Most grocers can display oranges well, but with bananas they are inclined to just hang the bunch up and allow it to go at that. Did you ever notice how much nicer the inside of a hand of bananas looks than the outside? Well, that is a cue for you to work on. Cut off a hand or two and put them along with the oranges—with the bright side up. That's the way you see them on the fruit stands.

Selling Small Fruits.

The pineapple season is now on and the grocer should take advantage of it. He should not be satisfied with selling an odd one for dessert, but he should attempt to sell quantities for preserving. They are a fruit on which there is not much loss by waste, and by proper display and salesmanship, the grocer should be able to dispose of a large number during the next few weeks.

The home grown strawberries will then be making their appearance and he will be able to give his attention to them. Of course at first they will be a little high in price, and will sell only for table use, but the number sold this way should be made as large as possible. Then as the berries get cheaper, he should sell for preserving. Even when the berries first appear, he should tell his customers that he will be handling them in quantities for preserving later on, get them interested and if possible secure orders. These will be followed by raspberries and blackberries which should be treated in the same manner.

Cherries and Peaches.

There are different kinds of cherries and you should select those that will best suit your customers. This information may be secured by a little questioning of customers at the beginning of the season. However, if there is some good kind that your customers have never used, do not be afraid to put a few baskets at least into stock and trust to your ability to create a sale for them. A good idea is to buy a number of cherry pitters and loan them to customers who purchase their supply from you. This might be made a feature in your advertising of cherries.

Peaches, pears, plums and grapes follow after this, with their ripening periods running pretty well together, so that attention has to be given to them all at about the same time. Handling the four kinds at once allows a dealer to make a big display which helps in making sales. If you have not advertised fruit during the season, you should at least do it now with the four fruits at hand. Proper and sanitary methods of display will help at all times of the year.

Selling fruit entails in large measure the handling of sugar as well. That staple is sure to be included in all good-sized orders. And as the preserving season approaches there are sealers to be shown to the busy housewife. Altogether the fruit trade is one to cultivate.

IN SELLING MUSHROOMS.

Mushrooms, both fresh and preserved constitute a dainty for which many grocers should be able to work up a good trade. A line which many grocers have neglected, it is such as will well repay some attention.

A writer on mushrooms said recently: "Many species deserve to be placed beside meat as sources of nitrogenous nutriment. They contain from 20 to 35 per cent. of protein against 8 per cent. in bread, 10 per cent. in oatmeal and 5 per cent. in potatoes."

Mushroom culture in sheds and cellars is now carried on extensively in many districts. Preserved mushrooms are both canned and bottled.

Grocer's Encyclopedia - The Lemon

A Few Items of Interest in Connection With This Widely-Used Fruit—Its Medicinal Value and Many Other Peculiar Qualities—Its Many Crops—Its Manner of Growth and Marketing.

There are so many uses to which the lemon can be put that its sale, in every grocery store, should be an appreciable item. Every dealer should consider if his sales of this fruit are as large as they could be made. In most stores by a little effort, knowledge of the properties and uses of the lemons, the sale of this line of green fruits might be considerably increased.

Not only is the lemon employed in culinary operations, but it is also used to ward off many ills. Lemons are the chief source of citric acid and their cooling and refreshing juice is of special value in in flammatory diseases, as well as for biliousness and rheumatism.

The Universal Medicine.

One man has put it: "They are so near being a universal medicine for all ills as anything can be. Chronic sick headaches and biliousness will disappear if their victim will drink as soon as rising, a glass of warm water with the juice of half a lemon. Lemon juice and sugar, made thick and 'acidy' will cure a cough and hoarseness. It will relieve feverishness and thirst. Lemonade as a drink, in spring and summer will prevent or cure 'that tired feeling.' Hot lemonade, taken soon enough, will break up a cold. Corns will disappear if lemon juice is administered by dropping it on stale bread and binding on them. Lemons used as soap remove roughness from the hands. A lotion, half glycerine and half lemon juice is a perfect cosmetic for taking off tan."

However during the summer months they are in big demand for cooking purposes and also for a cooling and refreshing drink and dealers would do well to give them prominence.

Grows on Small Trees.

This valuable fruit of which there are over thirty different varieties, usually grow on small trees, 10 to 15 feet high. Although of Asiatic origin, lemons are now grown in most warm climates, especially in Sicily, Italy, Spain and Portugal. Large quantities are also cultivated in California and Florida, but their growth in the United States constitutes only a small percentage of America's needs, so that large supplies are annually imported from the Mediterranean region.

The fruit is really produced all the year round, but what is called the first gathering, takes place in October, and this is of fine quality. The fruit collected in November is paler in color and firm to the touch, but quite equal in quality, and of these America takes a large proportion.

The small or damaged fruit of the November pick is used in the preparation of esscence or juice. About seven-eighths are good for shipment and one eighth used for essence. The Nov. and December crops are the most abundant, while January and February yield only about one-fourth of fruit fit for export.

For June Markets.

March and April crops are produced from August and September blossomings, and will not stand a long voyage, but valuable crops may be obtained in May and will keep well in shipment to America. June and July produce that known as "Verdelli," which will begin to arrive upon Canadian markets about the middle of June. They are hard, sound and good shippers. August and September crops are small and produce inferior fruit.

The smallest lemons are generally the sourest. Lemons ripened on the tree are almost valueless, for they become thick skinned and dry, and are apt to rot. Lemon storing warehouses in Italy are, like many buildings in that country of stone, with tile roofing, generally without flooring and are well ventilated. They are provided with long narrow troughs for receiving and picking over the fruit. The lemons are wrapped in thin tissue paper and made up into cases of 300 to 450 lemons. Like oranges they keep longer and better when each one is wrapped in paper to exclude the air, or any circulation of air around the fruit. The boxes should be stored on end and not be packed too closely together, nor in a close, warm room.

When the grocer receives a case of lemons he should pick them over and remove any that have started to rot, as they are liable to spoil the adjoining fruit. While the fruit shows up better when unwrapped, the grocer should be careful not to unwrap too many at a time as they are more liable to spoil when exposed to the air or pressing against one another, while if left too long they will become dry and hard.

A GROCER'S CO-OPERATION

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes gives a lustre which far outlasts all others under the heat of the stove, and that is why it has so many friends that call for it over the grocery counters the world around. We believe that the real live grocer wants to push the goods that please his customers, and that is why we have the hearty co-operation of thousands upon thousands of grocers everywhere. It pays you to push it.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

You Must Realize that an article which has a huge amount of consumer advertising behind it to pull it through the stores, as has

2 in 1

must be a profitable and quick-selling line to handle.

But in addition to this ad-pulling force, "2 in 1" has sterling merit behind it. It preserves the boots and makes them pliable; is waterproof; shines quickly and lasts a long time; does not soil the clothes or clog the brush, and is just now in increasing demand.

You can't afford to be without "2 in 1" on your shelves.

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

H. Hodgson, who is superintending circulation work in British Columbia and Alberta for The Canadian Grocer, writes as follows from an Alberta town :

> "The most of the progressive business men in the towns I covered in Alberta this week, are included in my report, either as renewals or new subscribers. The Canadian Grocer is as well and favorably known in this section of Alberta as in British Columbia."

Western dealers read this paper because it is full of sound, practical knowledge bearing directly on their business—it is one of their most profitable investments of the year.

Suggestions Will Make Sales For You

The grocer who makes definite suggestions to his customers, makes sales as a result. For instance, if you say to a customer: "Madam, a pinch of will prevent salt from becoming hard and lumpy," you set that woman thinking along a new line—and, incidentally, you make a sale. In this space, from time to time, you will find little suggestions worth making to your customers—little suggestions that will help you to make sales. Watch for them.

A Faultless Product

¶ There is no better factory in the world adapted solely to the production of Macaroni and similar pastes than that of Felix Codou in Marseilles, France. Every modern appliance is there—it is scrupulously clean—the original has been enlarged several times to meet the steadily increasing demand from particular people.

CODOU'S MACARONI

¶ Vermicelli, Spaghetti, Fancy Letters and Figures, as well as Macaroni, are the specialties produced—each one has a national reputation for high quality.

Taganrog Russian Wheat is used exclusively—the wheat that yields the BEST results—the wheat that is peculiarly adapted to the desired purpose. "Codou's"—that is the name to think of when the best is wanted.

Stop that Night Work!

The daylight hours should be sufficient in which to do your bookkeeping. And still, many nights each month you are chained to your chair and your desk, posting, totaling accounts, making out statements, doing any one of a dozen things with your books.

You want information about your business, yet you are going the long way around to get it. The short way is the one adopted by more than 70,000 merchants in all parts of the United States. These have found that by the use of The McCaskey Gravity Account Register System their posting and totaling are done at the time the sale is made. They have no statements to make or mail at the end of the month because each sale-slip is an itemized account of the goods purchased and each shows the total indebtedness to date.

The McCaskey System has been approved by expert auditors and accountants as the natural, logical and most scientific method of handling accounts, yet is so simple that with it anyone can keep accurate records of goods bought and sold, merchandise on hand, cash on hand and in bank, accounts payable and any other that may be desired.

Only One Writing

The McCASKEY SYSTEM

First and Still the Best

The McCaskey System cuts out useless bookkeeping, prevents foregetting to charge, prevents errors and disputes with customers over their accounts, acts as an automatic collector, is an automatic credit limit, preventing over-buying and over-selling, and protects the user against loss of insurance in case of fire.

You owe it to yourself to investigate the merits of the McCaskey proposition.

A letter or postal card will bring you information without any obligation on your side to purchase.

A SOURCE OF PROFIT IN ARROWROOT

One of the best gifts of the New World has only recently come to its own in a large way. For a century or more St. Vincent has shipped the bulk of the world's supply because St. Vincent Arrowroot is the best.

Recently, the enormous increase of the use of cocoa and chocolates and the study of domestic science and nursing have brought it into common use among a much larger portion of the people.

There is a large profit for the dealer in handling Arrowroot as it rapidly makes its way among the consumers.

Arrowroot makes delicious Blanc Manges, Puddings, Biscuits, Cakes, etc., and is invaluable as a diet for invalids.

Have Your Wife Try a Bottle

Mexican Vanilla Bean Gatherer

Take home a bottle of Shirriff's True Vanilla to-night. Have your wife use it for flavoring her sauces, puddings and cakes. Get her verdict. Then you'll know how pleased other women - your customers — will be when they have tried it on your recommendation.

Shirriff's True Vanilla is made from first-quality Mexican Vanilla Beans. It is the REAL extract—aged until its strength, flavor and bouquet excel all others. Very economical — a little drop goes a long way.

You are doing your customer a good service in persuading her to try Shirriff's True Vanilla in place of extracts which are vanilla in name only. There is a good profit on each bottle of Shirriff's True Vanilla. Each bottle you sell is another step gained in the "goodwill" of your customer.

To Cut the Cost of Operation in Cities

How the Question of Reduction in Cost of Distribution Has Been One of the Principal Factors in Formation of Most of the Great Trade Organizations—The Latest Example—How Scheme Could Be Worked Out in Great Centres of Population—Both Sides of Case.

By W. J. W.

In making public the announcement that a five million dollar capital merger of baking establishments in Montreal, Winnipeg and Toronto had been successfully launched, the general manager considered one of the important savings in each city that made in connection with the elimination of individual deliveries.

> "In Toronto, alone, said he, there are three concerns whose rigs cover practically the same ground every day. We will change all that and have the one delivery do for all."

Get to the Facts.

It may be true as has been often claimed that individual delivery is one of the best weapons by which the retail grocer in the larger cities meets the competition of the mail order houses. Still it often happens to be a fact that some one's word has been accepted by all as the very essence of truth, when as a matter of fact a little experimenting would have proved the contention to be little more than imaginary. It may be so in this case. It might happen that city customers of city stores would be glad to find the same system in delivery applied to the average retail grocery establishment.

There is no disputing the fact, however, that the tendency of all businesses to-day is to simplify the distribution of their products as much as is possible. This trait is noticed in every phase of business life at the present time. In practically every merger or amalgamation, and in the formation of great individual companies, the cost of delivery is one of the things given marked consideration in the discussions around the directors' table. It is regarded as a considerable factor in connection with the setting of prices down to the level at which the company hopes to smother all competition.

The Cost of Distribution.

It was the question of distribution that formed one of the chief reasons for the organization of the oil trust and the steel trust and many other equally well-known trade amalgamations in the United States. It was deemed to be folly that so many individual concerns should be covering the same ground day after day when a more or less simple arrangement would bring all this under one head. Of course there were other considerations, but this was one of the really essential points. Anyone who is at all familiar with the working out of these vast trade machines need not question the tremendous savings effected by these arrangements. In Canada the same condition is apparent. Mergeritis is in the air. New amalgamations are being effected constantly and in every one of these there is to be found the statement that saving in distribution was one of the prime objects sought after.

Applies to Retail Grocers.

If this applies to the big industrial corporations it also applies to the army of retail grocers in every city of consequence in the Dominion. The smaller ones could manage perfectly well with a small number of uniform outfits covering the entire city probably four or five times a day. The problem becomes an altogether different and more complicated one when cities of more than fifty thousand population are being considered. Then it is necessary that such a community be divided into a number of districts with boundaries clearly defined, but all working together under one central management. That may appear difficult, but in reality the working out of such a scheme is comparatively a simple matter. At least it would be if the retail dealers would bury for a while the petty jealousies that keep them from working in unison.

In the Big City.

Take one of the main business streets in Montreal, Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver or any other city of large population, and consider the number of dealers there are in the space of probably two or three blocks whose delivery outfits cover practically the same district every hour and every day in the year. How comparatively simple it would be for say twenty of these men, ten on each side of the street, to come together and agree to have all their distributing work done by one set of delivery vehicles.

Take Brown and Jones with establishments on either side of the street. Each of them would be delivering parcels up any given street nearby practically the same time every day. Wouldn't it be a lot easier for, say, Brown's rig to do the delivery for both of them provided Jones was assured that no advantage would be taken by the driver of Brown's outfit. Then multiply this by ten or fifteen and the easy working possibilities of the proposition present themselves. The difference would be that not one of the grocer's but an independent driver working for all fairly would be in charge of the distribution of the goods.

One Man Does Work of Two.

It has been clearly demonstrated in many other localities that under such a system one man can do and does do the work two have been accustomed to do in the past. This is fact. If it can be worked to a happy conclusion in a small city it can be so developed in the large, provided the districts are not too large as to be unwieldy. So far as can be gathered the principal reason advanced by retailers so far opposing such a proposal has been that their driver in many instances was the one man of the establishment to meet and deal with the customer every day. Fear was expressed that if the personality of the individual driver was removed that his proprietor would suffer in loss of business in proportion. Those who are in favor of the co-operative or centralized delivery scheme admit this up to a certain point, but argue that this would only apply for a given period and would soon be automatically controlled by the individual preferences for goods sold in individual stores. Not many dealers would oppose the idea of one system taking charge of all their work.

Freedom From Worry.

One of the benefits frequently mentioned by dealers who have fallen in line with such a delivery scheme as this have mentioned particularly the relief they experienced at being freed from all worries in connection with their horses and rigs and through the discontent of customers at neglect in the delivery of some little article. Another thing upon which they congratulate themselves is the freedom from worry on Sunday as to whether or not the animals had been properly looked after at the close of the heavy Saturday work.

They also mention particularly the relief at having only one delivery to worry about on Saturday evening and appreciate the regular hours at which the other runs are operated during the day. The goods are made ready about the time the delivery rigs are due to call and in a few minutes the floor is cleared and preparations being made for the next run. The regular runs also eliminate the necessity of keeping the help in the store longer than the regular closing time. These are the things which they mention apart from the saving of expenses in the service. Roughly speaking, one estimated that the new scheme of distribution cut his delivery expense in half. To such a man it would be useless to talk of the selling power of the individual driver. He was satisfied if every store was given an equal chance by the men on the rigs. As for looking after his own trade he relied upon the excellence of his goods to do that for him.

Two Sides of Medal.

Broadly speaking then the chief objection to co-operative or centralized delivery system is to be found in the belief in the individual dealer that his trade will suffer through the elimination of the driver. There is also the conviction on the part of the retailer that petty jealousy would render impossible the successful working out of such a scheme. Against this there are arrayed the outspoken words of praise from men who experimented and found the new order of things a splendid success. They admit an absolute freedom from worry and a saving in store costs. They do not admit the probability of their business suffering in the slightest to the change.

In the big cities it remains for representative men to investigate this question.

INFORMATION FOR BUYERS.

Supplied to the Trade by Sellers.

Albert Greenberg, traveling representative of Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, was in Toronto during this week on his way to Western Canada with Christmas goods, novelties and samples of other lines handled by this firm. His display of samples at the Queen's Hotel was particularly fine, with goods of Polton & Noel, J. A. Sharwood, Batger's, Fry's Lime Juice Cordial, etc. Among the novelties are musical plates and steins which will undoubtedly prove popular among Western merchants

Old Country manufacturers are realizing more and more the importance of visiting the Canadian field when placing their goods on this market. At the present time Howard W. Symington, of W. Symington & Co., Market Harborough, Eng., manufacturers of Symington's Soups, is in Canada with a view to studying the conditions, and before returning he will see the entire country. This is the popular method to pursue, because the manufacturer is able to secure first-hand information regarding this market, such as methods of distribution, size of packages, retail prices, etc.

This is a view of a section of the new Vanwart store in St. John, N.B. It shows the passage way from the grocery to the provision department. The tall cash-register at the front and the attractive vegetable-display fountain farther back are two features of the store equipment of this establishment.

An Absentee and His Efficient Staff

Obligations of Dealer to the Members of His Staff Revealed in Letter From Successful Merchant to His Chief Clerk—Urging Him on to Fit Himself for Higher Things—The Kindly Advice—Place and Value of Neatness—The Man Who stayed on But Did Not Grow.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

While we business men are mentally dwelling on our troubles and the difficulties we have, especially with "help," many of us fail utterly to recognize one very important duty which it is incumbent on each of us to perform.

I refer to our obligation to give those under us an intelligent insight into the business and a fair chance to learn it. While vigorously kicking about what we fail to get from others we seem seldom to stop to question whether we are doing what would fairly entitle us to get more than we now get. It is my opinion that most of us get all we have coming to us.

A Good Investment.

But I have run onto an exception in a merchant who always has taken time to teach his assistants, with the result that, on the average, he has good assistants—young men who grow up with him and stay with him for years : so the time spent in the education of the clerk would seem to have been a good investment to this man. This is the more remarkable because this man is an absentee, a man of many interests who visits his store only at intervals, so he is under the necessity of maintaining an efficient organization. He must necessarily have men and boys in his business on whom he can rely implicitly. The fact that he does this successfully, shows that it can be done.

A Letter to Henry

It was my privilege, a short time since, to see and take a copy of a letter he had addressed to one of his "boys" after he had paid a periodical visit to Anderston, as we shall call the name of the town. I copy the letter below :

My dear Henry :—I am writing to you in this personal way to cover some things I have been thinking about very seriously since I saw you last. You probably know that many things strike us from a new angle after we have been away and obtained a different viewpoint ; but I think you will also know that all of us must CHANGE and GROW, or we get into a rut and never amount to anything because we fail to make PROGRESS. That is what I want to write about.

Man Who Never Grew Up.

Ten years ago Gregory & Co. opened the finest grocery store in Anderston. It is the finest store there yet ; but the NEW STORE, about which you know, is being planned on lines that will make it far and away better than the present store and it is going to need in it MEN who are built on the same lines. The present—that is, TO-DAY—is not a minute too soon to get ready for the change and the growth which that change must bring with it.

You have been with G. & Co. over nine years, I think. You might be said to have "grown up" in the business—only, you have NOT GROWN. It is because you have not grown that I write. You must "spruce up" in a great number of ways so that you will fit into the place that must most certainly be filled by SOMEBODY in the new organization. You must "spruce up" RIGHT NOW, because the place is there the minute you can fill it. Mr. Fisher must have SOMEBODY on whom he can DEPEND to not only kind of keep things going, but STEP RIGHT OUT IN FRONT and assume the entire responsibility of running any part of that business any time —so that he can feel free to plan, and think, and work out NEW IDEAS.

Some Essentials.

That kind of thing is as necessary in any business which is going to GROW as breathing is to the child which is going to grow. And, to do that thing, you must BEGIN RIGHT AT THE BEGINNING and do all that is needed in filling the position.

1. Be carefully NEAT and CLEAN.

This means that your APRON must be changed three or four times a week ; in fact, just as often as needful to keep it ALWAYS looking white, clean and attractive.

It means that your clothes must be neat and clean—clean is the main thing.

It means that you must NEVER wear a collar that is not PERFECTLY CLEAN ; you may have to change it every other day ; but change it as often as needful to keep it ALWAYS clean.

The same applies to your shirt you may have to wear two a week in the winter, and maybe three weekly in the summer, but do it if necessary to keep always NEAT.

Lastly, it means that you must ALWAYS be cleanly shaven ; probably twice a week will do though three times would be better.

Watch Irregularities.

2. Be watchfully vigilant about irregularities and little stealings on the part of the fellows around you.

If it is the rule that no employe shall wait on himself—which is a splendid rule—see that the rule is FULLY and ABSOLUTELY enforced whether Mr. Fisher is there or not. In other words, regard that store just the same as you would if it were YOUR STORE.

Do this in every way—taking the same interest in pushing the business as if it were your business.

I think there have been times when, if that store had been yours, you would have SOLD THINGS OUT which were not sold out but which have been wasted. I do not say this because of any idea I have that you do not INTEND to do just exactly right in every way—because I KNOW YOU DO ; but I say this to point out to you how you must regard that store if you are to be the RIGHT MAN in the RIGHT PLACE there in all the years to come.

Facts About Neatness.

Now let us go back and look over what I have said about being NEAT. This may seem to you extreme and maybe even extravagant. I assure you it is neither. It is just GOOD BUSINESS for YOU. In a small town men grow up and get the idea that "everybody knows them" and therefore they can be a little bit lax here and there—and mostly they look like it. When I get into Anderston I meet men whom I have known for years and I wonder how they can go along the street looking as slovenly as they do. It is much the better plan not to think that "Everybody knows you" in that way ; much better go on the theory that, knowing you as well as they do, they will think a lot more of you and have a much higher regard for you, if you are always neat looking and pleasing in appearance. Do not mistake me. I do not advise any young man to think so much about his looks that he fusses and worries about his appearance all the time. What I mean is that he must take sufficient pride in always looking presentable so that HE WON'T HAVE TO THINK ABOUT HIS LOOKS AT ALL.

For the Good of the Patient.

All of this I assure you I am writing just as frankly as I would say it to you. I write it just as I would tell you that you could do much better on the job of dressing a window than you had done. You know that in either case I should be telling you something that was GOOD FOR YOU. I feel sure you will understand me just that way.

I want you to STEP UP as I have indicated and TAKE THE LEAD over all the fellows about the store. I want to feel that there is more than one man there who is doing SOME REAL THINKING to shape things out successfully. I feel sure you want to be ONE OF US in this way; that you have AMBITION to be more than just a "chief clerk;" that you want to become a part of Gregory & Company. And it is only because I have that ambition for you that I write you this letter.

Write to me—after you have thought this all over—and tell me JUST WHAT YOU THINK.

It seems to me that the grocery business might be improved if more merchants proffered that kind of wholesome guidance to their clerks.

Express Charges Interest the West

Winnipeg Board of Trade Protests to Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada in Regard to Difference in Rates between East and West—The Graduated Charge—Returning of Empty Crates—Where Shippers Gained.

Winnipeg, Man., June 15.—Several changes in express rate charges have been ordered recently by the Board of Railway Commissioners. There are three features of these orders which affect the Canadian West, and which are particularly interesting to merchants.

In the first place there is strenuous objection everywhere in the West as to the rates charged in the West as compared to those charged in the East. In the east the rate is $3 per hundred weight for 1,000 miles, while in the west the rate is $5 for the same weight and distance.

The Reason Why.

The only reason why there should be any difference, and why there was any difference in the past, was because the express business in the west was very light, and a higher rate was necessary to make the business profitable. At present, however this argument is not valid as the express business is enormous in the west and growing rapidly, and there should not be such a difference in the rates between the two sections of the country.

The Winnipeg Board of Trade has entered a protest to the Railway Commission on the matter, and it is understood that several other western boards of trade have also protested, and it is believed that the commission will reconsider the matter.

The Point of Difference.

The second point of importance is the graduated charges which occasioned many reductions. Previously the shipper had to pay the same rate for 6 pounds as he did for 7 pounds, and the same rate for 8 pounds, as for 10. Under the new graduated scales there is now a separate rate for each pound, and after 10 pounds has been reached, extra weight is charged on the 5 pounds basis. Also where the rate is over $2 and under $2.50 the charge for the small package was based on the $2.50 rate and so on in 50c scales to $5. Now a new scale is made providing for every 25c. Where the rate was over $5 per cwt. the charge would be figured on the next dollar, but now the charge will be made on every 25c. This makes a system whereby the higher you get in these rates, and the larger the weight the greater would be the reduction.

Rate on Empties.

Another important point in the charge is the classification clause which went into effect June 1. This affects all merchandise and in some cases there has been an increase and in some a decrease. The most noticeable items affected by the increase are returned empties, and shipments put up in cardboard boxes, uncrated, with the exception of clothing.

In some cases the rate on returned empties is very great. For instance, on some it amounts to half as much as the rate for shipping the goods in the first place. Formerly the rate for their returning was not fixed by law and the company in some cases returned them for five cents each, and in others they were carried free. This the railway commission considered unlawful, and so put the present rate into effect.

The principal feature of the change in the classification is the eliminating of the owners' risk clause. Previously the express companies would only accept four-fifths of the shipments at the owners' risk, but now they have to take the goods, and take the risk for their full value. This is a very important point gained for shippers.

REFUND OF SIX PER CENT.

Comprehensive Plans of the United Stores Association.

The plans of the United Stores Association formed in New York recently with a million dollar capital is to take in all lines of retail business and to spread to all the large cities in the United States taking into consideration not only the retailer but consumer as well through a refund of six per cent. of their purchases. The consumer membership fee is $2.

The inducements to the consumer to become a member of the U.S.A. are as follows: One, an accident insurance policy of $500 carrying sick benefits of $5 a week for six weeks. This policy would cost the consumer $2.50 a year unless it was secured through us.

Two: A subscription to a magazine gotten up particularly for those whose incomes are less than $800 a year. The cost of the magazine to the consumer unless it was secured through us would be one dollar a year.

Three: A six per cent. discount in cash on everything they buy from the retailers who are members of the U.S.A. This doesn't mean grocers alone but each of the 17 lines from which the people secure all the necessaries of life.

The grocer pays to the U.S.A. six per cent. of the cash business he does with the people the U.S.A. sends him. It is understood that sugar and other articles which do not show a reasonable profit will be exempt from the discount.

TELL YOUR CUSTOMERS.

Soak new brooms in strong salt hot water before using. This treatment toughens the bristles and makes the broom last longer.

Ten or fifteen years ago, tea was used only as a semi-medical drink by women in France, but now over 1,200 tons per year is consumed.

The Fort George Trading Co., Brittle & Robbins, proprietors, Fort George, B. C., have opened a general store.

The cod fisheries on the Eastern coast have been poor this year, according to reports. Along the Labrador coast a disastrous failure is spoken of. The cod are said to be migratory in their habits and it is thought the fish have taken to deep waters. There was, however, an unusual run along the Cape Breton shores.

When you talk quality, you must deliver quality. The delivery speaks louder than the talk.

Waited for Customers to Seek New Goods

How Sam Slowman in Hollow Creek Smoked His Corn-cob in Placid Content, While all Around Him Opportunity Languished—The Stocking of Cheese Salt and the Result — The Stimulation of Call for Jelly Powder.

By a Traveler.

If you ever go out to Hollow Creek, you will no doubt find Sam Slowman sitting in his usual place on the upturned packing case near the cracker barrel, discussing the inroads of the Mail Order house or complaining about the tremendous lack of business. There I have found him on every visit during the past two years and there he was stationed the last time I called. There was no one to talk with at the time, so he was spending his leisure moments in sending clouds of smoke from an old corn cob to vanish into the distant corners of the store.

I put down my sample case and attempted to be as business like as was possible in the atmosphere in which I found myself. I might say that I was selling three fairly new food specialties and although I had made several visits I had failed to interest Sam. When he had finished making his usual comment upon the bad state of business, I introduced my specialties to him for the fifth time. I had shown him the lines before so this time I merely enquired if it wasn't possible to sell him an order.

But What's the Use?

"What do I want to buy those things for?" he said. "They would be no more use to me than so much pig iron. Why I never had a customer ask for them in my life, except that Mrs. Perkins who comes down from the city every year. She said they used a lot of them up there, but the people down here never ask for them. A lot of use buying stuff people don't ask for."

There are many dealers who are somewhat similar to Sam Slowman, away back at Hollow Creek. At least they seem to have somewhat similar ideas. When some new line of goods is introduced to them, they put forth the argument that they have no demand for it and therefore will not stock it. Results in this world are not attained without some effort. The merchant cannot expect a line to work up a trade in itself. The demand will not come unless some effort is made by the dealer. The merchant who will progress is the one who can sell over and above actual demand. There are many lines for which a trade could be worked up, if the dealer would first study his goods and then determine to make an honest effort to sell. Then there may be some lines for which the dealer has a certain demand but which is not large. He should not be content if there is any possibility to extend that demand, which is true with a good many articles.

No Demand at All.

I know a dealer who up to a couple of years ago had never sold a jelly powder for the simple reason that no person in that town had asked for them. I struck his town selling that line one day. I called on him and received the same answer as many other salesman have received: "I have no demand for them at all."

However, I believed that if he would put them in stock and make an effort to sell them, that he could do so, and I proceeded to impress him along that line. I told him that it might be true that he had no demand, but that was no sign that he could not make it. I went with him into his house and showed his wife and himself how the jelly powder I sold was prepared, and just how easy it was to make. His wife was pleased and I pointed out that every housewife would be also, if he would demonstrate their usefulness to them. I talked jelly powder to him so much that he gave me an order and was really enthusiastic over them when I left.

When they arrived he made a big counter display of them, in the centre of which was the prepared article. To each customer who visited the store he introduced the powder, told them how it was prepared and of its usefulness, showed the prepared article and stated that his wife had used them and was extremely pleased. As a result many customers were converted to their use and the next time I called he ordered twice the quantity he originally bought.

Stocked Cheese Salt.

Another traveler told me of a case in point in which he had induced a merchant to put in a stock of cheese salt with the result that he worked up an excellent trade for it. When first approached this merchant stated that he had no demand for cheese salt for while there were a number of cheese factories in the vicinity, only a couple ever bought from him and they always took the ordinary kind. The salesman pointed out wherein the cheese salt would be the best for them to use both in regard to the quality of the cheese and cost, explaining to the merchant that by pointing this out to the cheesemakers, he would receive the trade of not a couple but them all. He demonstrated this to the merchant in such a manner that he purchased a quantity.

The merchant sent a sample to each of the cheesemakers in the vicinity, telling them it was especially made for cheese, and that although it cost more, in the end it was the cheapest. He asked them to call when in town and he would demonstrate the fact to them. To each man, he explained the reason why he should purchase, using the same line of talk that had served to convince him. As a result he succeeded in selling to nearly every man and not only was it for the one year, but each succeeding year, they came back to him for supplies.

Thus, he secured a profit that would never have been his if he had continued to contend that he had no demand for it. The same is true in a good many lines. There are a number of articles, a demand for which could be worked up or extended, if the merchant would only take the trouble to study it and its uses and make a real honest effort to introduce it to his customers.

BOARD OF HEALTH PROPOSES NEW BY-LAW

Measure Submitted by Medical Health Officer of Toronto to be Considered by Council—New Law Provides Drastic Penalties for all Infractions, and is Calculated to Prohibit all Outside Display of Foodstuffs.

Toronto, June 15.—Dr. Hastings, the Medical Health Officer of this city, has passed on to the City Council a by-law calculated to affect every produce shop keeper and consumer in the Queen City.

His measure provides that nothing that could possibly be considered an article of diet open to contamination shall be exposed in any open place unless it be protected. The by-law reads as follows:—

"Dressed animals, meat, poultry, game, fish, sea food, fresh, dried or prepared fruits, dates, figs, cherries, grapes, berries, cut fruits, cut melons, cracked nuts, nut meats, and milk, bread and pastry, which are intended for sale for human food, shall not be conveyed from place to place or kept in any open window or doorway or outside any building or in any public or private way of the city unless covered with clean material, or placed so as to be efficiently protected from dust, flies, animals, and all other contaminating influences.

"Every person being the occupant or lessee of any store, room, stall, building, or other place where any article of human food is kept, stored, sold, or offered for sale shall maintain such room, stall, building or place and its appurtenances in a clean and wholesome condition.

"All persons while engaged in the handling of articles of food in any store, room, stall, building, or other place shall wear clean outer garments and shall be free from contagious or infectious diseases, and from any communication, directly or indirectly, with those affected with communicable disease.

"No room in which meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit, or milk, or other natural products are kept, stored, sold, or offered for sale, shall be used for domestic purpose or open directly into any room so used. All shops or stores used for the sale of articles of food shall be supplied with proper lavatory accommodation, which shall be in a separate department from the room in which such articles are kept, stored, or offered for sale.

"The use of newspapers or unclean paper for the wrapping of articles of food. The testing of butter or other foods, or the handling of the same is hereby prohibited.

"Every pedlar or vendor of foodstuffs from wagons or carts, in addition to the other provisions of this by-law, shall keep in his wagon or cart a water-tight receptacle for the wastes of his business and such wastes shall be so disposed of as not to cause a nuisance."

The penalty for non-observance is a fine of $50 and costs or six months in jail.

TO KEEP MONEY AT HOME.

Secretary of the R. M. A. Refers to Co-operation of the Newspaper.

Galt, Ont., June 15.—At a meeting of merchants here last week an address was delivered by E. M. Trowern, Dominion secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association. He referred to the difficulties the association had met, but overcome, in getting their charter, which would go a long way to alleviate their ills.

Another matter touched upon was that of transient peddlers going through towns paying insufficient licenses and leaving with money that should be kept in those towns. Peddlers were leaving Quebec on account of high taxes on them, and coming to Ontario more than ever before.

From his experience, Ontario retail merchants were weak. The merchants should use local papers as they are the salvation of the towns. He recommended the press as great helpers to merchants, and he believed that if a campaign were started in Galt to keep money in town it would be a step in the right direction.

A committee composed of Alf. Taylor, J. Sloan and Geo. Turnbull, Jr., was then appointed to look after affairs and call next meeting.

BY-LAW REFERRED BACK.

Forest City Merchants Oppose Board of Health Measure.

London, Ont., June 15.—At the recommendation of the local board of health the city council at its last meeting considered a resolution to prevent all grocers displaying foodstuffs on the sidewalk. The Retail Grocers' Association had a strong deputation wait on the aldermen in opposition to the by-law. They made several objections, the principal being that there was in the measure no clause prohibiting hucksters, market gardeners and peddlers from showing vegetables or fruit on the ground as they do now on the market, or on push-carts. President Norman McLeod and E. J. Ryan gave addresses on the subject. The by-law was finally referred back to a committee.

Harry Ranahan has leased the premises next the store and is having it fitted up as a fish and poultry establishment. Mr. Ranahan was the successful tenderer for furnishing supplies to the soldiers that go into camp at Goderich, Ont., this month.

EARLY CLOSING OR NOT?

That is the Question of the Moment Among St. John Dealers.

St. John, N.B., June 15.—The agitation bearing upon the early closing movement continues with vigor, and strenuous efforts are being put forth by some grocers and other merchants to bring about a repeal of the by-law, while equally determined efforts are being made by the grocers and others favoring the bill, to have the measure sustained.

Several grocers and other dealers have been reported by the police for keeping open after 7 o'clock, but have declared that they do not intend to close until they have fought the law, and for that purpose they and the others favoring their action, have secured counsel to defend their action. In the store of M. E. Grass, grocer on Germain Street, this week, the Early Closing Association met and discussed the law, and several speakers spoke in approval of it. The outcome is being awaited with interest, not only by the merchants, but by the general public as well.

TALK AFFILIATION.

N. S. Merchants Hold Outing and Meeting at Middleton.

Halifax, N. S., June 15.—The Retail Merchants' Association held a pleasant outing last week at Middleton, some 300 being in attendance. Among the sports were a baseball game and horse races, these forming the chief excitement of the day.

A meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was held in the armories, where addresses on matters relating to the association movement were made by President A. S. Burgess, Vice-president E. Hubley, Chairman W. J. Hopgood, Vice-President A. E. Calkin (of Kentville), Vice-President W. H. Roche (of Windsor), J. C. Grinn (Springfield), F. E. Bentley, of Middleton, and F. J. Clarke, of Halifax.

The matter of affiliation with the Dominion Association was touched upon and this subject will be taken up again at the annual meeting. All were much impressed with the idea that Nova Scotia trade should be "boosted" as much as possible.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Clarke, and seconded by Mr. Orman, and unanimously adopted, was tendered to the merchants and citizens of Middleton for the splendid time given the members of the association.

President Burgess and Vice-President A. E. Calkin both spoke at length on the good work done by Secretary Macdonald in the face of great difficulties in putting the association in the splendid position it occupies.

ADDRESS TO BERLIN DEALERS.

On Co-operation Society Bill—Weekly Bargain Day Not Popular.

Berlin, Ont., June 15.—The evils of the proposed Co-operative Societies' Bill, in the interests of which President Maxwell, of the English and Scottish Co-operative Societies is touring Canada, were dealt with at the meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association meeting here on Monday night, by H. A. Harrington, of Toronto, and the local merchants decided to help along the fight against the bill by a special grant from the association, supplemented by individual subscriptions. Local wholesalers and manufacturers are also giving assistance by subscriptions.

There are indications that the grocers of Berlin may get together and discuss questions of mutual interest.

NIAGARA'S GROWING FRUIT CROPS.

During the past week The Grocer has been in touch with the large growers and preservers of fruit in the Niagara peninsula in order to secure accurate information as to the growing crop.

In regard to strawberries it would appear that the early varieties were seriously injured by the long spell of dry hot weather in May. It is possible that the crop for these, therefore, will only total about 50 per cent. But the same weather has had the effect of bringing on the later varieties, and such berries as Williams, Senator Dunlop, and other late kinds, are being picked almost as soon as the Michels Early and other early lines. Every promise is given that there will be a large crop of the late varieties, although this will depend entirely upon the weather. Like other berry crops, strawberries, which grow so near the surface, cannot withstand a draught for any length of time. Damage to crop is reported to some extent in some districts, but the acreage this year is large and it would appear that there will be lots of berries and that prices will be fairly reasonable in another week or so.

At the present time raspberries look well, as also do currants and gooseberries. Blackberries are only just in the blossoming stage, but from indications it would seem that there will be a good-sized crop, if not a large one.

The heaviest crops of any kind of friut this year are promised in plums and sour cherries, as these two varieties of fruit have set very heavily. Pears generally seem to be light.

Taking the varieties of peaches as a whole there probably will be a good crop. The early Crawfords are reported to be rather light in some districts, but there are so many varieties of the Crawford type grown nowadays, heavier croppers and good fruit, that this makes no material difference to the bulk of the trade.

Grapes have not blossomed as yet, but there seems to be every indication, where the vines have come through the winter, that the yield will be at least fair if the blossoms set properly. A large acreage was seriously injured either by winter frosts or from cold spells late in the spring. But there are numbers of new vineyards coming into bearing which should go to make up this damage, and it is quite probable the crop will not be materially affected and will total about the same as that of last year.

There are, however, several contingencies which are likely to arrive, and it is almost like counting your chickens before they are out of the shell to say exactly what the crop will be.

THE WESTERN GRAIN CROP.

William Whyte, of Winnipeg, vice-president of the C.P.R., and D. B. Hanna, of Toronto, vice-president of the C. N. R., both have prophesied for the Canadian west the greatest crop in the history of the country, and while both of these men are born optimists, the exalted positions they occupy enable them to secure a most comprehensive and generally accurate view of the situation.

Mr. Whyte is reported to have made the statement that six million acres of Saskatchewan land will be nodding with golden wheat this year, and that there will be three million acres in Manitoba, and one million in Alberta, given over to the same cereal. That is a total of ten million acres.

Mr. Hanna has predicted an acreage of eleven million in the whole of western Canada, and he adds that Canada will have one hundred and fifty million busheds of wheat to export after the domestic needs of this country have been satisfied.

All this sounds big, but west of Winnipeg a man would find it difficult to discover a farmer willing to admit the total as too high, now that it has been definitely settled. But there really appears to be good reasons for confidence this year. Reports from the principal growing districts all are charged with the word that crop conditions continue ideal as far as the growing plant is concerned. The growth in both fall and spring wheat is claimed to be remarkable.

But like many other things, the wheat crop depends entirely upon the weather. There seems no reason to doubt that given good growing temperatures and just rain enough the increased acreage sown to wheat and other grains in the western provinces this year will yield a crop never before attained in Canadian history.

KNOWLEDGE A FORBIDDEN THING.

The man who earns most, receives most. That is the axiom that should obtain in all branches of commercial endeavor to-day. But does it?

A few days ago a representative of this paper called on a certain Canadian merchant. He sought to interest the proprietor and then asked permission to place The Grocer in the hands of the clerk. The merchant refused, with the remark: "Really I'm afraid to let my help learn too much because they would then be asking for more money than I can afford to pay."

What a near-sighted soul! He could not have them learn too much, because then it would cost him too much! To him the axiom at the beginning of this article applies in most complete intensity.

The man who earns most does receive most! There is no gainsaying that. He may not get it in one place but if not, he will have it handed to him somewhere else because it is sure as nature. He fills the requirements that command the money.

But in reality he is given nothing. Salaries, in general, are only estimates of the value of the individual to the concern. His selling power is appraised so that the employer knows to a cent just what he is worth to him. Often, however, the clerk has been conducting a quiet, though searching investigation on himself and knows also just what his value is to the concern. Unless developments come, trouble does not long remain away.

This particular merchant would rather have his clerk remain in outer darkness than have him become more efficient only to be more "expensive," and, at last, lost forever. His vision was not keen enough to see that in this case the knowledge to the clerk would result in a far, far greater advantage to the proprietor than it would to the helper, no matter how often his salary was legitimately raised.

KEEP TRAVELERS' DRINK PURE.

Now that summer has fairly arrived the Provincial Board of Health wisely has taken into consideration the matter of the supply of drinking water in public places within the province, and its recommendations in this regard have been approved by the Cabinet of Ontario.

This clause provides that: "Hotels, restaurants, railway trains and depots, boats and all other public places which provide a supply of drinking water for the use of the public shall at all times be required that such drinking water shall be pure and wholesome."

While probably in the first instance this clause was intended to benefit all the tourists who will soon be thronging into the various resorts of Canada during the next few weeks, it will undoubtedly contribute not a little to the health and well being of the army of commercial travelers in this province.

The strenuous competition in which all commercial salesmen are constantly engaged make it necessary that he should be as abstemious as possible, as far as intoxicants are concerned. It is, therefore, important that the water supplied in the hotels on his route should be as pure as it is possible to obtain. This new measure will undoubtedly work to his good.

SHIPPING TO THE WEST INDIES.

Canadian government returns show that the imports of flour known as Canadian into Jamaica have considerably decreased during the first four months of the present year, from the totals reached during the corresponding period last year.

The report also goes on to point out that the difference is made up on goods reaching the island by way of New York City.

It is assumed this falling off is accounted for by the fact that the transportation companies giving a service between New York and Jamaica have cut the freight rates on flour in two. No one is able to say if some of the flour shipped by that route was not Canadian made, or that the sum total of the product from this Dominion was not as great as last year. Only more of it went from the United States than from Canada.

It is a shame that boats plying between New York and the West Indian island, should be able to so reduce their tolls as to corner the carrying trade to that extent when ships from Canadian ports are not able to meet it. It is also shameful that the railways of the United States should secure this difference of traffic, as against the Canadian roads. Surely some means could be discovered whereby the trade we now have with the West Indies should be held, and the dealers there enabled to sell goods, which they are certain came from this country. The distinctiveness of Canadian flour is lost when it leaves the border and is carried in the cars of the railways of the United States to their seaboard. The fact stands out clearly as an argument for better trade relations between these sections of the British Empire, and that ideal should be looked to before it is too late to change the newly established routes.

"WE'RE JUST CLOSING UP."

Accommodation in a store is a valuable asset. It is one of the fundamentals upon which customers turn all the peculiar intenseness of an X-ray examination; it is the worker's hope and the lazy man's curse.

Many and many a good-pay patron has left many a merchant for no other reason than that he had discovered some slight defect in the accommodation he imagined himself entitled to at the store. The thing burns; it sears itself into his memory until it has become an angry sore, and he betakes himself off to some other grocer who soon is undergoing the same close, insistent examination.

Usually enough many of these little eruptions have their birth in the merchant refusing to sell the customer goods after the time for selling had passed. "You can't buy anything more to-night, we are closing up," he tells him. The intending purchaser wanted that stuff, and wanted it badly. He also knew, of course, that there never was a merchant so busy that he could not sacrifice ten minutes of his time to sell goods. He goes away indignant and the canker grows into a definite conviction that his needs would be better looked after elsewhere.

It might pay a dealer to think about this. Of course, there are by-laws in many towns, and agreements in others, which the merchant does not want to break, but surely he could just bend them a little without doing any serious hurt to the by-laws and agreements. It might do himself a considerable good. And then it only means a minute or two.

GOODWILL DEFINED.

"Goodwill is the probability that the old customer will return the the old place."

Seldom has such a definition as this legal phrase been applied to the question of goodwill in a business. It means precisely that and nothing more. Yet meaning that it contains all.

Trade is built up on the goodwill of customers, and it is the continuance of this and constant orders that make any business possible. No man could remain in trade successfully for any length of time unless he had the confidence of the people who patronized his establishment. It is the probability of the old customer returning that is the foundation stone of his business.

Every dealer should attempt to secure the goodwill of his patrons. He should always try never to do anything that would have a tendency to alienate that good feeling. It doesn't matter what his intentions are, whether he would remain as he is or leave the business to someone else, this condition of goodwill is of paramount importance. Should he desire to sell and leave it all it is the good feeling of the customers of his store that is the real influence in the mind of the prospective purchaser. No man is foolish enough to-day to take over any place of business unless the patronage of it is satisfied. So let every dealer think of this definition. Let him bear it constantly in mind and remember that no matter what the future may hold, goodwill is one of the most important points of his business.

CENSUS BULLETIN DEFINES STATE OF CROPS

Season Has Been Favorable for Field Crops in all Parts of Canada—Total Area More Than Ten and a Half Million Acres Sown to Wheat—The Increase Over Previous Years.

Ottawa, June 15.—A bulletin of the Census and Statistics office issued today states that the season this year has been favorable for field crops in all parts of Canada, and excellent reports have been received from all the provinces.

The lowest percentage of condition is made for fall wheat, which suffered from inadequate protection in the winter months, and also to some extent from spring frosts. The areas of fall wheat are greater than last year by 4.50 per per cent., and of spring wheat by 13.70 per cent.

The total area in wheat is 10,503,400 acres, as compared with 9,294,800 in 1910, and 7,750,400 in 1909. The per cent. condition of fall wheat at the end of May was 80.63, and of spring wheat 96.69.

The area in oats is 10,279,800 acres and its condition 94.76, as compared with 9,864,100 acres and 93.95 per cent. condition last year. Barley and rye each show a small decrease in area, but the condition is higher than at the same period last year. Slight decreases are also reported for areas of peas, mixed grains, and hay and clover, with per cent. condition of over 90.

Hay and clover have a reported condition of 91.45 for the Dominion, being practically 100 in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The area of the field crops named is 32,051,500 acres for 1911, compared with 30,554,200 acres for 1910, and 28,194,900 acres for 1909. In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the area in wheat, oats and barley was 3,491,413 acres in 1900, 6,009,389 acres in 1905, 11,952,000 acres in 1909, and 13,809,300 acres in 1910, and it is 15,355,500 acres this year.

The increase of these crops from 1900 to 1911 was 2,663,699 acres in Manitoba, 7,364,315 acres in Saskatchewan, and 1,836,073 acres in Alberta.

A READER.

Edmonton, Alta., June 8.

Editorial Note.—During Christmas and other such festive seasons people are addicted to excessive eating of nuts, with bad results, and come to the belief that nuts are indigestible, but this is true of all foods that are not properly masticated. Nuts are an excellent food and doctors recommend their more extensive use, especially for elderly people. Walnuts and peanuts are rich in proteid and when properly masticated form a valuable food. The holiday season gives a decided impetus to the trade but nuts possess a dietetic value which recommends their use the whole year round.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—I am a subscriber to your valuable paper and read it through carefully every week and find many useful hints.

Will you please tell me how I can prevent ham (both boiled and raw), from going mouldy. I keep it in a glass case, but that does not prevent the mould from accumulating on the hams. I have no difficulty with bacon in this respect, as I have a quicker sale for it.

SUBSCRIBER.

Victoria, B.C., May 15.

Edit. Note.—The only possible cause for mould seems to be found in the closed glass case. It might be that your case is entirely without ventilation and air-proof. In that case it would be possible to account for your goods going mouldy. Usually dealers turn over their ham so quickly that keeping in a cool dry place is sufficient. Maybe it would be worth while to look into the matter of vantilation of that glass case.

Editor, Canadian Grocer.—Would like a few suggestions on how to keep down dust in a grocery store.

M. and A. McLEOD.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., May.

Editorial Note.—These correspondents have raised an important question especially now with the approach of summer and the months of excessive dust. Many merchants have worried over the question of keeping their goods free from dust. Care should be taken in sweeping so that the dust will not be stirred up and distributed on the goods. Several good sweeping compounds are now made which make this possible. Water should not be used to sprinkle the floor as it only makes mud which again turns to dust. Do not push the broom ahead throwing the dust into the air but draw it evenly along with the dust in front. Floors should be oiled often so that there will no cracks in which the dust may gather.

Many grocers have covers for exposed goods while sweeping and some even have them for the shelves. Dusting is also important. Many clerks disperse but do not remove the dust. Something should be used that will take the dust up. Dust from counters should not be swept on to the floors but into some receptacle. Dealers in small towns where the roads are not sprinkled would find it to their advantage to join together and provide for the keeping down of the dust on the business streets.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Galt, Ont., at a special meeting held last week were invited to join the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. There was but a small attendance and the question of affiliation was laid over until September. Alfred Taylor, John Sloan and G. T. Hamilton were appointed a committe? to deal with the matter of re-organization in the meantime.

Many visitors to Toronto intending to call upon The Canadian Grocer, take the most convenient method of getting our address, the Telephone Directory. Through an oversight on the part of the Telephone Company, the latest directory gives the wrong number—111 University Street. The street was recently renumbered, and the entrance to our office is now 143 University Avenue, just the centre of the next block north of the number given in the Telephone Directory.

Montreal, June 15.—One of the grocery staples that has been dormant for some time is sugar and it will not be long until it is moving rapidly through the grocer's hands to meet the demand of the fruit season. Opinions among local wholesalers vary as to the probable action of the sugar market. Here is what one prominent salesman has told his retail friends: "I have no confidence in the idea that sugar is going to go much higher. In the first place, the sugar crop has been a heavy one, and in addition, I feel that the market for refined is now too high when the price of raws is considered. The price of refined is much lower than at this time last year, but so is the price of raws. In fact, the difference in the latter case is greater. True, we are going to have a big demand, but if the price goes up I think it will only be to stir up interest, and when that is accomplished it will fall back." This is only the opinion of the head salesman in one of the largest local wholesale houses. Last winter a great deal of sugar was bought by the trade when the bottom dropped out of the prices, but in the meantime supplies have become exhausted, it is thought, and retailers are now repurchasing and have been for some time. It is stated that buying is only of the hand-to-mouth variety. Whatever sugar does, there is no pronounced feeling among the wholesale trade here that it is going to advance much, even with the new demand.

It is generally admitted that the dried fruit market was never in such a position or condition as that of to-day. There might be a box of evaporated apples in the city, but the writer has no idea where to set out to find them. One wholesaler tells a story of an order to go to the back country and which included prunes. His stock had become exhausted and he was buying very little. He had to pay 16c for the supply he needed, and the prunes were the same as those which last autumn he could buy for 8c or 9c. There is not much use going over the ground again and again. There are few changes to record this week. The market is firm and there is not much interest in it yet.

Sugar—Whether or not there will be any change in the price of sugar during the coming month it is hard to tell, but there is the outstanding fact that the period of heavy demand is all but here. Berries are coming in earlier than usual, and it will be but a short time until home-grown strawberries are plentiful, with cherries following closely. The market is reported steady, with interest growing. Buying has improved, but is still light as compared with what is to come. It seems to be generally held that the trade is not heavily supplied with sugar. In fact, some claim that since January last, when a great deal of sugar went into the retailers' hands, the demand for sugar has been light. In that case the demand is bound to be heavy when the fruit season begins to make itself felt. The sugar market is to pass through an interesting stage in the near future and should be followed closely.

Dried Fruits—Authorities on the California fruit crop claim that present estimates of the coming crop are merely guesses and that nothing positive can be predicted in this matter until after the June crop, which is now about due. Evaporated peaches and apricots are higher this week Prunes of 100's and over, and Bosnias are off the market. The various sizes are down almost to rock bottom as far as supplies go. CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—"What are tomatoes going at now," asked a grocer from Lachute, Que., of a local wholesaler. "One forty-five," was the answer, "but they'll be $1.75 before the new pack is on the market." That was the conversation as heard by The Grocer. The jobber may have meant it and he may not, but no doubt he felt that there was reason for such a movement. Time will tell. In the meantime demand for corn, tomatoes and other lines goes merrily on.

Some of the houses have placed their orders for canned goods, others have not. It is stated that there is nothing doing yet in salmon offerings nor is anything looked for yet awhile.

Toronto.—Salmon continues in the limelight and even at last week's advance is steady, with many dealers predicting further advances in the near future. Local stocks according to reports are down to quite a low basis, with some dealers out of some particular lines. Demand is only normal.

Canned fruit stocks are gradually wearing down to a low level and dealers are expecting no carry over. Wholesalers are found who are sold out of certain lines and there are apparently none who have an overplus. There is practically no blueberries to be had, while conditions in red pitted and unpitted cherries are about similar. Canned apples are scarce and dealers are inclined to ask higher prices. Trade in canned vegetables and in all lines in fact is in small quantities, dealers purchasing for immediate needs only.

POINTERS—

Salmon.—Firm.

Canned Apples.—Firm.

Shredded Cocoanut.—Higher.

Sugar.—Demand more active.

Toronto, June 15.—Business in groceries this week is reported satisfactory. One reason for improvement may be due to the fact that seeding has been pretty well completed throughout the country, and during the temporary lull in work the farmer visits the town more, besides picnic and summer goods in general are now in demand. This branch of trade has opened up early this year, and both dainties and staples for outings are going out to the retail trade. Lighter cereals are also in demand while sugar is beginning to show more life. The season of large consumption has practically opened and the retailer finds it necessary to replenish his stocks which are now well depleted.

Salmon is a line which was spoken of particularly by a good many wholesalers and many dealers are predicting further upward movements in prices. come upon a barer market than for basis with a number of lines sold out, and dealers are inclined to raise quotations. Interest continues in regard to the new pack and even the most conservative express the opinion that opening prices will be somewhat higher than last year's quotations, while there are those who look for the new pack to be 50 to 75 cents higher. One thing is true and that is that the new pack will come upon a barer marvet than for some years. "There is a world-wide scarcity of salmon," said one dealer, "and there will be an immense demand for the new pack. However, packers in naming opening prices will have to consider that if prices are too high consumption will be materially affected. It is to their interests if at all possible to keep it out of the luxury list. Still cheap salmon cannot be looked for."

Shredded cocoanut has recently made an upward movement of from 1½ to 2 cents per pound. This brings prices up to 16½ cents for barrel lots and 18 cents for smaller quantities. Makers say the advance in price is due to the shortage in nuts.

Muscavado sugar is quoted on this market at 3¾ to 4 cents.

Sugar.—While no change has as yet occurred in sugar prices, nevertheless the market is strong and is apparently awaiting demand. A number of dealers have expressed the opinion that the next movement will be upward and that they expect it as soon as refiners have again to go to the market for supplies. European beets now considerably above raws are firm while advices from Cuba state that only 10 centrals are grinding, indicating the rapidly approaching end of the crop. Willets & Gray's Journal says: "We change our total crop estimate from 1,600,000 tons to 1,500,000 tons minimum and 1,600,000 tons maximum, say 1,550,000 tons medium." Figuring on this output, they estimate the available supplies and the probable requirements to December 31st next, and set their estimate of the amount of Java or beet sugar that will be required to that date at 250,000 tons. Demand has shown some improvement locally and is expected to become quite heavy as supplies in dealers' hands are small while consumption will be greater, berries now coming along in larger quantities, while Canadian cherries are also on the market.

Dried Fruits.—The feature of the dried fruit market this week is that no further advances have been made in quotations by wholesalers. A continued upward movement in prices has taken place for some time back and prices are now at an extremely high level and are well maintained. There is no discounting the fact that stocks in general are small and nearly all lines included in this scarcity. Figs are about the only line in which there has been no marked scarcity and stocks of them are now down to quite a low figure. "It is either a feast or a famine in figs," stated one dealer; "some years we will not be able to supply the demand, while another year trade will drop off. This has been a 'lean' year in the demand for figs." Currants seem to maintain their firmness. While nothing definite is known regarding the new crop, some speculation is taking place, and quotations that have been made are 1s. to 2s. higher than the opening prices for last year. Demand for dried fruits just now is inclined to quietude, high prices being to some extent responsible.

Teas.—Teas locally maintain their firmness. There is no special interest being given to them just now, but a fair trade is being experienced. The trade has apparently given no particular attention as yet to Japan teas, so that nothing definite as to how the new standard will be taken can be ascertained.

Coffee.—There has been no change in the local coffee situation, but the firmness is maintained.

Rice and Tapioca.—Trade is steady but on a hand-to-mouth basis. The market conditions are practically unchanged. Tapioca maintains its firmness, the primary markets continuing strong.

Beans.—While trade continues rather slow, prices seem to be quite steadily held. Nothing definite can be ascertained concerning the acreage of beans sowed this year, but the fact that the past year has been quite satisfactory to growers and the pending free tariff on beans should tend to induce bean growers to increase their acreage. "Even that," said one dealer, "would give no definite idea of the crop, for there are many things to be reckoned with between now and bean harvest time."

Olive Oil.—Prices seem to be well maintained on olive oil. According to one dealer the higher prices have curtailed the consumption of the finer oils, a larger quantity of the inferior being used. Nothing definite is as yet known regarding the prospects for this year's olive crop.

LATE FRUIT MARKET NEWS.

Toronto.—Niagara district strawberries went down to 6 and 7 cents per box on Wednesday, with some sales reported at even as low as 5 cents. Large quantities were received, the berries have ripened very quickly under favorable weather conditions, but they were well taken up. Dealers say they do not expect prices to go below 6 cents this week.

Niagara district cherries have also made their appearance, and at a comparatively early date. The black variety in 11-qt. baskets are quoted at $1.00 to $1.25, and the whites at 75c. to $1.00 per basket.

Winnipeg, June 15.—A general increase is reported to have taken place in the grocery business during the week, and the trade is getting out of the rut into which it had fallen during the last month. Crop conditions continue to be ideal so far as the growing plant is concerned, and from all quarters are to be heard stories of the remarkable growth that has been made both by fall and spring wheat, as well as other grain. Seeding has been almost completed, and as a result, farmers are once more coming into town and the country retailer is beginning to increase his trade.

Prices in different lines, especially in dried fruit and coffee, quoted by the different firms, show considerable variation especially in the first mentioned instance. The dried fruit market is almost bare, many houses being completely out of several lines. Reports from California are none too encouraging regarding certain crops, and accounts of recent frosts having affected the raisin crop are in circulation.

Sugar remains firm, and no advances have been made.

Syrup is also holding steady at last week's decline, and there is nothing to warrant any further change in prices for the present.

Considerable improvement has been noticed in the demand for beans and peas, and the market is strengthening somewhat.

Sugar.—Wholesalers have been looking for an advance on the local market in the face of the recent strength. This, however, has not been realized as yet, as stocks held are of fair size, and the supply is quite equal to the demand. It would not be surprising, however, if an advance was to take place shortly.

Dried Fruits.—The state of the dried fruit situation in California to-day is extremely serious, and one which has not occurred for many a year. Practically all lines except evaporated peaches are exhausted, and while there may be a few odd lines scattered here and there, it is almost impossible for brokers to book up full cars. The raisin market is showing considerable strength, and in the face of the recent frost, the new raisin crop, it is claimed, will open higher than at the prices quoted to-day, while apricots are predicted to be at almost prohibitive prices. The prune market is showing up much better than was first predicted, and the prospects are that after the first of the year there may be a decline from the opening price. But as the market is absolutely bare, it would be advisable for merchants to study the situation. The expected advance has taken place in some lines as will be noticed below. Standard peaches are quoted now at 10¾c per lb. while choice are worth 11¼c. A variation in prices exists amongst wholesalers, but the lowest quotations as far as possible are given.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, June 15.—The election campaign in this province has had some effect on business during the past week, and in consequence dealers report a considerable falling off in orders. The lull is only temporary, however, and after the contest is over it is expected that business will again boom. Dealers are now turning over large quantities of fresh fruit. Canadian strawberries are on the market and they are quoted at 22 cents per box. The quality of the berries is superior to the imported varieties. Nova Scotia berries will not be on the market for two weeks or so, and there is a good opening for Upper Canadian berries now.

Sugar is in active demand with the price firm. The trend of the market appears to be upward, and those best posted in the trade say that there is no likelihood of a decline in the near future.

Dealers report a scarcity of strawberry and raspberry jams. The demand of late has been quite heavy and the stocks on hand are light. Canned goods are also in good demand in the city, and stocks are ample to go round.

Eggs and butter continue to come on the market in good supply. The prices remain unchanged. Few old potatoes are left and those who have any in stock are realizing good profits. After a considerable drop in the prices of pork, and lard, these appear to have reached the bottom, and are now beginning to show an upward tendency.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, June 15.—The local market during the past week saw but little movement, prices in groceries and provisions showing but little activity. Lemons have reached a high mark, selling now at $4 and $4.50 per box. In sympathy with the rest of dried fruits, raisins are well advanced, while prunes are becoming exceptionally scarce, and are selling at from 12½c to 14c.

W. A. Graham, general merchant, Brookdale, has sold to H. Meyer.

J. W. Vanatter, a Goderich, Ont., grocer, has gone into the newspaper business in that town.

W. H. Merriman & Co., wholesale grocers, of St. Catharines, Ont., have purchased land at Fenwick, Ont., on which they will erect a canning factory.

Mr. Dupuis, grocer, Montreal, sold whiskey 20 minutes before the legal opening time, and was fined $30 and costs.

THE PACKING OF FRUITS.

Some Drastic Provisions of Old Act Recalled.

It will probably be of interest to retail dealers to know of the conditions under which fruits must be packed and shipped. These are clearly set down by the inspection and sales act, and a few of the most important are given below :

Fruit growers are reminded that the Inspection and Sale Act prescribes :—

That every closed package (box or barrel) must be plainly and indelibly marked with the name and address of the packer, the name of the variety, and the grade.

That the word 'Fancy' or the numerals, No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3, must be used to designate the different grades.

That 'Fancy' grade must be perfect fruit, No. 1 grade 90 per cent. free from all defects, No. 2 grade 80 per cent. free from defects causing material waste, and containing no culls.

That the faced or shown surface must be the same grade of fruit as the rest of the package.

That the minimum size of the apple barrel is : 26¼ inches between the heads inside measure, a head diameter of 17 inches, and a middle diameter of 18½ inches.

That the apple box must be 10 inches in depth, 11 inches in width and 20 inches in length, inside measurement.

That fruit baskets are of 4 sizes, viz. : 15 quarts or more, 11 quarts, 6 quarts, 2 2-5 quarts.

That berry boxes must contain :—4-5 of a quart, 2-5 of a quart. Undersized boxes must be marked with the word "Short."

Note.—The Act provides a severe penalty for the alteration, effacement or obliteration of marks on any package which has undergone inspection.

Provisions and Lard are Steadier

Stronger Feeling in Both Provisions and Lard—English Bacon Market is Firmer—Live Hog Prices Have Gone Upward—Keen Demand From Packers—Good Demand for Hams and Bacon—Higher Prices at Some Points—Butter is a Shade Stronger—Production is, However, Large—Lower Prices in Manitoba—Eggs are Unchanged—Cheese is Steady.

Live hogs are steadier this week, with advances in prices on all markets. Toronto market has lead and there has been a much stronger feeling in all live stock. Supplies have not been overly large and have been in keen demand by packers, bringing the upward movement. Western United States markets have also ruled steady, although arrivals were fairly liberal.

There is, in accordance with the upward movement in live hog prices, a stronger feeling in provisions. There has been a continued good demand from all sources for hams and bacon, and prices have been on the upward move. Lard also exhibits a similar firm tendency, and some advances in price have been noted at some centres.

This general stronger feeling in provisions is traceable to the improved market for bacon on the English markets. On June 8th London reported bacon firm at 52s to 56s. Latest cables set the prices as ruling at 59s to 64s. With the higher English market packers were in a hurry to get shipments there before there would be any downward movement, so that a keen demand for hogs was the result. Differences of opinion exist as to the future course of the market. If English markets continue steady a certain amount of the firmness can at least be expected to be maintained, but there are dealers who think that there are sufficient hogs in the country to keep the prices at a low level. The character of demand will have an important bearing on prices.

If there is any change on the butter market during the past week, it is that a slightly stronger feeling is noticeable in some markets. This may be due to the fact that present butter is such as can be stored, affording an outlet for any surplus stocks. Receipts continue to exceed those for the same period last year, while prospects are bright for a large total production during the summer. Western conditions are now tending to lower prices also. Indeed, Winnipeg reports that fresh made creamery has been reduced to 21c per pound.

The egg situation is unchanged, but prices maintain their steadiness fairly well. Receipts are quite large, while demand is also at an appreciable figure for the season of the year. The warmer weather brings a certain amount of loss to the egg handler, not noticeable at other times.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—An upward tendency in lard and cooked meats is quite marked. Prices are higher, demand shows quite an improvement and the market is brisker. Supplies are none too plentiful according to reports.

Provisions.—Another marked advance has taken place this week in live hogs and quotations at country points have been moved up to $6.75, an advance from prices ruling on May 12th of $1 per cwt. The whole live stock market has during the past week ruled much stronger, with hogs the leader. Receipts have not been overly large and they have been in keen request. In sympathy provisions exhibit a stronger feeling with lard included. Hams have been in good demand and spot stocks have been greatly reduced so that prices have scored an advance of ½ to 1 cent per pound.

Butter.—In general, butter prices show no change. True it is that some firms are quoting slightly steadier figures, explainable perhaps by the fact that present butter being received is such as will stand storage. However the production is large, amounting in fact to more than the demand. Present prospects for the season would also seem to indicate a large total output during the summer months. One good feature is that the quality of the present make seems quite good.

Eggs.—Quotations on eggs remain unchanged. There are no marked features in the market just now. A fairly large arrival from country points is being experienced while demand is also at an appreciable figure. The warm weather brings a certain amount of loss in handling eggs which is not present during the cooler weather. Locally surplus stocks are being cared for by cold storage.

Provisions.—There has been a slight advance in nearly all lines of cured and dry salt meats during the last week. The price of live hogs has been advancing slightly, and select animals are now quoted for $7.00 to $7.25 per cwt. on hoof at stock yards in Winnipeg. Lard is holding firm, and the demand active, and there appears to be no reason for a change at the present time.

Butter.—The recent sharp decline in creamery butter owing to the arrival of supplies from the numerous factories throughout the province that are now in operation, has caused quite an increase in the demand for this grade. The present price is holding at 20c to 21c for fresh made bricks. Bad dairy butter is still present in large amounts, and it is difficult to secure the fresh, sweet, sound variety.

Eggs.—Large supplies of eggs, known as Manitoba fresh, but not guaranteed as strictly fresh, are being received. Strictly fresh eggs cannot be secured in large enough quantities to supply the demand for the city trade. The price paid for Manitoba fresh is 18c per dozen while retailers are willing to pay a much higher price if they could secure strictly fresh.

Cheese.—Offerings of fresh made Manitoba cheese are increasing and jobbers are gradually starting to stock up. The price being offered by them to the factories is 10½c per lb., delivered in Winnipeg. Old Manitoba and eastern cheese can still be secured at 13c to 13¼c, and 14c to 14¼c, respectively.

Poultry.—Local supplies of live poultry are gradually arriving on the market although in pretty small quantities. The supply of spring chickens this year has been extremely light, fowls and turkeys forming the bulk of the offering. Prices are 10c per lb. for boiling fowl, and 14c for turkey, in Winnipeg.

Flour and Cereals Still Unchanged

Situation in Both Lines About Same as a Week Ago—Prices Steady—Mills not Predicting Upward Movement Under Present Wheat Prices—Fluctuations in Wheat During Past Week—Conditions so Far.

The flour situation is practically the same as a week ago. While prices are steady, there is no particular firmness, at least millers are not predicting any higher prices under present wheat quotations, but it is hinted that at this season of the year there is always a possibility of crop news exerting an effect on the market. Most millers seem to be satisfied with the amount of trade being done, considering the season. In the face of the present favorable crop conditions, dealers are buying in small quantities only.

After a week of fluctuating, the wheat market is back at about the same position it occupied a week ago. The movement began by the cereal going higher than it had during the preceding few weeks. The July wheat at Chicago broke sharply on Saturday, declining 3½ cents a bushel, with a further reduction this week of 2⅛ cents. The opinion, there, was that the end had come and that the manipulators had finally concluded circumstances were beyond their control. Others held to the opinion, however, that it was merely a part of the game to shake the weaker element.

Crop reports for the next month or two will be watched carefully by those interested in wheat or its products. Fall wheat is pretty well advanced and so far conditions on spring wheat have been excellent. It will be remembered that towards the end of June last year, dry weather forced the price of spring wheat upward. However, there seems no fear of lack of moisture for a time, but it has to be remembered that it is a considerable time before harvest yet.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—The flour market does not show any change this week. Prices are steady with the demand maintained. There is little to relate at present.

TORONTO.

Flour.—On the whole, the flour situation remains without change, as after an up-and-down season, wheat is about in the same position as a week ago. While millers are not looking for any change in flour prices under present wheat quotations, there is always a possibility of speculation affecting prices of the raw material. Trade continues steady.

Flour.—The domestic demand for flour has been rather quiet during the week and export dull. Prices offered for the latter have been slightly higher than formerly, but they are still out of line. In spite of the fluctuation of the wheat market, the prices for the different grades have held firm, and are selling as follows. First patents, $2.65, 98 lb. sacks; Second, $2.45; strong bakers', $2.25; First class and common grades, $1.25.

Cereals.—With the growth of the spring grasses, the demand for feeds has been falling off in both east and west. In spite of this decrease in the demand, stocks of feed are so light that prices are well maintained. Rolled oats and oatmeal are in good demand, and show no likelihood of falling off. Rolled oats is quoted at $1.90 per sack, standard, and guaranteed oatmeal at $2.40. The wholesale price of cornmeal, which is also in good demand, is $1.75.

The Sardines That Were Never Sold

An Incident or Two Going to Prove That Goods do Not Sell Themselves and That Differences in Price Which Can Not be Explained Are Not Conducive to Sales—The Transaction in Pickles.

In a grocery store not long ago, a customer while making a purchase, inquired the properties of some peanut butter, which was lying on the counter.

"I don't know," replied the clerk in an unconcerned manner. "I never tried it. They use it for making sandwiches, I think."

This was a man behind the counter, being paid wages for selling goods. He had no knowledge of this article or what it was used for. He put forth absolutely no effort to make a sale of it to a customer who was already interested enough in it to make an enquiry regarding it.

How different were the tactics of a clerk in another store and how much more valuable was he to his employer. He understood his goods and their uses and also made a good, honest effort to introduce them to customers. In this case it was also peanut butter that occupied a position of prominence upon the counter. Having completed the customer's order he picked up a jar of the butter with: "Would you like to try some peanut butter, Mrs. Customer? It is excellent for sandwiches for picnics and home luncheons."

What Some Clerks Say.

In answer to her inquiries, he described what it tasted like and how used and was successful in making his sale.

Often, a clerk, asked regarding the kinds of sardines he has, will say: "Five, ten and fifteen cent cans." When asked the difference between them the answer often is: "Well, I don't really know what the difference is. These 15 cent one's must be the best."

One clerk was even heard to say in explanation: "the dearest ones are imported from some other country and it costs more to get them here. They have to be sold at a higher price."

The customer did not feel like paying a high price for sardines merely because they had traveled farther and therefore did not buy.

But there are many clerks who do understand the reason and are able to point out definitely just why one sardine is worth more than another.

Differences Expressed.

"Well, in the first place," one clerk was heard to remark, "this cheap sardine is a larger and coarser fish and is necessarily through its cheapness not sufficiently covered with oil to be perfectly preserved. These dearer ones are smaller and more tender fish, are packed in pure oil olive and well preserved. I would advise you to take the better line, as they are worth the difference in price."

Such a talk on the merits of the different articles was an intelligent one, showing that the clerk had studied his goods and that he knew that quality appealed to customers more so than price.

Selling Pickles.

"How about pickles, Mrs. Customer?" asked a clerk recently: "Here is a high grade line made from the choicest vegetables and vinegar, which I can recommend."

"They look nice," commented the customer.

"Yes, and the taste compares favorably with the looks," returned the clerk. "The Blank brand is notable for its tastefulness."

"How much are they?" asked the customer.

"Fifteen cents a bottle."

"They are a little too dear for me," said the customer.

"Yes, they are higher than some pickles can be bought at, but I think they are worth the difference."

A RALLYING CRY TO BATTLE WITH THE FLY

Season Arrived When Little, Black, Buzzing Pests Commence to Make Themselves Felt—The Goods and Equipment Whose Usefulness is Spoiled—Each One May Carry Millions of Germs.

The season for flies, that pest of the grocery store during the summer months, is with us and the grocer should now take steps to keep the number that visit the store down to the lowest figure possible. Not only does their presence in the store where food is sold, seem particularly bad, but they also destroy food if exposed enough and spoil the appearance of the fixtures and shelvings.

The remedy begins with a careful cleaning up of the premises surrounding the store. Piles of filth and rubbish are breeding grounds of the fly and for this reason, attention should be given to the removal of all debris that might prove an attraction for them. Not only should this be looked after at the beginning of the season, but during the whole summer. Many grocers make their back yard a dumping ground for spoiled fruit and vegetables which attract the flies. A covered barrel should be kept for this stuff and it should be removed at intervals.

The next step in preventing their appearance within the grocery store is a careful screening of all openings. It will pay a grocer to provide these and it should be done early in the season before the little buzzers have secured a foothold in the premises.

Then, measures should be taken to destroy any that may gain entrance. This should be commenced early in the season even while the number is yet small. More benefit is derived by the extermination of one fly early in the season than a great many more later on as their numbers increase with startling rapidity.

Many grocers find their windows almost useless during the summer because being well lighted they are a gathering place for all the flies in the store unless screened off. Of course the smaller the number in the store, the smaller the number that will find their way to the window. Many grocers have fitted the back of their windows with screens, which keep out the flies, allow the light through and also keeps the air in the window fresh so that goods like fruits, vegetables, etc., will not spoil when placed in it.

These screens are generally made up of two or three sections extending from the bottom to the top of the window, that they can easily be removed to allow the window to be trimmed.

A fly in walking about in filth, and refuse can collect anywhere from a few hundred thousand to six million fecal germs on its legs, wings and the rest of its body. That's worth thinking about.

THINGS THAT SHOULD NOT BE.

Smoking or encouraging others to smoke in the store.

Licking your fingers every time you take up a sheet of paper in which to wrap butter.

Leaving goods on the counter after showing them to customer.

Sweeping crumbs and paper off the counter on the floor to be trampled on.

Reading a paper when customers are waiting to be served.

Allowing customers to try to open the door when they have an armful of parcels.

Vinegar and Its Constituents as Viewed by Expert

By A. McGill, Dominion Analyst.

Vinegar appears to be marketed in Canada as Malt Vinegar, White Wine Vinegar and Cider Vinegar, or simply as vinegar, without any distinctive name. It is probable that much of the vinegar offered is fundamentally a spirit vinegar, with additions of flavoring and coloring matter which imitate malt, cider and wine vinegars. There is the further suspicion that considerable amounts of acetic acid, made by the destructive distillation of wood, as a bye-product in the wood spirit industry, are employed in vinegar making, and, of course, without acknowledgement of the fact.

Provided that the acid so used is properly refined, it is identical with refined acetic acid from any other source, and is unobjectionable from the point of view of healthfulness. But, being entirely flavorless, it is not a vinegar, and cannot be sold as such unless artificially flavored; when, if sold at all, it should be honestly labelled as artificial or imitation vinegar. There can be no doubt that the genuine vinegar industry suffers a serious handicap through the unfair competition of fictitious substitutes for vinegar; or that the buyer who desires a genuine vinegar is frequently deceived by the substitution of a spurious article, whether with or without knowledge of that fact by the retailer. Nor can this undesirable condition of things be successfully met until a workable definition of vinegar, in the generic sense, is made legal; and until the various kinds of vinegar which are found in commerce, are recognized and defined by law.

Some of the proposed standard definitions in regard to vinegar are:—

Vinegar is a liquid containing not less than 4 grams of acetic acid, nor more than 8 grams of acetic acid per 100 cubic centimeters; and when sold or offered for sale under a name which indicates a particular source, as Cider Vinegar, Malt Vinegar, Wine Vinegar, etc., it must be actually derived from such source.

Concentrated Vinegar, Vinegar Essence, etc., is a liquid containing more than 8 per cent. of acetic acid, and must contain nothing which, when it is diluted to the strength of vinegar, and used as such, is harmful to health.

When vinegar is asked for, it is held legally proper to supply any one of the above named species. When a specific vinegar is asked for, it is unlawful to substitute another kind, without declaration of the fact.

Pineapples Higher---Strawberries Lower

Pines go up, Instead of Down, as Expected—Strawberry Arrivals Heavier—Prices Lower—Some Arrivals of New Lemons and Future Prices Depend Largely on Weather—Watermelons Well Received—Shipments Small—Large Offerings of Cocoanuts From Primary Markets.

It was expected by most dealers a week or so ago that lower prices would be seen in pineapples, but instead prices are somewhat steadier. From New York comes a report of a higher market also.

One report says: "The bulk of the crop has been shipped and received and each week will now show lighter receipts. It does look as if the market on pines will be well maintained to the end of the season, especially if stock arrives in as good condition as heretofore."

The advent of large supplies of strawberries will no doubt curtail the demand for pines to some extent on Canadian markets.

Lemon prices seem to be fairly well maintained. Demand has been quite good and although there have been some arrivals of new stock on Canadian markets, supplies are none too large as yet. While there may be some November cuts, there is no great quantity so that the market has to depend on New Verdelli for a time. On the way to New York from Mediterranean ports, are 173,800 boxes of lemons for different markets in the United States and Canada. However, one prominent dealer said: "The demand is large even now and with the advent of the real warm weather, with present stocks comparatively small, I expect present prices to at least be maintained." Much depends upon the weather handed out during the next month or so.

Strawberries from Canadian points are arriving in increasing quantities and prices are accordingly tending lower. Reports from points of production seem to indicate a big crop of berries this year, weather conditions so far being quite favorable.

Tomatoes are coming from the south in increased quantities and the tendency of prices is downward. Watermelons from Florida have made their bow to the fruit trade and have been well received. Shipments, however, so far have not been large. Cherries are also arriving while peaches and apricots will begin now to come along, although prices will be high for a time.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—A good steady business is reported. Strawberries are lower in price and Canadian fruit is beginning to be felt in the market. New pineapples of fine quality are going out steadily with the demand good. Apples are nearly done. Bananas are moving along at a great clip. Lemons are a little lower this week, but with warmer weather there will be a different tone to the market. Limes, like lemons, are scarce.

Vegetables.—Asparagus is becoming scarce and will soon be off the market. New Florida potatoes of the best quality jumped in price to $8.50. Scarcity of the A1. kind is given as the reason Tomatoes from Mississippi are more liberal in their shipments with the price down to $1.25. There is a good steady demand of the early vegetables.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Strawberries are arriving in larger supply and prices are gradually tending downward, being offered this week at from 9 to 11 cents, but the changing market makes it almost impossible to make quotations. Prices of lemons have been maintained, and $4.50 to $5.00 is the ruling quotations. Some quantities of New Verdelli have been received but the demand is heavy, so that prices have kept up. There are some November cuts on the market but no quantity. The first watermelons from Florida made their appearance on Thursday last, and are ruling from 50 to 65 cents. Shipments have as yet been rather light. Pineapples are in quite brisk demand but are being replaced to a certain extent by strawberries. Most dealers expected prices to go downward but at present they are unchanged to a shade steadier. Mississippi tomatoes are slightly easier, 4-box crates bringing $1.50 to $2.00. Some small quantities of peaches have been received, selling at a high figure. Both peaches and apricots will start to come along, now, but prices will be high for a time. The summer quarters of the wholesale fruit men at the foot of Yonge street opened on Monday.

Vegetables.—Trade is fairly satisfactory in vegetables, new goods particularly being in demand. Wax and green beans are temporarily higher. The same is also true of new potatoes which are quoted as high as $4 in 2-bushel bags. Canadian new stock will not arrive until July. The situation in old potatoes is practically unchanged, both supplies and trade remaining steady and the present quotation of $1.10 per bag ruling.

Fish - Oysters

The Halibut is Favorite Line of Fish

Good Demand for That Species—Trade in Fresh Fairly Good—Brook Trout Not Arriving Freely—Shad Higher This Week—Mackerel Along the Shore of Nova Scotia—Good Catch Reported.

The warm weather fish business has been fairly good. It is steady and without feature except that last week contributed considerable extra business. Halibut and B. C. salmon are favorites with haddock and cod getting a large share of the eastern trade. Brook trout are advanced in price because of the fact that they are not arriving freely. Shad are higher this week.

Nova Scotia reports that mackerel have now struck in along the shore in large quantities and some good catches have been made. The mackerel are reported a fine run, being of a good size. A large proportion of the catch is being placed in cold storage. Lobsters are doing fairly well, especially on the Cape Breton coast.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—There are plenty of fish of all the leading lines, the only shortage being felt in shad and brook trout. An advance is quoted in brook trout and shad this week. Gaspe salmon is down to 18 cents and is arriving freely.

The demand for fish continues appreciable and is held on a satisfactory basis. Halibut, haddock and cod are freely asked for and are in good supply.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—There is little change in fish from a week ago, prices remaining the same. Trade is inclined to be quiet, which is, however, natural for the season. A fair quantity is being sent out to the trade, fresh fish being the big item. The season of biggest supply for brook trout is over, but supplies are as yet fairly plentiful and large enough to take care of demand.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax—The local fish market is now active. Mackerel have at last struck in along the coast in large quantities, and some good catches have been made. One vessel made a haul of 15,000 fish and another landed 10,000. It is estimated that over thirty thousand fish were landed here this week. The first fish were disposed of for 12 cents each, and about the middle of the week the price declined to ten. The mackerel are a fine run some of the fish weighing from three to four pounds. A large quantity of the fish are being placed in cold storage. There have been several arrivals of dry fish from outside parts during the week, but there are not enough coming in to supply the demand. Prices have been well maintained at all points.

Some of the finest salt cod fish marketed here this week, sold for $6.90 per quintal. Sales of fresh cod, haddock, and halibut are light, owing to the demand for mackerel. Salmon are now coming on the market in fairly good quantities and the price has dropped to twenty-two cents per pound. Lobsters continue fairly plentiful and the demand is good. All the fishermen on the Cape Breton coast are doing well.

WINNIPEG.

Fish.—During the week the first arrival of fresh white fish caught in Lake Winnipeg made its appearance on the market at 9c per lb. The supply to date has been light but is gradually increasing. The demand for smoked fish is still active, and the price holds steady.

NEWFOUNLAND.

St. John's.—From the northern part of the island, reports have been received that along the French shore, where numerous schooners are operating not a fish had been put under salt. Caplin have not come to the shore as yet and on account of the ice pack the fishing schooners are unable to get around Quirpon and up the straits, the course generally adopted when no fish are to be had on the shore. From exploits south there is a fairly good sign and some traps have a few quintals landed, but the majority have little. On the whole the northern cod fishery can be put down as a failure to date. Herring are plentiful, but the fishermen are not catching them, being engaged at the cod fishery. Fresh salmon are also plentiful.

Preparing Sea Herring for the Market

Urged That Adoption of Technical Mode of Procedure of Fisherfolk of Europe Would Revolutionize Standing of Herring—When Fishery was Cradle of Greaterness—The Wealth of a Peru—Sixth Article.

By A. M. Payne.

In no other occupation does the sacrifice of home comfort compare with the fisherman's lot, besides the ever present risk of life itself for the bread-winner. Rarely have more eloquent terms of appreciation been uttered than the words of John Quincy Adams quoted in Des Brisay's History of Lunenburg:

"There is something in the very occupation of fishermen not only noble and beneficent in itself, but noble and exalted in the qualities of which it requires the habitual exercise. In common with the cultivators of the soil their labors contribute to the subsistence of mankind, and they have the merit of continual exposure to danger superadded to increasing toil. Industry, frugality, patience, perseverence, fortitude, intrepidity, souls inured to perpetual conflict with the elements, and bodies steeled with unremitting action, ever grappling with danger, and familiar with death,—these are the qualities which are called forth by the daily labors of the fisherman's life."

The Fisherman's Prayer.

A pathetic figure is the Breton fisherman, standing in his boat before leaving the harbor and with uplifted hands reverently invoking Divine protection. An English rendering of this brief prayer is a touching object lesson of devotional faith:

"Lord, ere we go, to Thee we trust our all;
Thy sea is mighty, and our boats are small."

Other eloquent pens have been inspired by the call of the sea and with a self-denial beyond all praise generous benefactors have shared the humble surroundings of remote fishery districts, building churches, school houses and hospitals and improving conditions of existence for the toilers of the sea in a marked degree.

Fisheries Develop Greatness.

Economic importance, however, must be regarded as an inevitable factor in the successful prosecution of the fishery industry with due regard to well directed sympathy and encouragement, public and private. It has been well said that the pursuit of the fisheries was the cradle of English sea power. Marvellous as the development of the interland of North America between sea and sea has proved, it may be remembered that while precious metals were the incentives in the tropical coast line, the fisheries and the fur trade were the chief impelling motives for enterprise in the North.

The Value of the Fisheries.

The Whitehall advertisement for the Cornwallis settlement in 1749, for instance, held out the prosecution of the fisheries as a special inducement towards gaining a livelihood. Contrasting land and sea resources, a century later at Detroit, Joseph Howe used these words:

"Let me draw your attention to the value of these North American fisheries. You have behind and around you here boundless prairies, which an all-bountiful Creator annually covers with rich harvests of wheat and corn. The ocean is our prairie, and it reaches away before and around us and Almighty God, for the sustenance of man, annually replenishes it with fish in myriads that cannot be counted, having a commercial value that no man can estimate. These great storehouses of food can never be exhausted."

If Rightly Managed.

Prophetic in its estimate of the wealth to be derived from the fisheries off our coast was the significant report of Villebon, an early governor under the regime of France in 1699. "If rightly managed, the province of Acadie is a Peru." Truly a pregnant forecast "IF RIGHTLY MANAGED."

In a just survey of the past it is to be noted that easy access to the fishery grounds and the unavoidable combination of other pursuits led to careless methods by our pioneer fisherfolk. The march of time, it must be admitted, has riveted these hindrances by inadequate official administrations as compared with development of resources of the soil. Of all the varied branches of the fishery industry none needs more urgent improvement than the handling of herring.

Herring Equipment.

As far as the actual catch is concerned, staunch boats and handy nets for inshore ventures, with larger craft and larger nets for deep sea work have long been the rule. Brush weirs are still in use in the tidal waters of the Bay of Fundy, although often complained of. Torching is but a relic of aboriginal methods. In Nova Scotia waters the use of drift nets is almost the only mode now employed.

The transition from the tiny skiff, with single net, and the shallop or whaler, with better gear, up to the gasoline and the thoroughly equipped sail or steam seiner or drifter carrying fifty, sixty or one hundred nets, as practised in British and North Sea waters, suggests co-operation by enterprising fishery dealers with a class of workers far more dependent on credit aid than any of their fellow laborers on the land.

Handling for Market.

The kernel of the question as regards brine salted herring is the adoption of the methods of the Scottish, Dutch and Norwegians in what may be termed a technical mode of procedure, viz., handling the catch for market as a separate branch. Can our fishermen be gradually weaned from old-time methods of hurried dumping into leaky barrels instead of leaving the catch in the hands of expert fisher lassies under capable direction?

If the official reports of recent years to bring about a betterment of the industry were supplemented by a local adaptation of Scottish fishery administration methods, leaky barrels and the unsatisfactory reputation of our salt herring would soon become things of the past. In view of the yearly influx of new settlers, home consumption for such a staple food product should increase by leaps and bounds, while the expansion of outside markets would stimulate export shipments to record figures in the not distant future beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Grocer's Encyclopedia—The Cocoanut

Interesting Points Connected With the Cultivation of a "Goody" That is Widely Known, and Something of Its By-Products—The Manner of Its Growth—Making of Cocoanut Oil and Butter—Importance in Tropical Countries.

Cocoa or "coker" nuts, also known sometimes as "monkey" nuts, are the fruit of a species of palm tree which grows 50 to 90 feet high, in nearly all tropical countries, but thrives perhaps most about Nassau and Jamaica in the West Indies. It requires plenty of sunshine and wide-open air, and prefers a low sandy shore, where the roots can strike into sea water. The tree has no branches but is crowned with a bunch of sword-like leaves, each leaf being 12 to 14 feet in length and having a very strong mid-rib.

Lives to Good Old Age.

One tree yields annually about 100 nuts arranged in clusters of about a dozen each near the tops and bears for some 150 years. It is the most widely distributed of all tropical growths and it is questionable whether there is any species of tree so useful. Residents in temperate zones have little idea of its immense importance in tropical countries.

The outer husks of the nut are tough, and are usually stripped by men using two fine pointed chisels, and who by constant practise are able to open 10 to 12 hundred nuts per day. The fibre prepared from these husks is spun into a valuable species of yarn, which is used in making braided twine, matting and coarse brushes. The inner shells, when emptied of their pulp, make drinking cups, water bowls, etc. The nuts contain when green a milk, and it is this creamy substance that solidifies and afterwards forms the white pulp. Cocoanut pulp may be eaten raw, or grated and used for soup. It also yields cocoanut oil or butter, while our shredded cocoanut is also obtained from it.

Shredded cocoanut is the white fleshy part of the cocoanut, sliced and deprived of all humidity by evaporation. The nuts are first broken and the kernels removed, and then passed to a peeling machine, where the skins are neatly taken off. The "skinned" nuts are next washed in barrels and are cut or shred according to the class of product required. If shred, the mass is dried thoroughly in hot revolving pans, and thus acquires its desiccated condition.

Making Cocoanut Oil.

Cocoanut oil or butter is a rich but coarse granular white oil of buttery consistence extracted from the albumen or ripe kernel of the large, milky cocoanut. It should not be confused with cocoa butter obtained from the same source as the ordinary drinking cocoas.

The oil is mostly extracted by cold dry pressure, although there is a wet process as well from the dried kernels. Eight or ten nuts will yield a quart of oil. Boiling the pulp breaks open the cells and as the oil is liberated, it rises to the surface and is skimmed off. While the sale of cocoanut butter is not large as yet in Canada, dealers say that it is showing some increase.

It is true that the sales of cocoanuts and its products do not reach any great proportions in this country, but they could undoubtedly be increased if dealers would give them some added attention. Merchants do not, seemingly, realize the varied uses which could be made of information regarding the source of supply in increasing the sale of such lines as these. People undoubtedly like to know where these articles are produced, how so and other interesting notes in regard to them, and it would undoubtedly be to the grocer's advantage to bring these facts before them.

Cocoanuts are a tasty article of food and their sale would increase with some additional attention, while shredded cocoanut would be used more extensively in cooking if the housewife were spoken to more often about it. Cocoanut butter is not well known by the consuming public and needs to be introduced to customers the same as any other new line of goods before the demand will be large.

The Best Proposition!

Looked at any way you please, no line of goods holds out the same inducements to the Grocer as

UPTON'S

Jams, Jellies and Marmalade

First, they are made from the finest fruits in the world---Canadian Fruits---selected by experts and preserved and bottled in an up-to-date, sanitary factory, which is a model of cleanliness. Second, the "Upton" line never 'sticks,' because our extensive consumer advertising has created a demand for these goods; and third, selling "Upton's" specialties invariably leaves a satisfaction and profit-margin behind that makes trading a pleasure.

Are you featuring "Upton's"? If not, fall in line with the 'wise' ones.

Here's a simple little thing one grocer did that brought him three days of splendid date sales.

He cut our advertisement of DROMEDARY DATES from a monthly magazine—we advertise in nearly all the good ones—and pasted it on the front of his window. Over it was a brush sign, "We Sell These," and in the window a display of the cartons with one open. He says he never sold so many dates in his life.

DROMEDARY DATES are sure to sell if people see them, because they are the finest selected fruit, wrapped carefully in oiled paper and packed in cartons. They're clean, fresh, and indefinitely moist. All jobbers.

We also pack ROYAL EXCELSIOR and ANCHOR brand package dates.

Do You Sell on Credit?

Do you have the usual trouble with collections, "bad accounts," friction with customers and frequent loss of both customer and money?
Then you need

Allison Coupon Books

They will stop the leaks, keep up collections, forestall arguments, please the customer.

HERE'S HOW THEY WORK

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10.—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere. Manufactured by Allison Coupon Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

The Associated Boards of Trade Meet

Western Canadian Body Holds Annual Convention in Albertan City—Fort William Accepted to Membership—Bumper Crop Predicted for This Year—Assisted Immigration and Its Problems—Discussion on Dry Farming—The Bulk Sales Act Endorsed for Adoption in Alberta — A Uniform Fire Insurance Policy.

(Staff Correspondence.)

Lethbridge, Alta., June 22.—Notwithstanding the great distance which separates the city of Lethbridge from the other leading centres of the West, and also the fact that it occupies an extreme point in the territory covered by the Associated Board of Trade of Western Canada, a very satisfactory number of delegates gathered at the eighth annual convention, which began June 14th and concluded the following day. After the delegates had spent a few hours in the city they were well satisfied that the Boards of Trade had made this city their choice for convention centre. The railway facilities proved adequate, the weather was ideal and the city itself presented such an attractive appearance that all the delegates expressed delight as they greeted one another at their respective hotels.

Planned in Advance.

It was evident that the Board of Trade at Lethbridge had planned considerably in advance to make the convention a great success and also to entertain in a most gratifying manner the delegates assembled.

Representatives from the local board met the trains and accompanied the delegates into the city. They lost no time in making the delegates acquainted with local board men and with the leading citizens.

The fact that the splendid auditorium in the fine new Y.M.C.A. edifice had been reserved for the convention at some inconvenience of the directors of that institution demonstrated also that the greatest possible efforts had been put forth to make the convention, in every way, entirely satisfactory.

Application From Fort William.

A feature of the growth of the work of the Associated Board of Trade of Western Canada was the fact that a representative was present from Fort William in Western Ontario to make application on behalf of the Fort William Board of Trade for affiliation with the Associated Boards.

By ten o'clock on the morning of June the fourteenth some twenty delegates had registered at the secretary's desk and among the names there were nearly all the directors of the Board of Western Canada.

President E. M. Saunders, manager of the Bank of Commerce, at Calgary, late of Moose Jaw, called the meeting to order shortly after ten o'clock and gave an opportunity to E. A. Cunningham, vice-president of the Lethbridge Board, to welcome the delegates on behalf of the mayor and council and the local Board. Mr. Cunningham spoke briefly of the importance of a convention of such an influential body and welcomed the guests in cordial fashion.

The President's Address.

President Saunders replied stating that in his estimation the large number present at the opening session indicated that the delegates appreciated a visit to the city of Lethbridge.

WILLIAM GEORGESON,
Who Was Elected President of the Associated Board.

President Saunders then delivered the annual address as follows :

"During the session at Brandon last June, it was suggested that the secretary should issue bulletins at regular intervals throughout the year, giving a detailed report of the follow-up work of the Executive in connection with the resolutions passed. Acting on this suggestion, bulletin No. 1 was issued along with the annual report. This bulletin contained copies of letters forwarding resolutions to their different destinations, and acknowledgments of the same, together with a copy of an address of welcome presented on behalf of the Association to the Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the occasion of his tour through Western Canada last summer. No definite results appeared in this bulletin in connection with resolutions dealt with, except in the case of the one recommending the adoption of a uniform fire insurance policy for the three Western Provinces. Mr. Fitzgerald, Superintendent of Insurance at Ottawa, replied in connection with this resolution that while he approved of the adoption of a uniform fire insurance policy, he did not think that there would be any special advantage in the adoption of this uniform policy, unless it covered the whole Dominion, as most of the insurance companies were doing business from coast to coast.

Manitoba Government Aloof.

Bulletin No. 2 was issued about the first of this year covering a period from the 1st October, 1910, to about the first January, 1911. In this bulletin, resolution No. 1, re protection of the cattle industry in Western Canada," resolution No. 6, re "Increased Facilities in Customs Department," resolution No. 7, re "Adjustment of Duty on Imported Fresh Fruits and Vegetables," resolution No. 16, re "Telegraph Rates," resolution No. 12, re "Distribution of Harvest Hands," resolution No. 27, re "Navigation of the Saskatchewan River," were dealt with. We regret to note from this bulletin that, although persistent and repeated efforts had been made by our secretary to the Manitoba Government to consider our resolutions sent in to them, no results had been secured up to the time of the closing of the period covered by this bulletin, ending the 1st January, 1911.

Bulletin No. 3, which was distributed in the month of May of this year, covered a period from the 1st January, 1911, to the 1st May, 1911. This bulletin contained letters in connection with the follow-up work, and results of interviews with the representatives of the different provincial governments.

To Secure Better Results.

As all the correspondence in connection with the following up of last year's resolutions is brought out in detail in the bulletins already referred to, it seems unnecessary for me to deal further with them. While it might be conceded that our work in this connection this past year has brought better results than in previous years, still, I think that at this convention some action should be taken that would bring better recognition of our resolutions by the provincial governments of Western Canada.

Since we last met in convention at Brandon, this western country has seen many changes, most of which I feel quite safe in stating have been along the lines of progression.

Last Year's Crop.

Another crop has been harvested, and while results were not as satisfactory in some districts as in previous years, still the following figures secured from a bulletin issued by the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, Winnipeg, on the 28th February last, would indicate that the crop results were much better than many predicted they would be.

Wheat Situation, February 25th, 1911. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

	Bushels
Inspected to date	57,953,250
In transit—not inspected	650,000
In store at country points	11,500,000
Marketed at Winnipeg	150,000
Allow for country mills, seed and feed	26,000,000
Total	96,253,250
In farmers' hands to market	8,300,000
Total crop	104,553,250

	Bushels
Oats inspected to date	11,588,100
Oats in store at country points	3,725,000
Oats in farmers' hands to market	8,350,000
Total	23,663,100

	Bushels
Barley inspected to date	1,543,200
Barley in farmers' hands to market	460,000
Total	2,003,200

	Bushels
Flax inspected to date	2,875,000
Flax in farmers' hands to market	150,000
Total	3,025,000

On the 1st May, the following figures were secured:

	Bushels
Wheat inspected to date	71,000,000
Oats inspected to date	17,000,000
Flax inspected to date	3,000,000
Barley inspected to date	2,100,000
Rye inspected to date	35,000

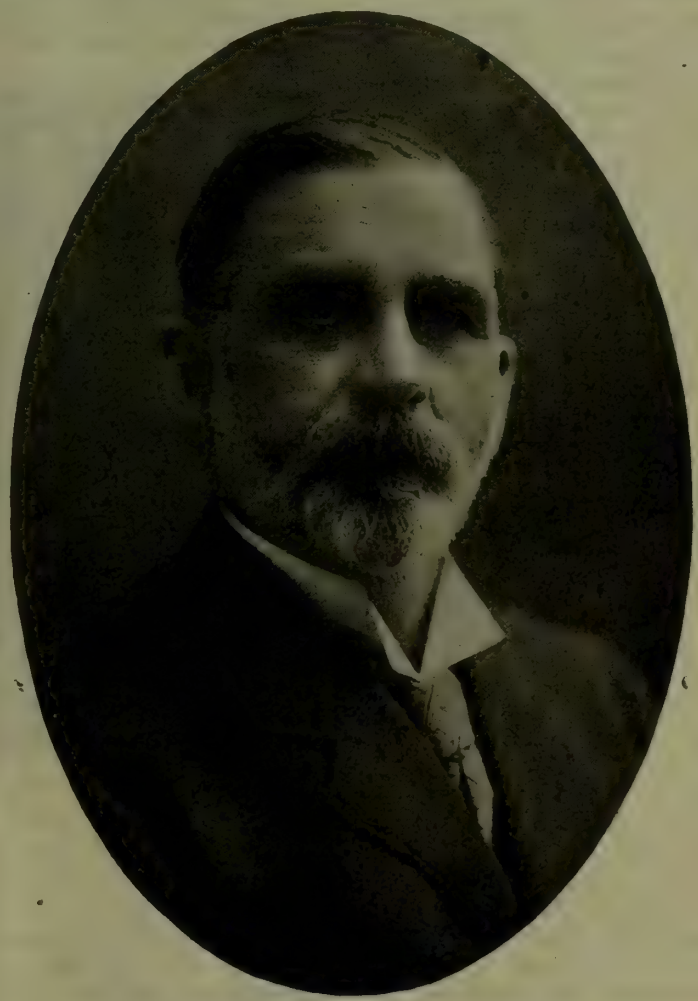
A Comparison.

A comparison between these and the foregoing figures would indicate that estimates of stocks at country points and in farmers' hands, were not exaggerated. These figures to date compare most favorably with the final crop report issued by the same association on the 2nd November last, which showed the following figures for the crop of 1909:

Total wheat crop	119,744,655
Total oats inspected	33,105,600
Total flax inspected	3,571,000

This year crops all over Western Canada have been put in under most favorable conditions, and up to the present, there is every evidence of a strong and healthy growth of all grains. Should the present favorable crop conditions continue until harvesting, it would, I think, be quite safe to predict that our wheat crop this season for the Canadian West, with the large increase in acreage, should exceed 150,000,000 bushels.

Railway Mileage.



The annual report of the comptroller of railways shows that the mileage for Canada increased from 24,104 in 1909 to 24,731 in 1910, an addition of 627 miles. The larger portion of this increase, or 519 miles, was in the four Western provinces. These figures do not include any mileage attaching to the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is officially regarded as "under construction," although over 1,000 miles were in actual operation during 1910. It is estimated that 4,500 miles of railway were under construction on June 30th last. Judging from the announcements that have been made by the railway companies, it would appear that, if the work planned for this season is carried out, last year's figures for the increase in mileage will look small beside those for 1911.

Real Estate Speculation.

With the large amount of railway development, increase in expendtiures by municipalities, and in the figures for building permits which are published from time to time, etc., it is not hard to realize that a great tax is being made upon capital available for these purposes. In view of this fact, we think it well to caution the business men of the West against locking up their capital in real estate speculation, more especially where it is non-productive, and we think it important that they should keep themselves prepared to handle the natural increase they would look for in their businesses next fall, should the crop conditions continue favorable through the summer months.

A Greater Immigration.

It will be seen that the immigration figures for 1910 show an increase over those of 1909 by about 60 per cent. From present indications it would appear that this percentage will not only be kept up this year, but will break all previous records. We have with us as a guest of this convention, J. S. Dennis, in charge of the Irrigated Lands of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He has kindly consented to address this convention on the "Development of Western Canada." There is no one in the West that is better fitted to handle such a subject, and I feel sure that in his address Mr. Dennis will bring out some very interesting facts in connection with the immigration into Western Canada.

That trade conditions generally in the Dominion have been good is indicated by the following figures taken from the budget statement of the Minister of Finance, submitted in April last.

Total trade for 11 months, ending Feb. 28, '11	$687,500,000
Total trade for 11 months, ending Feb. 28, '10	610,000,000
Increase over previous year	$ 77,500,000

and also by a comparison between the total bank clearings for 1909 and 1910.

Total Clearings for 1910	$6,114,039,804
Total Clearings for 1909	5,203,269,249
Increase for the 12 months	$ 911,770,555

Fort William Application.

Last fall it was my privilege to visit some of the important centres in British Columbia, and when meeting the executive officers of the different boards of trade, I endeavored to interest them in the work of this association, and received a promise from some of them that they would try and send representatives to our convention this year. When a name was being discussed for this association, I think it was decided to select one that would be general enough to take in, if thought advisable, not only the three prairie provinces, but also the province of British Columbia, lying to the west of us.

That the influence and strength of this association is recognized outside the territory which it at present covers is evidenced by the application from Western Ontario of the Fort William board of trade for affiliation, which board is represented at this convention.

We have before us this year for consideration a large number of interesting resolutions. I would especially commend to your favorable consideration a resolution from the Brandon board of trade, condemning the practice in some of our Western cities of placing on the market, outside subdivisions, and selling them under false pretences to outside parties who have no chance to see what they are buying.

I wish, gentlemen, to thank you.

Board's Qualifications.

In moving the adoption of the president's address, vice-president W. Georgeson, wholesale grocer, Calgary, congratulated the president on the thoroughness and scope of his address. In referring to some of the points Mr. Georgeson stated that he believed the only way to get recognition from the government was by constant reiteration and he stated that the Minister of the Interior had expressed a desire to him personally, to consider all resolutions forwarded by the Associated Boards of Trade as the Minister believed that the boards of trade were in a position to deal with questions of vital importance to the country as a whole, and they were capable of framing up such suggestions as the government would be glad to receive. The speaker mildly criticised the president in his conservative estimation of the crop prospects for this year and thought that the president should use the figures 200,000,000 bushels rather than 150,000,000, as it is believed by high officials in government and railway circles that such a large crop will be harvested this year.

Representations of Farmers.

Mr. Georgeson referred to some communications which he had with the farmers of the west regarding having farmers represented at the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade. He thought, however, that it was well for the boards of trade to be careful who they admitted into their affiliation, as it was very necessary that the Board of Trade should discuss questions along their own particular line and when politics were introduced the Board of Trade was dead. He stated, however, that he would like to see the farmers' interests promoted, but such questions as terminal elevators and government abattoirs did not belong strictly to boards of trade work.

E. M. SAUNDERS,

Retiring President of the Associated Board of Trade.

The president's address was seconded by G. H. Bradbrook, Yorkton, Sask.

Fire Insurance.

S. McAra, Regina, spoke of the question of fire insurance which was referred to in the president's address. Mr. McAra thought that the provincial governments should be persuaded to adopt some standardized policy, as it was necessary to have something more definite in the control of fire insurance than prevails at the present time and he further suggested that committees should be formed to press action from the government. M. Isbister, Saskatoon, took the chair and called for a vote on the president's address and it passed unanimously.

Fort William Admitted.

The secretary than read an application from the Fort William Board of Trade, applying for membership in the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada. In discussing the matter Messrs. Georgeson, Isbister and Webster spoke favorably of receiving the Fort William Board on the grounds that the interest of the Fort William Board was in harmony with the interests of the other boards of the West. One objection was raised by Mr. McAra that it was possible that the Associated Boards of Trade would get itself into an unwieldy condition should extreme points in outside provinces be taken in. The motion to accept the application of Fort William was carried.

President Saunders welcomed J. S. Dennis, Immigration Superintendent, C.P.R. Calgary, and J. T. Sweeting, Industrial Superintendent, C.P.R., Winnipeg, and asked that they be given delegates' rights at the convention.

The minutes of last year's meeting as published in pamphlet form, were taken as read and carried.

These Sent Regrets.

Regrets were read from the Board of Trade in Vancouver, C. N. Bell, secretary Board of Trade Winnipeg, Mr. Creelman, C.N.R., Mr. Bury, C.P.R., and W. B. Lanigan, C.P.R., stating they found it impossible to attend the convention as was their previous intention.

The secretary's report was read giving detailed items of expense and receipts, which showed that the finances were in a very satisfactory condition. The report was adopted.

President Saunders then announced that the election of officers would be the next item of business. The voting, which was all informal, resulted as follows :—

Calgary Man President.

President for the year 1911 and 1912, W. Georgeson, Calgary, by acclamation ; first vice-president, M. Isbister, Saskatoon, by acclamation ; second vice-president, E. D. Martin, Winnipeg, by acclamation ; third vice-president, Richard Loney, Moose Jaw, by acclamation ; fourth vice-president, A. A. Wilson, Fort William, by acclamation.

A new office was created as it was thought advisable to have an auditor appointed each year, and H. J. H. Skeith, Lethbridge, was elected by acclamation.

The retiring president introduced Mr. Georgeson to the assembly as a capable and able man, who had given time and mental energy to the Board of Trade work for Western Canada.

Chairman's Address.

Mr. Georgeson in taking the chair said that it was something to remember to have been elected to the highest office which the Board of Trade of Western Canada could give. The work before the Board was never more important than at present, owing to the fact that the country was new and just beginning on a great era of development. What was needed more than anything was to bring improvements as quickly as possible to as large a number of centres as possible. He pointed a warning that all questions considered by the Board should be on fair lines and non-political. It depended on the members of the Board, what the Board would do and be in the opinion of outsiders. It was necessary to get recognition from the governments on questions already raised in order to continue to have prestige, in dealing with Board of Trade matters.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

The chairman at once took up the resolutions for discussions and referred to a few resolutions which had been left over and struck out by the committee on resolutions which had convened the previous evening.

Legislation Against Noxious Weeds.

President Saunders in dealing with this question said that it was an urgent matter and believed that the country suffered a great deal at the present time on account of noxious weeds. E. E. Spackman, Gull Lake, Sask., in seconding the resolution stated that the Minister of Agriculture for the province had sent out circulars to different agricultural societies to appoint weed inspectors, but it was necessary that something more should be done as these inspectors were often friends of farmers who were guilty, and so had proved unsatisfactory. It was also brought out that in some territories there were not enough inspectors to cover the territory and that it was a mistake for local men to be appointed. A. T. Hunter, Regina, opposed the measure on the grounds that it was an agricultural question and should be left to the farmers to take up, but his objection was overruled by Mr. Saunders who pointed out that it was a serious and general question as the banks and business houses needed good crops and noxious weeds was the chief factor in destroying those crops.

Assisted Immigration.

This resolution, which emanated from Moose Jaw, aimed at helping settlers to bring their families from the old land to this country. The resolution in its original form received a great deal of discussion, it being brought out that the settlers spent all their money to get out themselves and provide a homestead for themselves, and they could not get credit at the banks in order that they could bring their families. It was further brought out that the resolution would not be satisfactory if it referred to all classes of foreigners, as there were citizens coming out who were not desirable, and from whom the country could not hope to get returns for any money loaned them. Great light was thrown on the problem by H. M. Belcher, Winnipeg, who outlined briefly the policy of the Board of Trade in Winnipeg in helping settlers and in view of the success of that body, the mover of the resolution withdrew to frame up another resolution, along the line of the movement of the Winnipeg Board of Trade. This movement consists simply in the local boards giving assistance to needy settlers upon application, a committee

Townsite Planning.

A resolution to expropriate Indian reservations in order that towns and cities continguous to those reserves might expand, was introduced. In view of the fact that there was plenty of room in certain sections for Indian reservations, the resolution was carried to the effect that all towns having a population of 1,500 or over should have power to use certain Indian reservations that lay next their borders.

WHEREAS, in the laying out of townsites and sub-divisions in Western Canada proper attention is not given to uniformity and convenience in connection with same, more especially in regard to regulation width of streets and proper consideration for supplying said townsites and sub-divisions with sewerage and drainage facilities; AND WHEREAS, the present city act does not empower city or town councils to supervise subdivisions in their localities; THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Provincial Governments be requested to provide that no townsite or subdivision should hereafter be registered until the location and general plan has been approved by the Lieutenant Governor in Council and until a proper plan has been submitted and approved, such plans submitted complying with a general plan adopted in connection with the laying out of townsites and sub-divisions.

Moose Jaw Again.

This important resolution was brought in by the Moose Jaw representatives, and provoked some discussion, in which J. S. Dennis took part. He stated that it was necessary that the government should have the right to determine the width of the streets and lanes and to prevent land owners from forming ununiform strips in the townsite. Mr. Dennis further suggested that he would like to see the government have some say in the lay-out of a town, forming definite places for parks, business streets and stores. Mr. Dennis' remarks were appreciated. The resolution carried.

Land Titles Act.

A resolution was brought forward by Moose Jaw with reference to providing for the relief of homesteaders from the Land Titles Act, where homesteaders are not notified by the Registrar, that his patent had been passed by the Department of the Interior. In discussing this question, it was stated that the Registrars in many cases did not receive remuneration for asistance given to homesteaders, and as a result they did not act promptly, much to the inconvenience of the homesteader.

Freight Rates on Coal.

"In the opinion of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada in session, the coal rates at present in effect in Western Canada are unreasonably high, and as such is partially responsible for the present high cost of living, further that the consumption of coal in Western Canada is today considerably larger than was the case a few years ago, resulting in greater tonnage, which in itself should warrant a voluntary reduction in the coal rates by the Railway Companies, that the question is one of vital importance and of such magnitude that no individual or committee that we may appoint can handle the question as intelligently as the Board of Railway Commission and its Chief Traffic Officer.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that this convention of Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada urge upon the Board of Railway Commissioners the necessity of conducting a thorough investigation into the coal rates at present in effect in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, with the object of ascertaining the reasonableness of such rates; AND FURTHER that if such rates or any coal rate is found to be excessive, that the Board order the Railway Companies to make such reductions as in their judgment may be deemed advisable. That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Secretary of the Railway Commission."

This is an old question, and was therefore discussed with considerable intelligence by some members present. Mr. Hunter, Regina, who moved the resolution, made the startling statement that 50 per cent. of the profits on coal goes to the railway companies for transportation, and gave some comparisons of freight rate discrepancies, taking points in the United States and comparing them with certain points in the West, at the same mileage.

Railways Inconsistent.

The mover of the resolution stated that it was his object to ascertain the reason for the existing rates and was not prepared to say that the rates were really excessive. He pointed out that wheat, which is in the same freight classification as coal, was handled much cheaper than coal by the railways, which he thought was inconsistent.

Mr. Belcher, Winnipeg, stated that unless the Boards of Trade were prepared to follow up the freight rates on coal investigation, it would be better to drop it at once. He said it required able men and money and trained solicitors to follow up the railway commissioners, in order to get satisfactory results. Mr. McAra, Regina, replied that if the Boards of Trade were to amount to anything they surely could handle this question, and it was their plain duty to deal with this existing evil. The resolution was carried.

Facilities on Railway Bridges.

This resolution was brought forward by Saskatoon, and was a resurrection of a motion brought before the Board two years ago. It asked that the railway companies be required to strengthen sub-structures of all bridges, which they hereafter build so that traffic facilities could be attached. The resolution appealed to the members present, and they felt satisfied that the railways would be satisfied to have those attachments put on provided that they would not be burdened with the expenses. The resolution was carried.

Approval of Freight Tariffs.

"BE IT RESOLVED, that the Honorable the Minister of Railways and Canals be asked to amend the Railway Act so as to give authority to the Board of Railway Commissioners, either upon complaint or upon its own motion, to suspend the operation of any tariff or regulation for a sufficient time to permit of a full hearing, and afterwards to make such order as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the tariff became effective, the burden of proof to be on the carrier to show that the increased tariff or regulation is just or reasonable."

Hudson's Bay Railway.

There was little discussion over this resolution, which was brought in by Mr.

J. T. HALL,
The Busy Secretary of the Convention.

Belcher, Winnipeg, and it was carried unanimously.

"WHEREAS the Dominion Government has by legislation provided for the sale by way of pre-emption, and otherwise, of lands, the proceeds of which were to be set aside for the purpose of construction of a railroad to Hudson's Bay.

AND WHEREAS the Minister of the Interior in intrducing the Bill providing such legislation stated it was as a means of insuring the early completion of the railway to Hudson's Bay, and the Prime Minister and the Minister of Railways have since stated that it is the intention of the Government to provide for the immediate construction of such railway.

AND WHEREAS under that provision land has now been disposed of representing an amount of over Twenty-One Million Dollars, exclusive of interest.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that this Board desires to place on record its gratification that the wishes of the Western Provinces, in the opening out of the Hudson's Bay Route, are now to have effect. And further, to place on record its opinion that the full benefits to Canada of the opening of this alternative route to the world's markets will be secured only if the Government builds this railway as a National work, and retains its ownership in perpetuity, and that such railway be operated by the Government itself under an independent Commission, and that the Government effect such arrangements as will make the highway equally available by all Canadian railways under regulations which will provide reasonable and satisfactory rates from the point of shipment to tide-water on the Bay, such conditions to be subject to the immediate control of the Government."

A resolution from Winnipeg placed on record its gratification that the wishes of the Western provinces in opening out a Hudson Bay route had taken effect and also expressed desire that the government will own and operate the road in competition with other existing railroads, in order that freight rates might be equalized. The present trouble all over the West on the freight rate question made it desirable that another road should not be constructed which would be arbitrary regarding its freight rates. The resolution was carried.

Re Telegraph Tolls.

RESOLVED, that the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada record their satisfaction that the Board of Railway Commissioners having granted the application of the Winnipeg Board of Trade for a public investigation into the telegraph companies tolls, that public counsel, whose services are at the disposal of any individual or Association desiring to present matters before the Railway Commission in connection with telegraph tolls, have been appointed by the Dominion Government, and that the investigation is already proceeding.

FURTHER BE IT RESOLVED, that all Boards of Trade are strongly recommended to examine into the telegraph tolls applying from their several places, and present to the Board of Railway Commissioners such facts as they deem essential in order that fair and reasonable tolls will be enforced in Western Canada.

This resolution which came from Winnipeg had been discussed by the Board of Trade at Winnipeg and the Grain Exchange and it was a huge subject. In their endeavor to get reduced tolls in other lines the whole schedule of tolls, it was found, was greatly in need of revision. G. E. Carpenter, shipper section Board of Trade, Winnipeg, stated that the work which was started in Winnipeg will affect the whole West and the Winnipeg Board should receive encouragement from other Boards and have the investigation thorough in order that the tolls may be more reasonable. The resolution was carried.

Customs Regulations.

WHEREAS large numbers of new settlers are daily coming to Canada from other countries.

AND WHEREAS in a great many instances they are bringing with them goods commonly known as effects.

AND WHEREAS certain laws govern the admission of said goods and these laws are for the most part entirely unknown to the said immigrants.

THEREFORE this convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada hereby respectfully points out to the Dominion Government that the printing of the Canadian Customs Regulations in the daily newspapers of the Dominion, similar to the manner followed by the Department of the Interior, would be found very beneficial not only to the said immigrants but to the Customs Department.

This resolution was carried without much discussion, owing to the fact that it was generally known that there was not enough publicity given on the Canadian Customs Regulations. In the discussion J. S. Dennis, Immigration Superintendent, C. P. R., stated that publicity was given to a great extent by circulars and posters and other literature circulated in other countries, which we as Canadians did not see. It was deemed advisable, however, to have more publicity in Canadian publications regarding such regulations. The resolution was carried.

Bulk Sales Act.

WHEREAS a resolution having reference to certain Legislation known as the Bulk Sales Act has been endorsed by this Association and forwarded to the Governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

AND WHEREAS the Government of Saskatchewan has acceded to the request of the Association by passing such a law.

AND WHEREAS similar Legislation is in existence in Manitoba and British Columbia.

THEREFORE this Association of the Boards of Trade of Western Canada hereby request the Alberta Government to take immediate steps to grant our former request and pass the bill that is before them known as the Bulk Sales Act.

Retailers Annoyed?

It will be seen from the resolution that it aimed at having the Act in force in Alberta and the mover R. J. Hutchings, Calgary, referred to the satisfactory manner in which the Act was operated in the other provinces. He stated that the government was obliged to see that debts are paid and the wholesalers did not wish to bring a hardship on any one and it was only an attempt to safeguard against dishonest men. It was evident that there were no retailers present who were familiar with the Act as it received no opposition whatever, and it is to be regretted that the other side of the question was not discussed, as it is only reasonable to suppose that many retailers will be annoyed by wholesalers under the operation of the Act. The motion was carried.

Insurance Commissioners.

THEREFORE this Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada respectfully request the Governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to each appoint a commissioner who shall investigate the cause of fires in each of the provinces aforesaid with a view of placing the responsibility. Further, that the said commissioner be available for the purpose of advising the public regarding the protection afforded by the different Fire Insurance policies.

This question proved to be interesting and provoked some discussion, which was almost all favorable. No reference was made, however, to the Canadian Credit Men's Association with head office in Winnipeg, who recently appointed a commissioner to investigate fires in order that more satisfactory adjustments might be made. It is believed that this resolution is more thorough and will eventually take the place of the Credit Men's Commissioner. The resolution was carried.

Fish Hatcheries.

WHEREAS the increased population of the western provinces has naturally caused an increased strain on the resources of the many streams throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

AND WHEREAS it is necessary to take immediate steps to prevent the entire depletion of the said streams.

THEREFORE it is resolved by this convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada, that the Dominion government be requested to establish at suitable points in the West fish hatcheries. Further, that more stringent laws be enacted and enforced for the protection of fish.

This resolution proved to be timely as many of the members present believed that the West could be made a greater fish producing territory, than it is. It is the beginning of a great work, which will in the future, no doubt be very great. The Dominion government thus far, have not taken action in Western Canada regarding fish production, except in Manitoba, having been approached to protect the fish trade by Winnipeg authorities. Similar action might be brought to bear in other sections of the country and it was the aim of this resolution to widen the scope of the government's interest in the fishing districts.

Wednesday Evening.

The entire evening was taken up by an address by J. S. Dennis, head of the Colonization Department of the C.P.R. He said in part:

"It affords me much pleasure to be in a position to state this evening that the C.P.R. company has signified its willingness to appropriate the sum of $5,000 for the purpose of defraying the expense of the Dry Farming Congress if held in Lethbridge in 1912."

This announcement was received very enthusiastically by the convention, as it was considered a question of vital importance to Canada, as a whole.

American Invasion.

Referring to western development the speaker continued:

"The real start in the development of the West, while not depreciating the vast amount of work done by the people of the eastern provinces, was when the people of the Middle and Western States began to come to Canada, when the free land across the border was nearly all taken up. Many of these were expatriated Canadians who took advantage of the splendid opportunities this vast new country afforded for expansion, and during the past few years the rush for land in Western Canada by the people of the States has been unprecedented. Their coming has convinced others to try the new country and as a result the West has filled up with the best class of citizens of any country under the sun."

Basing his predictions on the development of the West during the past fifteen years Mr. Dennis painted an alluring picture of what Western Canada will be five years from now. At the present rate of immigration he said that he saw no reason why the Western provinces should not have before 1916 a population numbering over five million souls with a grain production alone of more than five hundred million bushels yearly. This was touching only on the development on the land and made no mention of what might be done in the way of manufacturing, and mining development, bound to follow on the increase of population and the settling of the agricultural communities.

THURSDAY MORNING.

"Be it resolved by this convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Western Canada that all new town sites located in Western Canada be subject to government supervision so as to secure proper drainage, and have provision made for parks, play-grounds and school sites."

In discussing this resolution it was first thought that it was a municipal question which should be dealt with by the Union of Municipalities, but the evil of establishing town sites without proper supervision was apparent, and the resolution was passed.

Small Debt Collection.

THAT WHEREAS the present exemption ordinances of Alberta and Saskatchewan are in their provisions so wide and comprehensive that they offer equal immunity to all classes as regards goods and land that are only necessities of life to a particular class, and,

WHEREAS, under the existing conditions, and owing to the delays, leniency and costly procedure of the present law, many business men suffer losses and, being unable to collect accounts, are thereby discriminated against, and,

WHEREAS, under the present law an unwilling debtor may be drawing sufficient salary over and above his living expenses to meet his obligations, and yet if such salary is paid at intervals when not more than $25 has accrued due, or in the case of a collusion between the debtor and employer, it cannot be attached by any process of court

THEREFORE, be it resolved that this convention heartily endorses the move of the Lethbridge Business Men's Protective Association, and any other association that has undertaken or is about to undertake any move that will tend to the enactment of such laws as will be more in accord with the interests of the business men as a whole, and also commends the Lethbridge Business Men's Protective Association on having circulated petitions all over the Province of Alberta for signatures of petitioners asking for the enactment of such laws for the said Province of Alberta.

This resolution which came from the Lethbridge representatives was one of the most important of the convention. E. A. Cunningham in moving the resolution said that those who suffered most under the present lenient system were the merchants, and he thought that the merchants should get the same consideration as the wholesalers get in the Bulk Sales Act.

In discussing this resolution, it was unfortunate that there were no delegates from Winnipeg who were familiar with the attempts of the executive of Western Retail Merchants' Association to have the small debt court established in Manitoba.

The Lethbridge Business Men's Protective Association, however were familiar with the propaganda in Winnipeg, and although no reference was made to it in the convention, the Lethbridge business men are co-operating with the retail merchants' executive to have the small debt court established.

Difficulties in U. S. A.

President Georgeson, enlightened some of the delegates by referring to the difficulty and the solution in the United States. In some of the States they have a simple chattel mortgage act whereby the merchants can take a mortgage against any article owned by the debtor, in that way the merchant gets security for goods they sell if they apply for it. It was apparent that some system should be inaugurated to protect the merchants, and the resolution was carried.

Telephone Connection.

WHEREAS, there are a large number of small towns in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta that have local telephone system in operation, but have, at the present time, no long distance connections, and,

WHEREAS, such long distance telephone connections will be of great commercial value, and are greatly needed,

THEREFORE, be it resolved that the Governments of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta be urged to extend their present systems as rapidly as possible, and to make such connections as will remedy this evil.

E. E. Spackman, Gull Lake, Sask., referred to several instances where telephone connection was necessary to increase the trade between larger cities and the provinces. It was brought out that telephone orders could be sent to wholesale houses by the merchants whereas those orders had to be sent by mail which necessitated several days' delay. The resolution was carried.

The Coal Strike.

"Be it resolved that the Associated Boards of Trade now in convention wire the Federal Government at once to use such persuasion as will bring about immediate operation of the mines of this district."

In moving this resolution, E. A. Cunningham, Lethbridge, stated that three months of the strike had already made a loss of $3,000,000 to this country. He also spoke of the possible hardships that will ensue if coal is not shipped to the prairie provinces before the wheat shopments. The resolution was carried.

Highway From Great Lakes.

This resolution was brought up by A. A. Wilson, Fort William, asking that the governments of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, be requested to provide legislation for the construction and maintenance of a highway across the Western country.

It was urged that such a highway would develop the country as it passed through the rich agricultural districts, and mineral deposits. It would afford better facilities for commercial travelers, who are handicapped in driving from place to place.

Re Subdivisions.

It was considered by the delegates who discussed this question that a great injury was being done in floating subdivisions as merchants and consequently wholesalers, cannot get their money from the public who are investing their money in unprofitable subdivisions. It was generally felt when an outsider came to the city and put on a subdivision which was misrepresented that the town greatly suffered from his practices. The resolution was carried.

Moose Jaw Wins.

The place of convention was then called for discussion by Chairman Georgeson. A. A. Wilson, Fort William was at once on his feet and gave a strong invitation on behalf of the Fort William Council and Board of Trade. It was moved and seconded that Fort William be considered by the convention.

Richard Loney presented an invitation on behalf of Moose Jaw Council and Board of Trade. In the vote that followed, Moose Jaw was chosen as the next place of convention.

To Press Action.

The resolution was moved by Mr. McAra of Regina, seconded by E. M. Saunders, that the president be authorized to appoint a committee of three to attend the provincial legislatures to press action on board of trade resolutions.

The president stated that the business of the convention had come to an end and a vote of thanks was tendered to the Board of Trade, Lethbridge, the Chinook Club, the Y.M.C.A. directors and the City Council for the reception and entertainment provided in the city.

Constructive Salesmanship---An Essay

Westerner Who is Implicit Believer in Value of Display in a Store — How People Talk About Goods in the Home—Some Special Sales—Suggestions for Arrangement of Goods Within the Store—The Four Classes of Salesmen and the Essentials That Help to Make the Clerk.

By T. F. McDowell, Vancouver, B.C.

In this age of commerce, window dressing is one of the main features of business. A well dressed window, bringing forth the selling points, is an index to the interior of the store. The day has come when the public watches for well dressed windows just as they do for advertisements in the evening papers. High salaries are paid expert window dressers, why ? The management know the results obtained from an artistic display. I am safe, in saying, seventy-five per cent. of the homes in our cities and towns, talk daily of goods, displayed in windows, this is the connecting link as a business getter with newspaper advertising.

Special Sales.

During the orange season, we make a point of displaying a great number of oranges. One evening we piled (did not throw) 5,000 oranges in our window and advertised a special sale at 25c a dozen. We left our lights, lighted, until 11 o'clock and placed a neatly written card "Special for Saturday, only." We drew the crowd, sold the oranges and made a gross profit from the display of twenty dollars.

One of our exclusive lines is "Blank's Cheese," we keep it displayed in our windows with a sign : "Better than butter for sandwiches." As a fact it IS better, but as the curious public look, they undoubtedly ask themselves "Is it better than butter for sandwiches ?" They buy and are convinced.

The first time a line of marmalade was offered for sale in this city, it was shown in our windows. We knew this high grade marmalade was not advertised in the west, by the manufacturer, and it was up to us to make an imposing display. Our price ticket read thus :

> "This is the only marmalade taken by Captain Scott on his voyage to the South Pole." Per jar 30c.

This little item of news which is a fact, was our best advertisement.

If you aim to use your windows as a business getter they should be dressed semi-weekly. This applies to groceries, a provision window requires daily attention. Two very important features in window dressing are, the art of displaying goods and price tickets. In my mind a well dressed window without appropriate price tickets is like an attractive grocery wagon with a lame horse.

The Value of Display.

In this age of hustle, TIME is the chief factor. The grocer who can serve customers quickly both in store and delivery service, will get the business. Systematic interior display will pay ; arrange your goods in their proper places ; have a place for everything and everything in its place ; have your greatest consumption where it can be most easily obtained, butter, eggs, cheese, cereals, tea, coffee, etc., should not be placed where the clerk has to spend time traveling over floor space to obtain them. Paper cutters, bag holders, twine, etc., should be at every counter.

Arrange your shelves so that colors will harmonize, keep bottled goods together and their sizes evenly matched, canned fruits, canned vegetables, canned fish, etc., should have their separate places. Do not use under your counters for a warehouse. Often, I have seen articles, such as paper bags, twine, blue, lamp burners, cereals, etc., jammed under the counter. How can one keep track of their stock in this manner ?

Perishable articles should be kept well before the public. Small counter displays of bottled and tin articles are good, changing them daily. Many of our women customers with their large hats fail to see goods at any height and the habit of "seeing with their fingers" is growing, therefore let them handle the goods.

Clerks and Salesmen.

There are but four classes of salesmen, the clerk behind the counter in a retail way, the commercial traveler, the specialty salesman and the promoter. It is the clerk behind the grocery counter I wish to write about. The average successful grocer in business to-day, is made so by good management and by having a band of efficient clerks. His success is not due to large capital, therefore ability counts. Would you keep a clerk, on a large salary to write down an order as the customer gives it and let her pass out your store without suggesting lines not asked for ? Would you for a moment, consider keeping a clerk who would persist in selling an article of advertised fame which gives you a hungry profit, instead of pushing a non-advertised article equal, if not superior, in quaity and which pays a handsome profit ?

Have clerks make suggestions but not till the customer has completed her order. Most customers do not carry a list of "wants," but on the contrary, they memorize them and if you "break in" on their thoughts, they get confused and forget what they really wanted. The clerk should know about this non-advertised article and of its profit compared to the advertised one. Not only of its profit, but of its quality, learn all you can about it and make your customer feel you are talking quality not price.

Some Essentials.

Now Mr. Clerk if you want to make a success as a salesman, there are four rules to follow :

1. Perception or tact.
2. A deep interest in your work.
3. A full knowledge of your business.
4. Appearance.

These four make up your distinctive personality which is your greatest asset. If not naturally endowed with tact, make a study of human nature. Be honest in your time to your employer, while on duty your brain power is his. Read the trades papers and study your goods. The clerk of to-day is the proprietor of to-morrow. Appearance is not costly, the clerk is noticed in clean linen, but if the linen is dirty, the dirt is noticed and not the clerk.

To a great extent, since the coming of the telephone, the canvasser is an employe of the past. By the use of it, business has a larger scope. I believe in suggesting items over the telephone, and your ability as a salesman will come out in selling three pounds of butter, when your customer only asks for one.

Newspaper Advertising.

Thousands of dollars are wasted annually by profitless advertising. Newspaper advertising is the only way you will get results. Dispense with the numerous propositions of programmes, circulars, theatre curtains, etc. Let the leaf you turn over on the first of the year contain this resolution, "stick to newspapers." Talk QUALITY, but be sure you have quality when so doing.

Other methods of advertising are : cleanliness in our stores, well dressed windows, which I have heretofore mentioned.

If possible equip your store with all modern facilities. Plain neat shelving, well arranged, is very popular in this day of plain furnishings. The machinery such as bacon slicer, scales, cash register and typewriter should be of the best, it is the cheapest in the end, and remember Mr. Merchant this machinery requires care. See that your bacon slicer is kept clean and your scales inspected. If you have silent salesmen keep the glass clean.

Have regular hours for delivery leaving store and keep to them, have a stated time for orders to close to catch such delivery. When a customer opens an account with you present her with a printed time-table. Have a shipping room and have clerks in that room for no other purpose than putting up orders and receiving new goods.

Bookkeeping Hints.

In bookkeeping the day for itemized accounts has passed, a statement in which you can retain duplicate is sufficient. Double entry is the best system for grocery accounting. A cash book and journal combined as your synoptic with loose leaf ledgers for general and customers' accounts and bill book are all that are necessary. Condense your work of posting. This may be done by posting the footing of statements to merchandise account and the footing of collections to credit of customers' accounts. Have columns in your synoptic for customers' accounts, cash, bank, merchandise, interest and discount, bills payable and expense. By posting the footing of these accounts at the end of the month into your general ledger you save time.

Profits should be figured on the cost price, the money you have invested in your business represents this cost. Your business should be charged with interest on capital and the proprietor should draw salary just as an employe. Turn your stock over thirteen times a year, if possible, but never less than twelve.

The proprietor should take an interest in his employes, if they have been in his service for a year, give them a week's holidays. If they are ill at times and unfit for duty, relieve them and see they have proper attention. Upon return to duty they will feel their employer is their friend. Take them to your home once or twice a year as your guests, and show them a little of your home life. Pay a good clerk a good salary.

Endorse Hastings' Pure Food Measure

Proposed By-law Fathered by Medical Health Officer Accepted Without Change by Members of T. R. G. A. and R. M. A. in Joint Session—Some of the Clauses that Provoked Discussion—Six New Members for Grocers' Association.

Toronto, June 22.—A short session of Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in the Temple Building on Monday night, the chief topic of interest being the proposed new display by-law, fathered by Dr. C. Hastings, local Medical Health Officer. It was decided to meet the Grocers' Section of R. M. A. that combined consideration be given the problem.

Before adjournment six new members were admitted to the association while fifteen others were proposed for membership. Those who joined this month were: J. H. Drumm, Dundas St.; S. Scott, Manning Ave.; J. P. McKelvie, Markham St.; Fred. Rudge, Augusta Ave.; H. L. Milne, Bellwoods Ave.; R. A. Dutton, Roncesvalles. It was also announced, that the London Grocers would visit Toronto on July 19th and the executive were instructed to offer any help they could to make the visitors' outing a success.

Later when the combined forces of T. R. G. A. and the grocers of the R. M. A. had gathered at the headquarters of the latter, the foodstuff legislation so dear to the heart of the M. H. O. was seriously taken up. And, likewise, after some discussion, it was endorsed, the members generally considering it to be in the best interests of the trade in the city. A strict enforcement will be asked for. The city council may complete the work on Monday.

Each clause of the by-law was taken up separately. The first clause was perhaps the one that affected the majority of the grocers to the largest extent and it received considerable discussion. It reads as follows:—

> "Dressed animals, meat, poultry, game, fish, sea food, fresh, dried or prepared fruits, dates, figs, cherries grapes, berries, cut fruits, cut melons, cracked nuts, nut meats, and milk, bread and pastry, which are intended for sale for human food, shall not be conveyed from place to place or kept in any open window or doorway or outside any building or in any public or private way of the city unless covered with clean material, or placed so as to be efficiently protected from dust, flies, animals, and all other contaminating influences."

It was argued by some members that many of the smaller dealers did not have room inside for all this class of goods. Others maintained they would not be able to sell nearly as much if they kept it inside. William C. Miller said he believed that it would be better for all concerned if no goods at all was allowed to be displayed outside as there would then be no loop holes by which dealers could escape the law. He feared that would be the case in the proposed measure.

Other dealers argued that it was to the grocer's advantage to keep such goods inside. They were then free from dust and worth more. One member suggested that they ask the council to lay the by-law over for a time and educate people to going inside in the meantime. But it was decided that the only method that would prove successful would be compulsory education. Another clause which all present strongly favored was the following:—

> "No room in which meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit, or milk, or other natural products are kept, stored, sold, or offered for sale, shall be used for domestic purpose or open directly into any room used as a sleeping room. All shops or stores used for the sale of articles of food shall be supplied with proper lavatory accommodation, which shall be in a separate department from the room in which such articles are kept, stored, or offered for sale."

Complaints were made by some of those present that many of the by-laws were not being enforced by the authorities. Especially was the present "peddlers'" by-law spoken of, and it was for this reason that the meeting decided to ask that this by-law, if passed be strictly carried out by the officials.

President Miles of the Toronto R. M. A. after this discussion pointed out to the meeting the advantages of all retailers being united. He would like to see all the grocers of Toronto in one body, as they would then be able to command legislation to their interests from both the civic and parliamentary bodies. Vice-President Van Camp expressed similar views and that it would be to the advantages of both if the Toronto grocers and the grocers' section of the R. M. A. were united. F. C. Higgins presided.

FUND FOR CO-OPERATIVE FIGHT.

According to report the grocers of Berlin, Ont., have been subscribing recently to a fund being raised to fight the Co-operative Bills already submitted to the attention of the Dominion Parliament.

William Maxwell, of Scotland, who has been touring Canada in the interests of the co-operative movement, has made the statement, it is claimed, that "he has had assurances that have led him to believe the bill will carry in the House of Commons."

Such a statement as that is well calculated to wake the retailers of Canada to a sense of the danger in which they stand. Whether true or not, William Maxwell has handed out a warning to the dealers of this country that they surely will not disregard. There have been peculiar features about his visit to this country from the very beginning. It has been hinted quite openly that his Excellency, Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada, and, of course, the representative of the King in this country, had invited him here, and had even arranged for his coming. His Excellency must have seen that charge, for it was given a certain amount of prominence in the newspapers at the time, but so far he has not thought it necessary to reply. Recently, too, one of the fighting associations of retailers in Scotland wanted to have the matter taken up with the British Government, and there does not seem to have been anything made out of that.

Nobody knows what is the real meaning behind all these charges, or whether the silence of the King's representative can be taken as meaning that he considers the matter too absurd to reply to. But whatever the reason, there would not be anyone to find much fault if the dealers of Canada would unite now, in the presence of Fear of Something, and prepare for a hard fight soon. There is a belief that there is something in the air, and behind all this apparent peace, that is a menace to the organized retail trade, and it is time for the retail dealers to stand up and fight.

Organize a fund by all means. Don't let the men appointed to carry on this fight do so on promises. This co-operative movement is a little too big for that, and the men who are to lead in the battle against it must feel assured that the dollars of the dealers are behind them, as well as their fears and good wishes. It will be not much use to sigh out vain regrets after one of these bills has, mayhap, slipped through. Let all the associations do something now.

THE POTATO SITUATION.

At this time of the year, old stock potatoes are expected to become smaller in compass, but from reports received from various parts of the Dominion it would appear that in general they have been cleared up with greater rapidity and at an earlier date than anticipated.

From both Toronto and Montreal comes reports of small stocks and an upward movement in prices, with dealers stating that there are but small supplies throughout the country.

A similar report has been received from Nova Scotia, while in the West shortness in supply has been noticeable for some time, while shipments recently to Western points have been small. With practically no help by way of supply obtainable from New Brunswick, and with cheap new potatoes still quite distant, the opinion prevails among dealers that prices will continue firm. The imported new potatoes will, despite the fact that prices are high, command a certain amount of trade, thus affording some little relief to the general situation.

HOW GROWING FRUIT IS FARING.

Reports on fruit during the past few days have been not quite so optimistic as were those of a week ago, as far as strawberries is concernned It is feared the crop is going to suffer considerably because of the continued dry weather. Strawberries, growing so close to the surface, cannot stand a drought. But a good rainfall would almost completely relieve the situation.

Generally speaking, the prospects for fruit in the Niagara Peninsula are good. Crawford peaches are apparently on the light side, but Albertas and Smocks are good. Except in one or two townships, cherries are reported to be a good crop. Pears appear to be good, likewise plums and raspberries seem to promise an excellent yield.

Not in Niagara alone, but in all sections of the fruit-growing districts, tomato plants seem to be looking splendid, and reports would indicate a good crop if the weather but continues favorable.

EDITORIAL NOTE AND COMMENT.

A copy of The Canadian Grocer, dated April 23, 1897, has lain, a trusted friend on the manager's desk of the McDermott & McCarthy establishment in Prescott, Ont., during all the intervening fourteen years. That particular issue contained a full schedule of the tariff with the United States, and was turned to frequently for information.

The season for salmon fishing on the St. John river, in New Brunswick, may not close this year until September 15th, instead of August 15th, which has been the final day under the existing regulations. A petition from interested fishermen was forwarded to the Department of Fisheries some time ago, praying that the above concession be granted, and the reply from Ottawa is being eagerly awaited. The chief point urged in the petition was that under present conditions the fishing season was practically closed before the water was low enough to make operations pay.

The Retail Grocers Picnic at Cobourg

Record Outing of Retail Organization in Toronto Held to Pretty Summer Town—More Than a Thousand Present—Ball Game a Thing to Wonder at and Races for All Classes and Conditions of Men.

Staff Correspondence.

Cobourg, June 22.—Bearing down from the lake with incredible speed the Toronto Retail Grocers and their wives and children and their friends and friends' friends fell upon this little summer town of Cobourg last Wednesday morning. The attack was made in broad daylight, and although the skirl of the "pipes" could be heard distinctly in the streets, and a uniformed regimental band called briskly to arms, there was but little active resistance, and precisely at the moment that big Ben in the town hall tower proclaimed to all the world that the hour of noon had come, his Worship, the Mayor, and his leading henchmen in faltering tones assured the on-rushing army that the town was theirs to do with as they would.

History's pages show beyond peradventure that there have been other picnics of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association—picnics considered wonderful and the last word in point of success. But those outings resembled this last one as much as a frog does an airship. And had it been fine it would have been better patronized even than it was. There were scores of folks who bought tickets on the distinct understanding that they could go only if the weather was fair. Well it wasn't exactly what one might call beautiful and anyone with a leaning towards mathematics might sit down and prove that fifteen hundred people should have been on the good ship Turbinia when she warped in to her wharf at Cobourg in the above mentioned manner, on Wednesday, June 14th last. The outing consumed most of the day for it was well-nigh eleven of the clock at night when Toronto was reached again, and the tired, dirty, "thousand" submitted ingloriously to separations at the Bay street crossing. and waited with drooping heads as one after another the Fleming cars sped by unheeding. But it was a "grawn day" for a' that.

The Line Up of the Opposing Ball Stars.

The Race of the Committee Men.

Lemon Pie Absent.

Anyone will admit that there are many features to the average picnic. "There's always green grass and lemon pie and dirty clothes," says one. But this picnic wasn't like that at all, for there wasn't any lemon pie at all. And also, there were no little independent mixed parties playing ring around a Rosie. But there was a ball game. Of course, some of the ladies will say that the only things worth looking at were the races in which the "little dears" took the leading parts, but leaving that aside, the ball game was the real thing.

Of course, some will argue it wasn't much of a ball game. The Doughty Drummers who essayed to cross bats with the Grocers' aggregations were just mince pie for the counter jumpers. There never was really anything to it and when at the close one young man asked the score all eyes were turned in wonder at the poor chap. But it was a great game. Anyone could tell that the way Bob Davies coiled himself up to hurl the ball or toy balloon at the different poor chaps who stood fearfully at the plate. And then if anyone really did not believe that it was the greatest game of the year, the crowd could insist that one S. Hall knocked the ball clear over into the lake. No one would be ungentlemanly enough to ask for the score, but for any others who insist on the matter we might advise that they count all their fingers on both hands, (provided they have a full complement,) once and then start all over again. They can go as far as they like on the second round, because opinion is divided as to the exact figures Some even are so bold to say the record they kept was worse than that. But mind you, that was only the Grocers' score. As for the other side the official scorers weren't able to find very much of it at any time. F. A. Bone who was in charge of the aforesaid "Doughty Drummers," never seemed to insist much on the point. It sure was a great game. It lasted the whole of seven innings.

There were races too in which business kings, or in ordinary jargon, wholesale dealers struggled for supremacy. It is believed that if there had been a few more minutes allowed that some of them might have been able to break records, in that hundred yard race particularly. But with all that left out they were some speeders. The grocers had a race or two all to themselves too, and, gentle reader, it would have done your heart good, to have seen "Billy" Miller, Dicky Matthews and all those other thoroughbreds straining at the leash, so

Montreal, June 22.—Local wholesale houses state that business continues heavy and general conditions are highly satisfactory with every prospect of their being maintained at least as far as the immediate future is concerned. Dried fruits are naturally of interest in view of the vety limited spot supplies. The representative of prominent California fruit interests states that the climatic conditions are favorable and the outlook for good quality in the fruit is much improved. The quantity, however, is directly short. In this regard, he stated to The Grocer, there is no doubt. Apricots are short and so are peaches. A sontrolling element in the dri?d fruit market, the influence of which is being more and more felt, is the Middle West.

Owing to a stronger feeling in the raw market, refined sugar is firmer. The demand is increasing, and if any higher prices are due, which some do not admit, they should not be far away. The market is steady with the general tone improved.

Molasses of the better quality is easier according to reports from the inland. It was stated that the price shows a decline of several cents, the result of purchases having been centred more upon slightly inferior grades.

Sugar.—There is a little firmer feeling in the sugar market this week. Demand is improving, a condition which with new strength in raws is influencing the refined. The season of heavy demand is within hailing distance.

Dried Fruits.—There have been no new price changes, but the market as a whole is high. Retailers are showing an interest in the present crop conditions. From a reliable authority it is learned that no good shippers of currants have yet named anything as low as the price that has been going the rounds lately. Some have mentioned a price that is four shillings under the price that the most reliable shippers quote. The lower price is said to be unwarranted by conditions in Greece.

Montreal.—Salmon has advanced considerably during the week, red springs, clover leaf, red sockeye fish being materially higher. Some of the houses report exhausted stocks of Horse Shoe with Clover Leaf 1-lb. talls also wiped out. The salmon advance is apparently general and is based upon sound reasons. Otherwise the market presents no other feature this week beyond the gradually disappearing stocks of corn and tomatoes.

Winnipeg.—There has been an excellent demand for canned goods of all lines especially vegetables and fruits. The local stocks will be pretty well used up before the new packing arrives, and consequently prices will hold fairly firm. Salmon has started to move rather freely, and the stocks held here are comparatively light in comparison with former years.

Coffee.—The market showed some fluctuation during the week, but prices remain firm. An upward tendency has been in existence, and from all appearances will continue for a while.

POINTERS:—

Canned Salmon—Advanced.

Rice—Standard B down 10c.

Canned Apples—Higher.

Tapioca—Firm.

Toronto June 21. — A satisfactory amount of trade, with an improved movement of sugar and a steady demand for other staples is the report of the locally wholesale dealers. Collections are reported fairly good.

Salmon has taken an upward movement ranging from 10 to 20 cents. Stocks are down to a low basis, while practically none of the cheaper grades are to be had. Canned apples have also moved upward in price. Trade in canned goods is not large.

The Journal of Commerce in summing up the dried fruit situation says: "To the looker on, the prune situation is baffling. Most contradictory reports come from the Coast, and there are almost as many prices as there are packers and possible combiations of assortments. A month ago estimates of the probable crop of California prunes, based on conditions and prospects at that time, were anywhere from 90,000,000 to 150,000,000 pounds. Estimates of the probable crop have increased and now run from 140,000,000 to 170,000,000 pounds. It should be said, however, that there are several operators who still hold to their original opinion that the crop will be 125,000,000 pounds or less." A local dealer states that while last year prunes were mostly of the larger size, this year they will run to the small sizes, and that Santa Clara will be small.

Sugar.—While no change has taken place in prices, the market maintains its strong position. When New York refiners have again to take on contracts, from present indications it is assumed that higher prices will have to be paid for raws which will no doubt result in a further upward movement in refined, and it is probable that Canadian refined will also be affected. There has been a better movement to the trade during the past week than for some time back, while a further improvement is being looked for.

Rice and Tapioca.—While holders at primary points have recently been firmer in their ideas, the general inactivity and easiness that has characterized the rice market for some time has been reflected upon Canadian markets, and a reduction of 10 cents per cwt. has been made in "standard B" locally. Other grades seem, however, to maintain their position. Tapioca is firm at the prices now ruling.

CANNED GOODS.

Toronto—That the firmness reported regarding canned salmon and the emphasis laid upon the market conditions was fully warranted is shown by the sharp advance in prices this week. An upward movement of from 10 to 20 cents per dozen has taken place, 1-lb. talls in Clover Leaf and Horseshoe being quoted at $2.25 to $2.27½, and Sockeye at $2.20 to $2.25. The cheaper grades such as humpbacks, pinks and cohoes are not obtainable.

One wholesaler quotes extra fine sifted peas size 1, 2's at a reduction of ten cents, namely $1.77½. Stocks of peas generally are however pretty well cleaned up. Dealers are asking higher prices on canned apples, quotations ruling from $3.75 to $4.00 for gallons, while 3's are done. New pack lobster in halves are quoted at $2.50 to $2.65, but no quarters have as yet arrived. Factories are busy packing strawberries, and a moderate sized pack is expected. The first of the crop was excellent but the latter is not expected to be so good. Some dealers hint that there is danger of the growing peas being affected by the recent warm weather. Factories will begin to can peas shortly after the first of the month.

Evaporated Peaches—Higher.

Seeded Raisins—Higher.

Winnipeg, June 22.—Various estimates are already being placed on the yield of the crop that is expected from the three prairie provinces. The latest report of conditions published in one of the leading papers show that in all parts of the country the best conditions in the last 15 years are being encountered. Estimates place the yield at over two hundred million bushels. This will be double that of last year, which was conceded by all to be around one hundred million. These remarkable conditions are reflected decidedly in the grocery trade, and stocks in many lines are almost completely consumed, especially canned goods and fruit, as country merchants have been doubling their orders on luxurious lines. The demand for canned goods during the week has been heavy, even more so than usually at this time of the year. New canned strawberries are expected shortly, and peas will follow later. Sugar took a slight flutter through bullish reports from New York, but the expected advance did not take place. The demand is increasing in this line, as a lot of small fruits are on the market which are being preserved.

Reports from California regarding the new fruit crop continue to be along the same line as that quoted last week. Prunes are higher but will probably decline after a while. Only about half of the usual crop of apricots is being received. New peaches will be higher on account of partial crop failure. Raisins remain steady at present high prices.

The local supply of canned goods is also pretty well used up, especially in vegetables. Canned salmon is moving freely and as stocks are very light the price is beginning to advance.

Sugar.—Some excitement was caused in the local sugar market through bullish reports from New York during the earlier part of the week, but it was recognized in time that the high price would not be sustained, and consequently the expected advance did not take place. The demand for this line has improved considerably during the week, as the preserving period is now at hand. The arrival of small fruits on the market has set the housewives busy throughout the country. Stocks are of fair size, and jobbers are able to cope successfully with the demand.

Dried Fruits.—Reports from California confirm the fact that one of the largest crops in the history of the prune industry has been received this year. Prices have opened up fairly high on account of its coming on a bare market, and packers have already booked orders for prompt shipment for about a month. It is fully recognized, however, that after the market is fairly well stocked that the price will take a sharp decline. Only one-quarter of the usual crop of appricots in California has been received, and prices are nearly prohibitive. New peaches will be much higher on account of partial crop failure. It is not expected that there will be any particular reduction in the price of raisins, which has advanced about two cents in the last two or three months, but there is no doubt that large quantities will be used.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, June 22.—A stiffening of prices is apparent in the local market. Although this is June and plenty of grass in the dairy districts, butter is firm with a tendency to increase. Local eggs, which went up a little a few weeks ago, continue scarce and are now jobbed at 35 cents a dozen. Carloads of eggs have been brought from Ontario and Manitoba to meet the demand.

It is declared that the home supply of beef is scarce. The local supply has not been good, and as a consequence for some time frozen meat has been brought from Winnipeg and Toronto, and last week some was brought even from Omaha. There is duty on beef from the United States. Hams and bacon are on the rise. The usual good supply of strawberries have come in from Hood Valley, Yakima and other points not far to the south, but the cool weather has kept back the locally grown.

New potatoes have been on the market for some weeks, but not in that quantity that will turn the consumer from the old crop, even when the latter is $3 a sack.

Canteloupes are now on sale from the south. The cherries this year seem to be larger and better than is usual at this time of year.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N.B., June 22.—With the exception of a drop of fifteen cents in Ontario flour, there were few changes of importance in the past week on the local market. No change was noted in the Manitoba brands. During the past few days an advance of 1 cent per pound was noted in the price of lard, while pork by the barrel and in the country market is considerably stronger.

In the country market also, conditions were quiet and no changes of interest were registered. Native strawberries are becoming more plentiful, while American strawberries have also been reduced in price, and are now quoted at fifteen cents per box.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., June 22.—Two big cargoes of produce unexpectedly came on the market this week. Two schooners arrived from Prince Edward Island with 2,500 bushels of potatoes, and a quantity of carrots, parsnips and beets. It was thought that all the Island stock had been cleaned up. This produce arrived when the market was practically bare, and it was readily bought up. The potatoes sold for eighty cents per bushel at the wharves.

Business in the fruit lines is active. The West India steamer arriving this week brought a big cargo of oranges and bananas. The demand for bananas is especially good, and in addition to the arrivals by boat, dealers are importing largely in car lots from Boston. They consider the price high, however, the best stock bringing $2.50 per bunch. Jamaica oranges are small but sweet, and they are going to the trade at $4.00 per barrel. Fancy lemons are selling at $4.00 to $4.50, and Grape fruit at $3.50 per case.

Fresh made butter is coming on the market in good supply, and the demand is excellent. Creamery prints are 25 cents, and dairy 22 to 23 cents. Cheese is showing a stronger tendency, but jobbers are looking for lower prices. Eggs are coming to hand in sufficient quantity to supply the local demand. Selected stock is quoted from 19 to 20 cents. Sugars remain unchanged.

Business generally is considered quite satisfactory for the season of the year, and there is quite an improvement in collections, particularly at the points along the coast.

TO INCREASE MEMBERSHIP.

Toronto, June 22 —A campaign for increased membership, with "four thousand before September first," as a slogan, is to be launched by the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. The first meeting of the new executive board was held last Friday night.

PACIFIC COAST PICNICS.

Vancouver, June 22. — The grocers both here and in Victoria are preparing for their annual picnics. These gatherings are a good thing to bring the members of the associations together in a social way, and when the members know each other better personally it is much easier to secure co-operation in the methods by means of which the organizations seek to attain success.

The Vancouver event will be held on July 1st at the exhibition grounds, and preparations are going ahead with the programme. The date of the Victoria picnic has not been decided.

ROSS ON POTATOES.

British Columbia Its Own Best Market.

Vancouver, June 22.—Canadian Trade Commisioner Ross, who reports from Australia, may know conditions in the Antipodes, but he lacks knowledge of conditions in British Columbia.

In his report to the department at Ottawa, he announces that there is a fine market for British Columbia potatoes in Australia this year. He overlooks the fact that the best market for British Columbia potatoes is in British Columbia. It will be many a day before there are enough for export. As it is, potatoes are being brought here from all over the North American continent, and even at that they are selling from $50 to $60 a ton, three times the average price.

The potatoes grown in this province are not by any means sufficient for the trade, and each year there are large importations. This spring, perhaps, the stringency was greater than usual, but as winter passes away each year, the price of potatoes climbs to at least $40 or $45. This season, before the seed was well in the ground, agents of Vancouver commission houses were in the field at Ashcroft, dickering with the farmers for next fall's crop. The price offered was $16 a ton, and this, compared with fall prices, is reasonable. The commission men will hold them very probably until the spring, when the price will be at least double that.

POSTPONED HOLIDAY IN LONDON.

London, Ont., June 22. — Because Thursday happened to be one of the best market days of the week here, the grocers decided to close only during the afternoon of Coronation Day. The stores were kept open on Wednesday afternoon, the clerks sacrificing the half-holiday to make up for the closing upon the following day. It is proposed to close all day Dominion Day, which falls on a Saturday.

Protective Associations Grow in the West

Secretary of Lethbridge Business Men's Protective Association Explains What is Being Done by Way of Organizing on the Prairies—The Probable Formation of Provincial Association—What This Organization Does for Members.

By B. L. Cope, Secretary Lethbridge Business Men's Protective Association.

Merchandising takes a big step forward every time the merchants of any one place join in a movement to beat the "dead beat." One of the pleasing features of the business situation in the prairie provinces is the gradual dawning of this fact upon the dealers of almost every place of any importance. We have had a protective association in Lethbridge for some little time, and on June 8th Calgary dealers fell into line when they formed the "Calgary Business Men's Protective Association." It is of this protective movement I desire to speak.

The dealers in Calgary were totally ignorant of the real aims and scope of an organization of this kind, simply because nobody had taken the matter up with them. Edmonton men have had an association for several years but never recognized the fact that the more of these bodies we have in the West the more useful they will be. I was only appointed to this position on the first of March and the first point I realized was that it must spread all over the West to be most effective.

Scattered Letters Broadcast.

With this idea in view I wrote to several of the larger places in the province asking them if they had an association, or any idea of organizing. I also wrote to all the big cities along the south coast of the United States and worked inland as well till I had succeeded in getting a good idea of what they did. Finding out that they had state associations south of us and a provincial association west of us, in British Columbia, I at once got to work with our larger centres of population showing them the idea of organizing local associations and the taking up of the matter of a provincial association the same as other parts, when we had enough of them. Up to the present time I have succeeded in organizing Taber, about thirty miles east of here, and Macleod, about the same distance west, and, as I have already stated, organized Calgary on June 8th. I have had no trouble so far in getting this done wherever the merchants know what the organization is and does.

What the Idea Is.

Our idea is to have the province mapped out into districts and the biggest town in that district handle its district, and in this way we hope to cover the whole of the west, not Alberta only but Saskatchewan as well. Manitoba has the Western Retail Association to take care of its interests. Then the locals can report to their provincial headquarters and the headquarters of each province can work together and in that way we hope to spread the net all over the west and south as far as is possible. At the present time I am working with every known organization from Winnipeg to the west coast and south as far as Los Angeles and inland in the States to the State of Montana, which is directly south of here.

Only Ten Years Behind.

We are only about ten years behind the times in this move for they had these organizations to the south of us for that many years and the wholesalers have had them for over thirty years. The association in Portland, Oregon, was organized in 1878. This is the wholesalers' association. The work of our association among the retailers is exactly the same as it is among the wholesalers, for it performs the same functions in that it protects them from unworthy customers, deals with legislation that would be detrimental to their interests and keeps in touch with everything of this kind. In some places they even go so far as to employ an engineer of their own to keep a check on the city engineer, also employ a solicitor of their own to advise them on all legislation.

Since the re-organization of this association here we have done a vast amount of good and hope to continue to do so as long as there is any call for it, which will be a good many years yet. We have stopped the "Dead Beat" from living on our merchants, have asked for an amendment on our Transients Trades License, which was most unfair to the local merchants the way it was, and have put the ban on all fake advertising, to say nothing of numerous other little points that have been brought up and dealt with.

The future of these organizations in this province is assured and in another month I expect there will be a meeting held in Calgary for the purpose of completing the provincial association.

The dues of the Lethbridge Association are $2 per month, and each merchant pays 5 per cent. for all collections made by the efforts of the association whether paid to the secretary or to the merchant.

Merchant's Monthly Report.

Number 20.

To the Secretary,
P.O. Box 122, Lethbridge.

Note.—Copy to be mailed to the secretary not later than 10th day of each month.

Name.	Address.	Amount.	Code.	Remarks.
Anderson, G	Lethbridge.....	19.50	R	Laborer
Andrews, A.	Lethbridge.....	45.80	R	Carpenter
Ackland, G.	Lethbridge.....	54.60	S	Plasterer
Ashcroft, B.	Lethbridge.....	85.80	X	Contractor
Armstrong, A. ...	Wanted	106.50	X	Painter

"R" means if man wants goods "requires cash." "S" means "slow pay." "X" means "no good or additional information on application to secretary."

Each merchant has a number. It is 20 in this case, and the list is, as you will note, addressed to the secretary. If this list was lost or came into the hands of any other person than the secretary it would not give any clue as to who had sent it in or made it up. It is a confidential list, and the secretary keeps the numbers so as to be the only person to know who the list belongs to.

Each merchant sends in this list of delinquents on this form not later than the 10th of the month, as you will note, and then we have our executive meet and go over the lists, the secretary only seeing the list and reading out the names. In this way a lot of unknown information is gleaned, such as where the person is employed at the time, or where they live, etc. All names turned in are then notified on the prescribed form, a copy of which is reproduced, and at the end of the ten days allowed for settlement a complete list is made of all unpaid accounts and each member gets a copy of this. This is the monthly list of undesirable customers, which proves of exceptional value to the members of the association.

The occupation should always be given, as it will avoid any possible mistake if there should happen to be two persons of the same name in the same place, the one a barber and the other a lawyer or any other trade or profession that might be mentioned.

No doubt the phenomenal growth and development of the Canadian West have caused you much thought as to representatives in that fast growing and ready market.

We will represent you at each pulsating distributing centre. We have large track warehouses and ample storage accommodation for all classes of merchandise.

We will handle your products for you on a reasonable commission basis. We have the experience, the business ability and the financial standing to do so successfully.

Let us advise you of the Western prospects of YOUR line—drop us a card and get in touch with us at once.

Much depends on it for you.

Live Hogs and Provisions are Higher

Steadier Live Hog Market—Advances Made in Provisions — Good Demand From All Centres—Smoked and Cooked Meats Selling Well—English Bacon Market is Steady—Butter is Plentiful, but Steady in Price.

A steady and a higher market on live hogs continues this week and in sympathy with the upward movement in hogs of the past two weeks, a stronger tone to provisions and lard with advances in different lines is reported from all centres. Cables are good and a satisfactory trade is being done in all sections of the country, eastern packers having recently received some substantial orders from Western Canada. Smoked and cooked meats are going out in increased quantities and with the smaller stocks prices are firm. The English bacon market maintains a steady position while live hogs in the Western States are also steady.

A better tone is in evidence in the butter market in general and while no change has taken place in quotations at most centres, there is, however, a stronger feeling noticeable. This is explained by an increased export demand of late, while June butter is more sought after than the earlier varieties as the quality is considered better.

Eggs are reported plentiful from various centres, with a steady and active market, but conditions show no change over last week. A considerable shrinkage is in evidence already and of course this will become larger as the summer advances.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Higher prices for different lines of pork, dry salt meats, cooked hams and others are noticed, due to increased demand and also to the fact that supplies have not been as heavy as necessary to meet the present requirements.

TORONTO.

Provisions.—Business in provisions is quite good, a satisfactory city and country trade being done with substantial orders from the West also. Upward again has gone the price of hogs with quotations at country points reaching as high as $7.10. However, the opinion has been expressed by more than one packer that they have gone the limit for the present. Lard is up ¼ cent per pound, while long clear is also stronger at 11 to 11¼. There is a big demand for smoked and cooked meats at firm prices, the latter having stiffened up to 24 cents. Heavy mess and short cut has, however, moved in the opposite direction, while trade in these lines just now is not brisk.

Butter.—Butter continues to arrive in large quantities, the quality of the shipments being good. While all firms have not made changes in quotations, the tone of the market is firmer. This is explained by the fact that June butter being of a better quality is in greater demand in general. Prospects are still reported bright for a good sized make during the summer.

Provisions.—Trade continues active in all lines, but there is little new in prices. Live hogs are holding steady both on the local and Chicago markets, which has resulted in the decline of lard being checked, and the low point is regarded by some to have been reached. Cured and dried salt meats remain firm at last week's advance, and there has been little difference noticed in the demand. Prices are as follows:

Butter.—The market is holding steady at last week's decline, and supplies of creamery in boxes are increasing rapidly. Dairy butter has also declined from 1 to 2 cents, and while the supply is fairly heavy, the demand is extremely light. Retailers in large cities refuse to handle dairy made goods, as they claim they can never count on getting fresh, sweet, sound butter.

Eggs.—The supply of eggs has fallen off somewhat which has brought about an advance of one cent per doz. Strictly fresh eggs are extremely hard to secure and are being retailed in the city at 30c. a dozen. Fresh eggs, known as Manitoba fresh, but not guaranteed as strictly fresh, are being bought at 19c. per doz., and jobbers claim that they are not securing as much as they would like at this price.

Cheese.—The demand for cheese continues firm, little is offered, and dealers are still quoting 10½c. per lb., delivered in Winnipeg. It is expected that factory owners will endeavor to bring about an advance in price by holding off their supplies. Old Manitoba and Eastern cheese can still be secured at 13 to 13½c., and 14 to 14½c. respectively.

Poultry.—The poultry market is quiet, as the native grown supply is very light, and just now the summer trade is also on the light side. Eastern poultry is always on hand, but great efforts are being made to improve Manitoba conditions. An agricultural special demonstration train is touring the province at present, and during the last weeks two expert eastern poultry men who have been touring the western provinces, joined the train. They were Prof. F. C. Alfred of the MacDonald College, Quebec, and J. I. Brown, manager of the poultry department of the Gunn, Langlois Co., Montreal. These two gentlemen are handling the poultry question three times a day at the various points where meetings are held, as it is the intention of the agricultural authorities to boost this industry as much as possible during the next few years.

to speak. There was a tree about a mile away, and "Billy" wanted that cut down before he got really under way because he evidently feared he would have to collide with it before the emergency brakes could be got to work.

But the travelers didn't do a thing to the grocers in the relay race. That aggregation composed of Phil Brown, G. Patterson, C. Collins, C Kimpton, J. Smith, C. F. Grant, F. G. Danby, F. Cowan, C. Lang and T. E. Trope. Wow! The grocers say they were tired out anyway from all the winning they had to do during the day and that they simply had to hand something to the wholesale crowd, but, oh what's the use.

It was an all-round good day. Cold going down in the morning, the sun came out about noon and during the afternoon there were a good many who wished it somewhere else. But it didn't rain as some people expected and it was a pleasant time that was spent. The Caledonians who were in town and holding forth at Polo Park, seemed to be glad of that fact. But as we were about to remark the afternoon came to an end at last, and the crowd that trooped aboard the fast vessel for the run home will never be so very young again.

NOTES ON THE SIDE.

Bailey Snow was unquestionably the ladies' man for the day.

Dave Clark made a splendid starter. But history has it he made a very poor finish in the 100 yards. "Too Fat."

Frank Johnstone "the big chief" caught the fair ones at the tape.

Milton Cork would make a good sprinter if he could only "settle down."

Dick Van Loon was all but "Knighted" by royalty in Cobourg, except for the slip of tongue, "I'm Dutch."

Dave Radcliffe and Fred Mason are a good combination on the "lone hand" deal.

West Williams is some singer.

Jack Wright's lungs are O. K. yet.

One grocer bought 4 doz. strictly new laid eggs at 15c a doz, broke 10, cracked 3, swallowed 3. What was the net cost per doz.?

C. Wilson passed a loaded cigar to Harry Brown. The crash came later.

Charlie Bellinger has a sad story to relate of The Empty House.

Dickie Matthews proved himself the dark horse in the race for Grocers.

Donald McLean visited all the clergy in Cobourg.

"Freddie" Thorne was a busy man, but found time to pick up 100 lbs. of granulated sugar. "Easy money, Fred."

"Billy" Miller acted as megaphone artist, and won't do it again, he says.

J. S. Bond, alias "Condor Charlie," was the chief judge and his decisions were never questioned.

DISPUTE ON EARLY CLOSING.

Opinion Divided on Question in St. John.

St. John, N.B., June 22.—There is still no settlement of the dispute concerning the Early Closing By-Law, and it is causing considerable discussion. A meeting was held this week by those opposed to the movement and it was decided to defy the law and remain open after the appointed hour of closing, 7 p.m. This was done by several dealers, and the consequence was that the police reported them. Among the number were a few grocers.

In the majority of cases, however, the grocers are in favor of the early closing enactment, and are not in sympathy with those seeking to have it repealed. The public interest in the matter is quite keen, and difficult to judge accurately, as opinions are divided, but there is a united feeling that little corner groceries kept by widows, cripples, or aged people, should not be compelled to close, as most of their little trade on which they are dependent takes place after seven o'clock.

CLOSING IN FREDERICTON.

Fredericton, N.B., June 22.—The agitation for a half-holiday on Thursday during the summer has been successful, and the merchants in all lines of business have agreed to close their premises and give themselves and their clerks a half day respite each Thursday during July and August. The action arises out of a canvass made by Ald. Hooper, Guthie, and W. A. B. McLellan, who interested themselves in the matter.

HOLD JULY THIRD.

Berlin Merchants Subscribing to a Fight Fund.

Berlin, Ont., June 22.—The Berlin grocers have been the leading spirits in an agitation as the result of which a motion was put through the Retail Merchants' Association meeting that will result in the stores in Berlin being kept open on Dominion Day, as it falls on Saturday, but Monday following will be observed as a holiday. Saturday in Berlin is important to all the retailers, owing to the exceptionally large market here, bringing farmers from all points within a radius of twenty miles, some coming even from outside the county. However, it was only by a majority of one that this action was decided upon, the others wanting to have the market changed to Friday. The majority felt that this would not prove a success. There appears to be, however, some dissatisfaction.

The grocers of Berlin, and in fact practically all the merchants, have joined in liberally subscribing to the fund being raised to fight the Co-operative Societies' Bill again before the Dominion House. The announcement by the president of the Scottish Co-operative Society, William Maxwell, now in Canada in the interests of the bill, that he has assurances that make him confident that the bill will carry in the house, has had the tendency of awakening the retailers here to a sense of the danger that threatens them.

Western Canada Ships Flour to Japan

Shipments to Ports in Japan—Hope of Permanent Trade With Orient—Flour Prices Continue Steady — Trade Not Brisk — Wheat Continues to Fluctuate—Rolled Oats Steady — Decrease in Visible Oat Supply in Canada.

A steady demand, but without any particular briskness is the general report of the flour trade from the different centres in regard to domestic trade. Export business is quite slack, although some bright spots make their appearance from time to time.

From Winnipeg comes a report of further shipments of flour to different ports in Japan. For the past few months business has been done with different parts of the Orient, shipments being made via Vancouver and the hope is expressed that a permanent trade be worked up in this part of the world for Manitoba flour.

The feature of the wheat market is its irregularity. Advances and concessions are continually taking place and after a week's fluctuation, the market is practically back to the position held a week ago. Under favorable crop reports, quotations eased off somewhat on Saturdat last, but at the beginning of the week, alarming reports of a black outlook for crops in South Dakota caused a sharp advance in Chicago which resulted in a hardening of prices on Canadian markets.

The world's wheat shipments last week amounted to 10,960,000 bushels as against 12,512,000 bushels the previous week and 7,200,000 a year ago. The visible supply of wheat in the United States on June 19th was 25,643,000 bushels as compared with 15,104,000 last year and 12,923,000 bushels in 1909.

The oat market continues steady with export trade fair. The Canadian visible supply decreased 1,135,000 bushels last week. Trade in rolled oats is of a hand to mouth character.

WINNIPEG.

Flour.—Considerable improvement has taken place of late in the demand for flour both for domestic and export. Mills are all working full time now. One of the largest milling companies in the city is making a shipment of high grade flour to the Orient from Vancouver next week. The flour is to the order of a merchant at Yokohama and Kobe. Oriental demand for high grade flour, has during the last few months, improved considerably, and it is the opinion of those who are in the trade that successful shipments can be made monthly in the future. Large shipments are at the present time going to Suva and Fiji, via Vancouver. Local market continues firm and prices are unchanged, namely, 1st patents, $2.65 per 98 lb. sack; 2nd, $2.45; strong bakers, $2.25; 1st Clares and common grade, $2.25.

Cereals.—It is surprising how the demand for feed continues to keep up. In spite of the ideal weather for the growing of hay and pasture the demand for feed is fully equal to the supply. A good volume of business is being transacted and a fair demand is still prevalent from the east. The fact that an active business is in circulation and that stocks are not heavy, keeps the price up and no change has taken place from last week. Rolled oats is also steady, and quoted at $1.90 per sack, standard and guaranteed oatmeal $2.40, and cornmeal $1.75.

Calgary Man Believes Handling Only First Quality Butter Will Bring Increased Trade—Chatham Man Suggests Treatment for Confectionery Window—The Fruit and Green Goods Department of Vancouver Establishment.

Makes Specialty of Butter.

Calgary, Alta., June 22.—A local grocer makes a specialty of handling only first quality butter and believes that it attracts a good deal of trade for him. This merchant in speaking in reference to butter said: "For various reasons the butter trade is one which every good grocer should want to cultivate and see growing. It causes customers to have faith in you, when they can rely on you for choice butter all the year round. Another reason is that since butter is on the table at every meal, and is used for a great variety of purposes, there is a big sale for it which should mean a big profit for the dealer. If you are getting a customers' butter orders, you are very liable to get a large percentage of their other trade too. Another reason is that the butter on the table is often praised by a visitor to the house and the question: 'Whose butter do you use?' is invariably asked. And if it is your butter, you have secured a splendid advertisement."

Build up Confectionery Trade.

St. John's Nfld., June 22.—A local grocery firm having been giving more than ordinary attention to confectionery during the past year and have been so well satisfied with results from that department that they have set apart a section of their store to meet the increased trade in that respect.

When they first began this department they started in lightly with a few kinds of the best chocolates and as the demand increased, the quantities and number of lines were increased. The section devoted to candy is not large but it is compact and adequate. A show case has been set apart entirely for confectionery and the shelves behind it bear only candy. The sweet goods are therefore practically apart from the general groceries, and being compact makes a pleasing display that attracts customers.

Covers Confectionery With Mesh.

Chatham, Ont., June 22.—"Now that the warm weather is coming, the grocer will be finding it timely and yet difficult to display cakes and biscuits to advantage," remarked a merchant the other day. "This is especially so when the flies come in. In summer time cakes and buscuits are quite in order, and should make an attractive showing in a window; but I'm afraid a window display of assorted biscnits with a hundred or more flies buzzing about, isn't quite so attractive to the buyer as it is to the flies.

"I've found it a neat thing to cover my display with a light netting, preferably white, with a very large mesh. Sometimes I spread it over a series of little uprights, a foot more or less in height, so that it forms a sort of tent. Beneath this the cakes and biscuits can be arranged on plates, or in any way that strikes the fancy. The netting, having a large mesh, doesn't obscure the view to any great extent; in fact, it has a sort of toning effect, just the same as toning in a photograph, and I really think adds to the attractiveness of the display and gives the buscuits a tasty appearance that they soon lose in an open window. Further, it keeps off the flies.

"Then where the tent effect is secured in spreading the netting, the arrangement is in itself suggestive of camping out. You can help that effect by the use of display cards: 'Just the thing to take for lunch,' or something like that. Occasionally I have covered each plate of biscuits with a little netting tent of its own, which is an attractive variation. The same idea can be used where goods of this sort are displayed on counters; while the netting can be used to advantage even inside the silent salesmen. It is useful for quite a number of lines besides biscuits. Cooked ham is an instance; also confectionery. Of course it is a bit of a hindrance when you want to sell direct from the display; but with biscuits you sell from the box."

Sells Lemon Drink.

London, Ont., June 22.—Just because a grocer sells lemons and sugar is no reason why he should leave to the druggist the trade in fruit extracts, as the experience of a London merchant shows. This grocer sold almost 300 ten-cent bottles of a standard line of lemon drink one Saturday, recently.

At the same time he was turning over a goodly number of packages of grape juice put up by another firm, and there is no sign of the primitive lemon going out of fashion either.

Specialized on Cheese.

Montreal, June 22.—His cheese trade is one of the specialities in the business of Chas. E. Box, a Westmount grocer. He obtains his cheese from a maker in Ontario and depends entirely upon this source of supply. The cheese he offers his customers is, therefore, as uniform as can well be expected. It is a fine Canadian cheese, and it really built up its own reputation. Mr. Box supplied foodstuffs for different affairs, his cheese among them, and this means together with the regular store trade soon increased the number of enquiries. Even new customers were gained by this method. They came for cheese but remained for crackers and a dozen other lines. This idea of specializing in some particular line has helped more than one grocer.

Profits From Fruit and Green Goods.

Vancouver, B.C., June 22.—A local dealer considers his fruit and green goods department a very profitable portion of his business. "Many of my best customers," he declared recently, "have been brought to dealing with me regularly through the medium of my fruit or green goods department. Often I have a display of these lines in my window and a customer will see them and come in to purchase. I take great care that only the best quality goods are allowed to go out, and as a result this brings me returned trade. This is only a beginning. When customers have purchased their fruit, I introduce some other line to them and in this way I often gain regular customers. Then the department itself pays a satisfactory profit because I exercise judgment in ordering supplies, so that there will be no left-overs. Of course there is some loss in this manner but care in buying and quick turnover will eliminate a good deal of it."

Advantages of Association.

Fredericton, N.B., June 22.—That the dealer should remember the advantages of association in the sale of groceries, is the belief of a local merchant, who says it will be of benefit to them.

"If you sell a customer fruit, it at once suggests sugar and the grocer should mention sugar to the customer. In the same way, flour suggests yeast, meats suggest sauces, oysters suggest crackers, etc. Quite often when a customer orders one of these, she can also be sold the article associated with it, if the clerk will only introduce it."

"This is also of use in the advertising of goods. If you are advertising fruit, add to it sugar and scalers, and if your ad. is such as will sell the customer fruit, they will very likely also purchase either sugar or scalers or both. Another example is the combining of maple sugar and pancake flour, as one of these articles helps to sell the other."

Authorities are After Vendors of Questionable Food

Winnipeg, June 22.—During May 1,578 inspections were made here of premises where food is stored, prepared, or offered for sale. As a result, 22 prosecutions were instituted, and convictions secured in every case. Of these, ten were for dirty premises, four for bread exposed to dirt and dust, and two for bread below the standard weight.

Foodstuffs to the amount of 19,719 lbs. were condemned and ordered destroyed during the month. Among the chief items were 1,263 lbs. of meat, 4,350 of fish, 3,075 of fresh fruit, 4,860 of vegetables, 1,152 of butter, 1,500 of lard, 1,175 of canned goods, 375 of candy, and only 45 lbs. of eggs.

Ice Cream Selling.

The selling of ice cream from push-carts has been prohibited. It may now be sold only from glass-enclosed receptacles, and then only in cones. Street vendors have also been prohibited from selling soft drinks in glasses, as they have no facilities for the washing of glasses and dishes. Drinks can be sold by the nomadic vendors only in bottles. The report of the chief food inspector points out that ice cream from push-carts gives a very high bacterial count, and when retailed in such a manner is not above suspicion. Warning has been given to drivers of bakers' and other rigs that they will be held personally responsible for the cleanliness of their vehicles and methods of handling foodstuffs.

TO GROW FRUIT IN LABRADOR.

Blueberries, gooseberries, cranberries and fruit will soon be growing on the desolate Labrador coast if C. Martyn Spencer, a graduate of an agricultural college in Montreal, is successful. Spencer, who is a cousin of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the noted medical missionary of Labrador, sailed from Boston recently on the mission schooner Lorna Doone for the Labrador coast, where he intends to devote his life in teaching the people of that barren land the rudiments of agriculture.

Scarcity Sends Potato Prices Upward

New Potatoes Higher in Price—Virginia Potatoes Open High—Old Stocks Scarcer in Montreal and Toronto—Prices Higher—Lemons Firm—Good Demand— Home Grown Strawberries Selling Well—Sale of Pines is Curtailed—Canadian Cherries Arrive Also—Peaches, Plums, Apricots and Watermelons on Market.

The dealer should now have on hand plenty of delicacies with which to coax the lagging appetites of his customers. From all sections of the continent the wholesale fruit men have collected a big list of dainties calculated to please the palates of the consuming public. Most prominent is the home grown strawberry, excellent in quality and reasonable in price. From various parts of Canada cherries are also being received, while from California are coming supplies as well as peaches, apricots and plums. watermelons are coming from Florida, tomatoes from Texas and Mississippi. while new potatoes are being received from Florida and Virginia.

Lemons continue firm under a steady demand created by the warmer weather, and stocks are again being cut into. "If this weather continues," declared one dealer, "I am afraid that some dealers will be caught again with short stocks with the same result as before."

Pineapples have been going out freely but the demand is now being curtailed somewhat by the arrival of other fruits on the market. The pines this year have run to a large extent to small sizes while the larger ones are the best sellers. Despite the fact of smaller arrivals, pines in New York last week were a little easier, so that some dealers have expressed the opinion that there may be slightly lower prices again.

Texas and Mississippi tomatoes are about done but Tennessee will be sending along shipments in a few days. The demand for tomatoes on the whole continues quite favorable.

Stocks of old potatoes are getting rather scarce and consequently dearer. This week advances in price are noted on both the Toronto and Montreal markets, scarcity of supplies both spot and throughout the country being given as the reason. Winnipeg also reports a curtailment of shipments to that point. New potatoes are also higher in price, Virginia which are now starting to be shipped, having opened at a higher figure than for several years.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—New California fruit is arriving now, car load lots being the present order. Apricots, peaches, cherries and plums, comprise the list with prices opening at a fair figure. Canadian strawberries are being received in good condition and as usual sell at various prices depending upon circumstances which change frequently. Otherwise the market is steady. Lemons are firm with a fair demand. Grape fruit, bananas and pines are moving freely.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Lemons continue steady in price on this market with quotations the same as last week. It has been excellent lemon weather and with a continuance, dealers expect at least a steady market. Pineapples are at the moment a little stronger but prices are easier in New York. The demand has been curtailed somewhat by the early arrival of strawberries and other fruits. Watermelons are a little lower this week with a fairly good sale. Late Valencia oranges are going out at $3.75 to $4.00, while a few navels are also obtainable but the orange trade just now is not overly brisk. Canadian cherries are more plentiful at 75c to $1.00 for ordinary stocks while choice are bringing higher values. California peaches and apricots are arriving in limited quantities with the former at $2.00 and the latter at $4.00 per box of about six dozen. Texas tomatoes are nearing an end but Tennessee will be coming along in a few days. Canadian strawberries are quoted at 8 to 11 cents, which is higher than at one time last week when big shipments were sent to the market. It is at present an intervening time between when berries are falling off in one district and starting in another. The heaviest shipments will be over in a week and a half according to several dealers.

Vegetables.—The big change of the week has been the upward movement in potatoes, a sharp advance from $1.10 to $1.25 per bag having taken place. Scarcity of stocks is the reason assigned, a recent inspection of general stocks having brought dealers to recognize this fact, with the resulting advance in price. "Spot stocks are scarce," said one dealer, "while the quantity in the country is small. Instead of receiving car lots, we get 40 to 50 bags at a time. I expect to see potatoes go even higher because it will be some time before new ones become reasonable in price." Imported new potatoes have taken a sharp upward

Fresh Fruits.—The arrival of Hood River strawberries which is always looked for with much anticipation by the wholesalers has been the event of the week in this line. The berries are reof good shape and juicy, but the crop is reported to be limited, and the price will remain high. Quotations are at present $4 to $5 per 24-quart crate. Other lines of strawberries are practically off the market, and some speculation as to the time of arrival of Ontario berries is at present being indu,ged in. Trade in other lines cantinues active, and few changes will be noticed.

Green Vegetables.—A few changes of interest have taken place on the market, the most noticeable of them being the advance in the price of potatoes. Prices are now $1.10 per bushel for small lots, while in 10 and 20 bushel lots $1, and farmers' loads per bushel, 80c.; Ontario potatoes in carload lots are selling at from 90 to 95 cents. Some stocks of fresh carrots, beets and turnips are all being received from the Mississippi Valley in boxes. Native supplies of radish, lettuce, and onions are fairly large, but parsley is scarce. Spinach is also very plentiful, and a big reduction has taken place. The season on the whole is regarded to be specially early when compared with last year, and as a result supplies are being brought on the market from two and three weeks ahead of last year.

Heavy Lobster Catches in Cape Breton

One Report Says the Largest in 20 Years on That Coast—Factories Running Full Time—Regular Summer Demand in Evidence—Mackerel Catch Slackened on Nova Scotian Coast—Ice Jams Interfere With Newfoundland Fisheries

Supplies of fish are generally good, with the exception of such lines as are naturally becoming short. The demand shows but little change, and is the regular summer demand. The price is satisfactory, and is quite ordinary, a fact that accounts largely for the present demand. Although fresh fish are bringing the most business there is still quite a demand for other lines, such as smoked, prepared and salt fish.

The mackerel catch has slackened on the Nova Scotian coast, while a large proportion of supplies has been shipped to the Boston market, where they command a good price. One report says that lobster fishery on the Cape Breton coast is the best in 20 years. Nearly all the factories in that section are running full time. Lobsters are quite plentiful on New Brunswick markets. Fishing on the north coast of Newfoundland has been interfered with considerably by the ice jams.

QUEBEC.

Montreal. — Fresh fish are coming in freely enough for the present demand, with haddock, cod, halibut and whitefish dividing up the present trade. Brok trout are about finished, with the price holding firm. Gaspe salmon are coming more freely with the price reduced below last week's.

Fresh mackerel are receiving considerable attention just now and are delectable.

NEW BRUNSWICK

St. John.—Lobsters are not being received here as plentifully as some of the dealers would wish, and various reasons are attributed for this fact. This is a season when in other years they have been secured in fairly large quantities, but so far this year they have been none too abundant. From 15 to 40 cents each is the price being asked. The shad season is ended so far as fishing in the harbor is concerned, but it is expected that there will be a run of river shad for some time yet. Salmon are fairly plentiful, and are offered at from 16 to 26 cents.

ONTARIO.

Toronto. — Considering the warm weather, the local fish trade is fairly good. True it is that orders do not run into any large amount, but business is quite steady in character. Fresh fish are capturing the larger percentage of the trade, with halibut and trout the favorites. Prices continue quite steady.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—The trade in mackerel was brisk during the early part of the week, but since then has slackened off. Nearly forty thousand mackerel were landed here on Monday, and they were quickly bought up. The majority of these fish were iced in barrels, and shipped off to Boston. They are retailing on the local market at 20 cents each. The lobster fishery on the Cape Breton coast is the best for twenty years. More than 60,000 lobsters were packed in one factory at Alder Point, during the past week. Nearly all the factories are running on full time, and it is expected that the total pack will be the heaviest for some years.

Outside of mackerel, the trade in fresh fish is a little on the dull side. The haddock that are being marketed are of poor quality and the cod are only fair. There is not much sale for halibut in the warm weather. Salmon are much scarcer than usual, for the season of the year. On the smoked fish line, fairly good sales are reported, but stocks are light, only sufficient being on hand to fill orders. The salt fish trade remains practically unchanged.

The barquentine Fanny Bresleur sailed from here to-day for Santos, Brazil, with a big cargo of fish. She took 4,364 tubs and 15 boxes of dry cod. The cargo is valued at $40,000.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

St. John's.—The latest news from the Labrador coast report north-east winds prevailing, with a solid jam of ice extending from Battle Harbor to Indian Harbor, unbroken since the winter. It will be seen that with the prevailing winds, it will be impossible for schooners to proceed farther north than Battle Harbor for some time. A few days off shore winds would no doubt make a desirable change. Whales have been reported plentiful off the Newfoundland coast. The best catches for cod for the season have been made recently on the local grounds, particularly to the northward. There is also a good sign of fish in Placentia Bay. Around Point Verde boats had from 3 to 5 quintals each. Salmon also continue plentiful on the local grounds.

Honesty in Business the Only Policy

Just a Few Instances Calculated to Show How Dealers Have Repeatedly Suffered in the Past Through Resorting to Dishonest Tactics—The Short Weight Man — The Add-to-Price Man—The Inferior Goods Man—The Merchant Who Lied to Only One Customer.

By J. W. B.

HONESTY in his business is the only policy possible for the dealer who wishes to succeed. Honesty in his goods, in their weight, in his recommendations of goods, and in everything connected with the business, are essential qualities of the grocer who wishes to retain his customers' confidence. This is necessary if a business is ever to expand. "Tricks of the trade" are all right, providing such do not verge on dishonest methods, but it has been proven that a merchant cannot succeed with dishonest practices. He may keep them unknown for a time, but they are bound to leak out, and reaction will follow.

It Comes Back.

One of the things that come back to the dealer with manifold reaction is short weight.

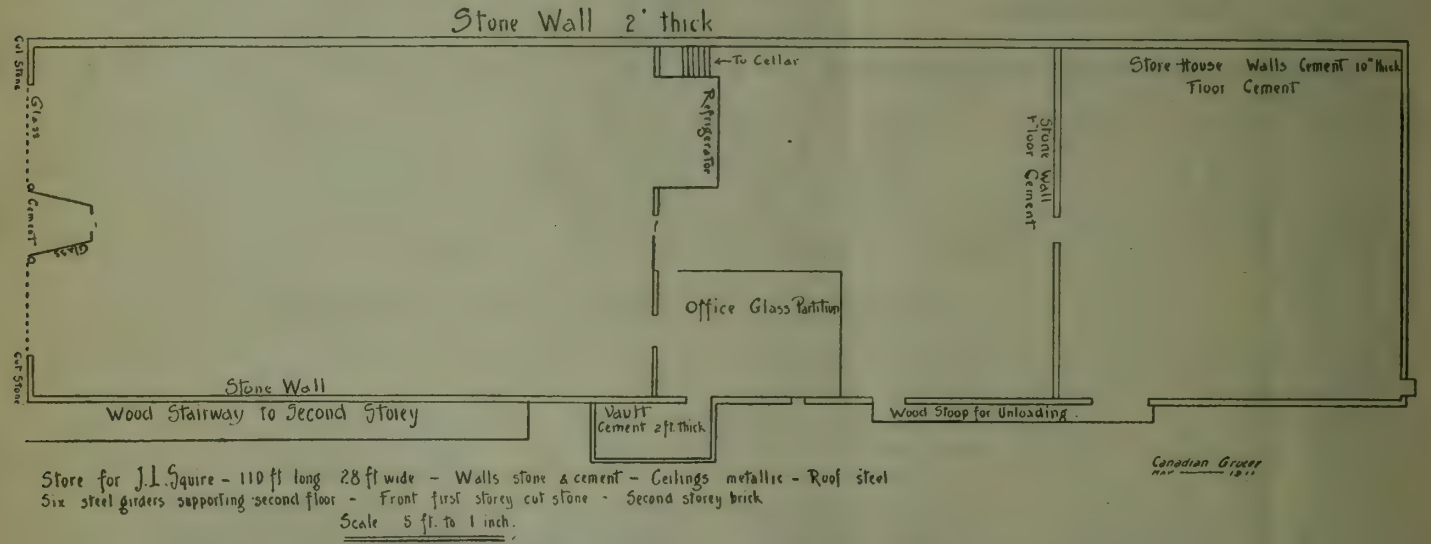
In a country town, not many years ago a dealer held a sale of a staple line of groceries at a very low price, lower in fact than other grocers could buy the same article. He was an unscrupulous merchant, one of those who cannot see far ahead, and he figured that he would get out even, because he intended to shortweight each parcel a little. Of course, the price being low and the article a staple one, all the housewives in that town hastened to avail themselves of the chance to purchase the goods at such a low price. It attracted many customers to his store, and he did an enormous business. He chuckled to himself at his cleverness, and pacified his conscience by calling it a "trick of the trade."

The Pair of Scales.

However, one of the housewives to whom he sold, kept a pair of scales in her pantry, and when she got home she placed the parcel on the scales. What was her feeling when she found she had been short-weighted. It was not a very large amount, only a quarter of a pound on twenty, but she was angry. The grocer had deliberately deceived her. She decided that she would no longer deal with him.

But it did not stop there. It did not only affect one customer. This customer when talking with her neighbor, told of the parcel that had been short weight. Of course, the story spread, and soon that small amount which was really short, grew to monstrous size, and all the ladies of that town began to look with distrust upon this grocer. Slowly, but certainly, like some dreaded disease, this rumor of short weight tore down the reputation of this dealer, while he, unconscious of the reason, wondered what was wrong with his business.

The "Inferior Goods" Man.



Then there is the merchant who recommends inferior goods because they bring him a little higher rate of profit. The grocer who says: "This is the best that can be bought," when he knows it is not, may escape often, but there are many times when he will not.

In a grocery not long ago a customer asked for pineapple in heavy syrup. The merchant had nothing but that in the light syrup, and he did not like to lose the sale, so when the customer asked: "Is that in the heavy syrup?" he assured her that it was. This lady, however, used a lot of pineapple, and when she opened the can she knew that the grocer had deceived her. She was angry, because she had asked him for certain if it was in the heavy syrup, and she decided to deal with a grocer on whom she could depend.

Adds to Price.

Another class of grocer will add a little to the price whenever he gets a chance.

A lady went into a store to buy an article of which there is not a great deal sold. She was not familiar with the price. This grocer, seeing a chance to make an extra ten cents, charged her that much more. When she was in another store she saw the same article sold at ten cents less, and on enquiry at other stores found the same to be true. She decided that she would withdraw her trade from a store that stole an extra five or ten cents whenever they got a chance.

PLAN OF J. L. SQUIRE STORE, NORWOOD, ONT.

The illustration given above is that of a true sketch of the building occupied by the retail establishment of J. L. Squire, in Norwood, Ont. The neat and compact arrangement may be noted as showing what can be done in a small community along the line of producing a store as convenient as may be constructed for the outlay. The building is 110 feet long by 28 feet in width, and is divided into three compartments. The ceilings are metallic, the roof of steel, with six steel girders supporting the second floor. The walls are of stone and cement. In the compartment at the rear all the heavier goods are stored.

Grocer's Encyclopedia - Arrowroot

How Indian Medicine Man Discovered Its Remarkable Properties When Employed to Offset the Effects of Poison From Arrows—How It Grows—Methods of Preparation—For Children and Invalids.

One hundred years and more ago when the Indians made war upon each other, they used poisoned arrows that the wound might be more fatal. The old Indian doctors, however, found that the roots of a plant, if used soon enough offset the poison and this plant became known as arrowroot. Since then a great many uses have been discovered for this root and in a powdered form it is now sold in the grocery store.

Arrowroot is an article which as yet is not handled to any great extent in the majority of stores, but which, on account of its food value and numerous uses is sure to forge its way to the front. Perhaps one reason for the demand not growing as much as is warranted lies in the fact that the substance itself and its uses are not well known to either the dealer or the consumer. However, the merchant who gives it a little study should be able to work up a nice trade in this line.

What It Is.

Arrowroot is a dry powdery and nutritive starch made from the pith of the roots of plants of a certain type grown in the West and East Indies, Bermuda and Port Natal. Being easy of digestion it is a food for children and invalids while it can be used for making up an endless variety of table dainties, being excellent for custards, cakes, puddings, blanc manges, soups, gravies, sauces, etc.

The arrowroot plant is cultivated in much the same manner as potatoes. The ground is plowed, harrowed and laid out in drills about six inches deep and three feet apart. In these drills the roots are set about every 8 inches, plowed over, and harrowed. It grows two or three feet high with branching stems, broad pointed leaves and small white flowers. These fleshy roots when a year old are about a foot long and as thick as one's finger. They are dug up, washed, peeled, grated or crushed between rollers, followed by the drying process which leaves the manufactured article.

An exchange has the following to say regarding arrowroot: "The health giving virtues of pure arrowroot are acknowledged by all who have studied the nature and value of the various food substances provided for the use of mankind. In point of nutrition it is a leader, while its easy digestibility and delicious taste render it an ideal article of general food It is to these special qualities that arrowroot owes its fame as a strength restorer to invalids and as an effective source of vigor and health for growing children. But it is much more than this: it is just as useful and as necessary an article of diet for men and women as for children and in homes where it is in regular use, it is held in the highest esteem for the splendid health results that it yields."

Its Preparation.

Another report on arrowroot says: "When good, arrowroot is a light opaque white powder, insipid and inodorous and will keep many years in a dry place. When it is rubbed between the fingers it produces a slight crackling noise, something like new snow being pressed into a snowball, and when mixed with boiling water it swells up into a consistent jelly. Arrowroot is less apt to become sour during digestion than any other farinaceous foods, hence its use for the sick and the delicate. When pure, arrowroot is perfectly soluble in cold water but if adulterated a starchy sediment results. There should be no froth when boiled."

To prepare plain arrowroot, you first mix the arrowroot in a basin with a little cold water or milk. Boil milk and pour it boiling on to the batter, stirring constantly till it thickens, then sweeten with sugar. The proportion to use is 2 cupfuls of milk to 2 dessert spoonfuls of arrowroot. Flavoring may also be added if desired. It can be made in this way in an instant and is very nice served with stewed fruit.

Arrowroot is especially rich in vegetable salts and albumen, two of the essentials to human health. These properties, moreover, are presented in arrowroot in their most palatable form. It is easy of digestion and this together with its pleasing taste, should be a strong argument for the dealer to use in pushing its sale. A careful study of it, with its usees and method of preparation followed by an effort at selling should result in a much larger sale of this article.

Selling Tobacco as a Grocery Side Line

Reasons Advanced Why Average Dealer Has Lost His Grip on Trade in Smokers' Supplies—Rise of the Druggist and Barber —How He Can Recover the Ground That Has Been Lost by Carrying Good Stock and by Systematic Display.

There doesn't seem to be as much tobacco sold in grocery stores as there used to be. Whatever the reason the dealer seems to have become indifferent to this class of trade. Generally, the show case in which "the weed" and its accessories are kept looks dusty and ill-cared for, and not calculated to create in the ordinary man a desire to become owner of part of the contents.

Time was when every grocer, at least those located in the smaller country towns, villages, and in the country itself, used to drive quite a thriving trade in tobacco. Romance seemed to cling around the bright tin cans from which he was wont to bring out the supply of fragrant goods. Everybody trusted the grocer and the smallest member of the family then could be sent to the store to get the "baccy" in perfect confidence. He always was given what he was sent for.

But now all this has been changed. The trade, such as it is, seems to have receded into one or two stock lines, and the cases in which these are kept are not redolent of care. It may be that the grocer of fifteen and twenty years ago took his tobacco trade for granted and accordingly stood helplessly by while the drug and other stores reached out successfully, after the business. He used to say: Oh well, you see the drug stores stay open longer than we do, and the boys can drop in there and get their tobacco until late at night. He also applied the same line of reasoning, or rather excuse; when the confectioners commenced to take away what of the wreck that remained. But that was not the whole reason It was a little handier to be able to "drop in" to the drug store or the ice cream emporium and get what tobacco was wanted. It wasn't however, altogether because they kept open until nearly midnight. It was because they handled a larger and more varied assortment—kept in fact practically everything one could want in the tobacco line. One did not have to be content with "plug" in the drug store; as in the grocery, and one could also buy a package of cigarettes or an excellent cigar or a good pipe there. That was pretty much the real reason, although the dealer could not, or would not, see it that way.

In the cities it is a mighty small barber shop that has not its silent salesman given over to tobacco and smokers' needs, and also its shelves loaded with goods from all parts of the world. The barber and the druggist seem to be able to divide up the trade with the many little shops handling "smoke and chew" goods, in all parts of the city. Of course there are besides the three or four big houses, with branch stores, to whom the bulk of the "pernickity" trade goes, and where the most fastidious taste can be served. But the barber and drug shop tobacco business seems to be in quite a prosperous condition.

Doesn't it seem almost time the grocer was beginning to secure a little of this good trade? He won't be able to get it all back, but in city, town and village there is a great deal of floating demand he can secure if he will only take the necessary trouble. The results are bound to be good. But he can't do it at all, and there's not much use in his trying unless he carries a stock that will meet the average desire.

The average smoker to-day smokes a better cigar and uses a better line of tobacco than did the average smoker of twenty years ago. His cigarettes must have the picture of some voluptuous Oriental beauty on the case or carry the name of some foreign maker, and he must be surrounded with photographs suggestive of romance when he makes his purchases. Generally speaking, he buys more and a better grade of goods when that is the case. He likes to choose his stuff out of a clean, neat show case, and he likes to think that the stuff he smokes is the object of continuous care on the part of the dealer. That is only human nature.

Surely there is nothing in all that for a grocer to fear. He doesn't have to carry a tremendous stock but just a little of many lines, until he is able to graduate the demand into exact proportions. He must keep his goods under glass, whether it be on the shelves or in a silent salesman. It would be next to useless for him to hide it all under the counter. He must, if he is going to attract custom, make an occasional window display. No one will take offence at that any more because smoking is no longer a fad but a fact, and the average woman would have no fault to find in such a move. There should also be a few show cards at prominent points in the store telling of the stock and reminding the male customers that the goods can be secured there.

If a grocer wants to go in for good lines of cigars he should have a few big humidors so that he can keep his stock in good condition. And he should advertise the fact, that he does so. If he is going to handle pipes let him get a good variety of good makes and not be content with job lots that cannot be sold to any real tobacco dealer. All these little things are important, and the grocer, even he who does not smoke, will soon discover that the smoker exercises about as much care in choosing his tobacco, as his wife or mother does in selecting the groceries for the family.

GROCERY STORE PHILOSOPHY.

It is just as important that customers be well treated as that they be given good goods.

The greatest of all errors of store management is over-buying. It is one of the easiest to make and should be guarded against.

Advertising will govern what people say of your store to some extent but your treatment of customers will have even more to do with it.

How we do like to deal at the store of the cheerful, good-natured man, and how we hate to buy anything of the grouchy chap.

You can no more expect to let up and have the business continue going ahead than you can stop rowing and expect the boat to keep going on up stream.

The business man should not count on how much trade he transacted last week or how much he is going to do next week, but the amount he is doing this week.

The real business man does not wait for business to come to him. He goes out after it.

Here is More Convincing Evidence of the Far-Reaching Effect of Advertising in The Grocer:

An Eastern Manufacturer advertising a store equipment article (to be exact, a self-measuring oil pump) last week received a reply from Dawson City, Yukon.

Another manufacturer has received several replies from England. He advertises a book-keeping device.

A third had an enquiry the other day for samples of a food stuff from Scotand.

IN CASE OF FIRE

The Insurance adjuster will make you prove your loss before he will recommend payment on your policy if your store burns.

Are you in shape to-day to prove the value of your stock of merchandise? You must do something to prove its value, your statement is not enough. What records have you?

If you are not one of the seventy thousand users of The McCaskey Gravity Account Register System, the chances are you have none.

Only One Writing The McCASKEY SYSTEM First and Still the Best with one writing will handle every detail of your business from the time you buy your goods until the money for them is in the bank. It will cut out your useless bookkeeping. Every time you copy an account you add to chances for making mistakes. It will prevent errors in your account keeping. It prevents disputes with customers over their accounts because each customer has the same record of his account as has the merchant, and in the same handwriting. It prevents forgetting to charge. It is an automatic collector and brings money into the store faster than any human agency can. It is an automatic credit limit, and in case of fire puts you in position to prove your loss.

There is no need to wait to see what the "other fellow" thinks of the McCaskey System. Ask us and we'll send you hundreds of letters from users, merchants in your locality, who tell us it pays for itself several times in the course of the first year it is installed.

A letter or postal card will bring you information without obligation on your side to purchase.

Better write to-day or tear out this advertisement, sign your name and address. We'll know you want information.

THE AVERAGE PERSON

Is not a good judge of groceries and knows it.

¶ Therefore, the particular buyer looks for certain "guide posts" to indicate the store upon which he can depend for quality when buying groceries.

¶ He may not know how to select good tea or coffee in bulk, for instance, but he knows he gets value when he buys Heinz Pickles; and is likely to be favorably influenced towards the grocer who sells them and other trade-marked goods of equal standing

¶ He may not be able to argue for or against Benzoate of Soda, but he knows he prefers to take no chances with drugs in his food, and is likely to read the label on the kind of Ketchup the grocer recommends.

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

QUALITY TALKS

are often spoken of in a boastful way, but confirmation of the claims made is frequently lacking. The history of "SALADA," the figures of our increases published in this paper from time to time, contain sufficient tangible proof of our claims. "SALADA" has stood the test of time, the test of the severest competition, and, above all, the SALES TEST, tests which have won for thousands of grocers a large and profitable tea trade, to the detriment of the tea peddler, a fact which says more for "SALADA" quality than anything we can say.

Does any other tea you are selling possess such qualities?

Some Suggestions For Campers and Cottagers

How Various Sections of the Store Cater to Holiday Needs

Men's Outing Shirts

In Duck and Khaki for Yachting and Camping

THE shirt that is as different from the evening dress shirt as Summer is different from Winter, the soft, loose-collared outing shirt for the happy loafing days of a man's vacation time — it is featured as follows:—

Men's Outing Shirts, made expressly for those who elect to "rough it" by way of a holiday—of strong drill, in tan shade, with collar attached, yoke, two breast pockets, double sewn seams, gussets in the sides, large pearl buttons. Sizes 14 to 17. Price, each, $1.00.

Outing Shirts, well made, of a strong white duck, light in weight, with yoke, pocket and reversible soft collar, in place of which a stiff linen collar can be worn if neces

Good Food For The Summer Camp

Grocery Supplies in Suitable Form For Rustic Housekeeping

THE ordinary, everyday camping party does not, unfortunately, find itself satisfied with the simple rations provided by Tom Sawyer and his two companions for their celebrated expedition to the desert island. Something more than the boiled ham and the corn cobs that comprised the larder for that adventurous jaunt is looked upon as necessary for the usual sojourn in the wilds of Temagami or Muskoka. The most ardent camper is loath to relinquish the delights of tea, coffee, good butter and kindred commodities. And such have been made available for him put up in special form that will carry easily and safely, and "keep" indefinitely.

The Grocery Section is thoroughly equipped to supply the whole need of the camp or cottage commissariat. It will pack, ship and guarantee safe delivery of provisions to any part of Ontario—with express prepaid on orders that amount to $25.00 and over.

Following are some of the various productions that may be recommended for rustic housekeeping:

Diamond E Blend India and Ceylon Tea, black or mixed, good flavor, lb., 35c.

Reindeer Brand Condensed Coffee, contains sugar and milk, 1 spoonful makes a cup. Tin, 25c.

St. Charles Evaporated Milk, 3 tins, 25c.

Knorr's Prepared Soups, assorted flavors, package, 5c.

Our own make creamery Butter, put up in five-pound tins with lid, 24c lb. and 10c for tin.

Albert Rouilli Sardines, in oil, 2 tins, 25c.

Canned Salmon, tin, 15c.

Bloater Paste, 3-ounce tins, 3 tins, 20c.

Cooked Corned Beef, 1 lb. tin, 20c.

Beef Steak and Onions, 1-lb. tin, 20c.

Canned Chicken Breasts tin, 55c.

Pork and Beans, plain or in Orange Marmalade, 5-lb. pails

Collapsible Stoves

That May Be Folded Up Into Small Space for Light and Easy Carrying.

A CAMP fire is usually more appreciated by an artist than a cook. To those accustomed to the services of a gas range its culinary merits are few. And so for the convenience of those who adopt tent or shack life has been contrived a capital stove of light weight sheet iron that may be folded up into a space small enough and flat enough to go into a suit case, if necessary. When wanted it can be set up without tools in a few moments. It will burn wood or charcoal. Price, for 2-hole size, $2.25.

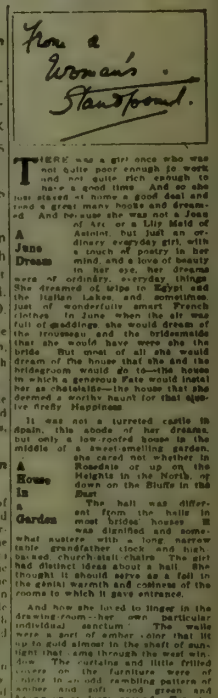
Duck Trousers For The Yachtsman

And Khaki for Those Who Run a Motor Boat or Go On a Fishing or Canoe Trip

NOT vanity or fashion, but yachting etiquette, demands that he who goes sailing shall don correct attire. White duck trousers are needed by every man who walks the deck, whether skipper or invited guest. Here are two good lines featured in the Men's Clothing Section.

White Duck Trousers, cut in good style, finished with keepers for belt, suspender buttons on inside of band. Sizes 30 to 44 waist—$1.00.



Trousers, in better quality of white duck, finished with cuff on bottom, loops for belt, side, hip and watch pockets. 30 to 44 waist—$1.25.

Yachting Blouses for men—white duck with blue sailor collar and cuffs, with breast pocket, all sizes, middy style. Each, $1.00.

As Worn by the American Soldier

Khaki has become as typical of the camper as the broad hat and knotted handkerchief of the cowboy. And procurable in the same department are a line of trousers made from the identical fabric employed in the uniforms of the American soldiers. They are in an olive fawn shade, soft pliable finish and tough wearing, with cuff at bottoms, belt loops and side straps on waist. $1.75.

Also obtainable are trousers in tan khaki of extra good quality, well cut and tailored, with belt of

THERE was a girl once who was not quite poor enough to work and not quite rich enough to have a good time. And so she just stayed at home a good deal and read a great many books and dreamed. And because she was not a Joan of Arc or a Lily Maid of Astolat, but just an ordinary everyday girl, with a touch of poetry in her mind and a love of beauty in her eye, her dreams were of ordinary, everyday things. She dreamed of trips to Egypt and the Italian Lakes and sometimes just of wonderfully smart French clothes. In June when the air was full of weddings she would dream of the trousseau and the bridesmaids that she would have were she the bride. But most of all she would dream of the house that she and the bridegroom would go to—the house in which a generous Fate would install her as chatelaine—the house that she deemed a worthy haunt for that elusive fleshy Happiness.

It was not a turreted castle in Spain, this abode of her dreams, but only a low-roofed house in the middle of a sweet-smelling garden. She cared not whether in Rosedale or up on the Heights in the North, or down on the Bluffs in the East. The hall was different from the halls in most brides' houses. It was dignified and somewhat austere with a long narrow table, grandfather clock and high backed church-like chairs. The girl had distinct ideas about a hall. She thought it should serve as a foil to the genial warmth and coziness of the rooms to which it gave entrance.

And how she loved to linger in the drawing-room—her own particular individual sanctum. The walls were a sort of amber color that lit up to gold almost in the shaft of sunlight that came through the wide sash. The curtains and little frilled covers on the furniture were of colors in an odd scheming pattern of amber and soft wood green and Illustration No. 1—Reproduction of part of an advertisement used by the T. Eaton Co. It is attractive and convincing copy.

Effective Advertisement Defined

What Copy Should Contain if it is to Work the Maximum Benefit to Advertiser —Three Essentials That Must Be Considered—Seasonableness of Goods a Pertinent Point—The Value of Illustrations in Advertising—An Ad. Calculated to Bring Results—A Criticism.

When a dealer advertises to the consuming public he should stop to consider that an effective advertisement in his newspaper must, respectively, attract attention; hold that attention; create a desire to purchase; and lastly, stir the reader into the action of making the purchase. This is true in every purchase, without exception, whether the ultimate action is caused by reading an advertisement, by a selling talk or a window display; hence the importance that should be placed on the general appearance, and the character of the reading matter in an advertisement.

The most important issues to be considered by the advertiser are seasonableness of goods, type display, general attractiveness, the wording, his business location and the general character of the people of his particular district.

The above cut illustrates the top of a full newspaper page advertisement of the T. Eaton Co., Toronto and Winnipeg. As is generally known this firm does superior advertising because it makes a study of its goods and its possible customers; and it follows the seasons closely. This ad. was made attractive by some simple illustrations, not overdone, but appropriate for the season. The section pertaining to groceries has a neat heading and an interesting introduction, not too long for the size of the remainder of the ad. Goods and their prices are quoted so that the reader knows exactly what she has to pay at this store. This copy is such that it ought to attract attention—at least of a particular class of people—hold it, create a desire and eventually cause action on the part of the reader.

Type Badly Displayed.

On the other hand, the R. D. McKee copy, Carman, Man., illustration No. 2, could be greatly improved. The general appearance is not attractive and unless the reader is actually looking for this ad. would probably in 9 cases out of 10 overlook it. No matter how valuable the copy itself is, the ad. must be attractive to command the maximum attention.

In a small space such as this, it is generally conceded to be good policy to stick to one or two articles. When more are talked about the copy-writer is apt to forget that he must create a desire to buy. The same reasoning applies to dressing a window. To combine groceries, fruits and crockery is not always wise, because the attention is divided. Better devote to-morrow's space to crockery, but let fresh fruit and vegetables hold sway to-day. Illustration No. 3 is intended to show how this ad. might be made more effective.

A British Columbia Ad.

O'Keefe & Martin, Vernon, B.C., have an attractive ad. in illustration No. 4. It is one that should gain the readers' attention because it gives some advice. It might have been more effective had the writer told of some particular article, its value in the household and its high quality. This would tend to create a desire to buy it—and only in such a case is an ad. really effective.

Between buying the cheap and the best article there may be only a saving of 5c in actual cash, but 25c in real satisfaction in using the best. Another point—the merchant makes more profit on the inferior article, a reason why you are sometimes urged to take something other than you want.

The Splendid Blessing of Co-operation

Co-operative Buying a Question Treated at a Recent Convention of Retail Grocers—How Half Dozen or More Dealers Might Join and Become One Big Dealer—The Rise of the Buying Exchange—The Troubles That May Follow—How Idea Could Spread and be a Real Blessing if Petty Jealousy be Forgotten.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

At a recent convention of retail grocers a good many interesting questions were propounded. The questions came from thoughtful and successful retailers, which indicates that they relate to live issues; and I purpose, therefore, to treat those questions consecutively in the hope that good may come of the discussion.

But note, please, that I have used the word DISCUSSION, which means that I do not expect to do all the talking myself. If, when you read this stuff, you do not agree with me, or feel that I have left some features uncovered, or differ with some of my conclusions, or see some chance for further profitable elaboration, please COME IN! Let us get all we can out of these articles, for they surely come home in some measure to all of us.

The First Question.

For answer, I might make things very short by repeating the old story of the man who bought the new kind of whistle from the street faker. He saw the faker play catchy music on the whistle and bought one; but when he attempted to play it he could not make a sound. "Stung again!" he said with a laugh, and threw the whistle into the gutter. The faker stopped his "spiel," stooped to pick up the discarded whistle, brushed the dust from it, and then played something extra fine on it, while his erstwhile disgusted customer stood by and learned that to get the good out of anything, one must know how to use it.

When it Succeeds.

Co-operative buying, like anything else co-operative, is OK if it is TRUE; that is to say, if it be carried out honestly, fairly, with due regard to the rights of all concerned. Otherwise, it is a failure, the same as misused credit, or advertising, or clerks, or deliveries will all be failures.

Co-operative buying usually, and properly, starts small. It is all but a repetition of the weavers of Rochdale, who started to supply their own wants at a saving to each. Suppose it begins with the purchase of a cereal, the minimum jobbing quantity of which is, say, 25 cases. Such a quantity is obviously too great for any but the larger grocers, so that, in order that each may enjoy the inside jobbing cost, five, ten, or more retailers pool their orders and the 25 or more cases are bought. Let us suppose that the list price is $2.50 per case and the jobbing discount is 10 per cent. There is likely to be the further advantage that, if there is no local jobber, the goods are sold F. O.B. a jobbing point when sold to retailers, but are delivered in jobbing quantities. Anyway, there is a saving of 25 cents per case; an addition to the net margin of 10 per cent. It is customary for one dealer to buy this line, taking a memo of what each of his neighbors will take; one 5 cases, another 3 cases, a third 2 cases, a fourth 4 cases, etc. When the goods are billed, he notifies each one to send him the amount, less cash discount, and then he pays the bill. When the goods arrive, he notifies each one to call at the station for his proportion. Each pays precisely what each other pays; each takes the discount; each does the same proportion of work,—with the exception that the man who does the ordering has a little more work to do than his colleagues; but he usually does not mind that.

Then the Buying Exchange.

So far, all is lovely and the deal may continue. The proper way is for the buyers to select other items, one at a time, and buy the same way, only they most properly should delegate another one of their number to buy the next item, and so on with the third item, etc., all being on the same footing. This may go on and grow until it becomes large enough to require the entire service of somebody. Then it should blossom into a regularly organized buying exchange, which is really a wholesale grocery store run by dealers for their own benefit and profit.

I omitted to state that when any dealer runs short of any of the items co operatively bought, he fills in from a neighbor, getting the goods himself and paying exactly cost price; so that in all ways the deal is strictly for mutual benefit.

When Troubles Creep In.

Two troubles usually creep into this kind of thing. One is, that only one man takes interest enough in it to keep it going, which is unfair. He does more than his share for the general good, without getting any compensation for his time. The result is, generally, that he becomes tired of the one-sided arrangement and drops out of the game; or, he works up enough trade to "go it alone," and then he enjoys the advantage which he had been sharing with the others.

The other trouble comes from the fellow who can never be content to let his neighbor have all the advantage which he enjoys, and who starts to give away a part of his extra profit through price-cutting, more or less open. That kind of thing can be coped with when it is known. If the delinquent openly cuts and advertises the cut, then he can be "cut out" of the buying circle, if he cannot be induced to "be good." But it is more trying to handle this trouble if the cutter makes "secret concessions" to certain "favored customers," which really means to all HIS customers. This kind of thing is very troublesome to the honestly constituted dealer, who wants to be fair to everybody—even to the extent of giving a competitor the benefit of the doubt, so long as any remains.

There is no sense, of course, in investing money to secure a lower price and then giving away the benefit derived from the investment; and the right way to handle such a situation, when it develops, is along the lines of the old injunction: "If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out!" Get rid of the co-operator who does not co-operate. And even if such difficulties creep in, there is no need to be discouraged and give up the scheme, as so many have done. No, rather look at it the other way and feel that, seeing you have been through this trouble, and have overcome it, now is precisely the time to stay by the scheme and push it harder than ever.

Proper co-operation has many wonderful advantages and we should work it for all it is worth. I am much interested now in co-operation delivery,

*The writer of this article is one of the most successful dealers on the continent. He has spent almost 30 years in the retail grocery business and is well equipped to answer questions and smooth out difficulties with which others may have met.

especially with the present development of the automobile wagon. I may have something to say along that line a little later.

Co-operation in Help.

But why should we not think of other things in this connection? For instance one of us many times has an excessive supply of help—an extra man whom we like, find valuable, and would like to keep, but have not quite enough work for. Why not hunt among our neighbors to see whether one of them is not short just about what we are long; that is to say, may need about half a man, the same as we do. Why would it not be good, then, to use that man jointly? This might apply to a window dresser—three or four grocers could use such a man, and get a good one, each paying one-third or one-fourth of his salary. Such a man might dress the windows and keep the most prominent, fancy-goods shelves cleaned up, filled and tidy in four or five stores. A stock-keeper might be used the same way; as might likewise a porter or roustabout. Would it not be better for us to employ better men in all these capacities, jointly, and have the work better done? Do we nave to be held back by petty jealousy of each other indefinitely?

Please think over these things and help me answer some of these questions.

BUSY PROGRAM FOR ONTARIO GUILD MEETING

Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild to Meet in Toronto on Fourth, Fifth and Sixth of July—Many Interesting Features Arranged For—Criticism of Recent Decision of Supreme Court of the United States.

Hamilton, June 29.—President F. T. Smye, of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, has sent out his announcements of the convention of that body, which is to be held in Toronto, on fourth, fifth and sixth of July, the King Edward Hotel being the headquarters.

The program forecasts an eventful and interesting meeting and contains the outline of many discussions which will surely prove to be highly valuable to the trade.

On Tuesday, the opening day, following the address of the president, there will be a speech delivered on the recent finding of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Miles Medicine Company action. The bearing of this decision upon the methods of manufacturers and wholesalers in Canada, and upon the contract selling plan in vogue in this country will be discussed in all its phrases. At noon the delegates will be the guests of the Hamilton trade at luncheon. There will be a report of the Manufacturers' Committee during the afternoon, and a criticism on the same. The local delegates will then give their report, which likewise will have to pass through the crucible of criticism. All of this should prove intensely interesting to the trade as a whole.

Wednesday will be a busy day as the second day of a three-day conference usually is. The proceedings will be opened at 9.30 a.m., with a report on the manufacturers' uniform selling contracts and declarations. An hour later, the uniform terms and methods of invoicing will be taken up, and then the Secret Commission's Act will come in for discussion. After lunch, the delegates from the Retail Merchants' Convention will be heard, and there will be a general talk on trade methods. After that there is to be a series of talks by manufacturers, several of whom have been invited to speak. The decks will then be cleared for election of officers.

On Thursday morning there is scheduled to be an address on "Credit Exchange," by Henry Detchon, Secy-Treas. of the Canadian Credit Men's Association, who comes from Winnipeg. It is expected that following this, E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., will give an address on the rights of the trade and manufacturers. This should be both extremely interesting and valuable. A number of resolutions will form sufficient reasons for discussion on the last afternoon.

The program contains the following table of statistics:—

"Number of wholesale grocers in Ontario 57, of whom 52 are members of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

"Approximate number of traveling salesmen covering Ontario in the employ of the Ontario wholesale houses, about 400.

"Approximate number of clerks, salesmen and warehousemen in the employ of the members of the Association in the Province of Ontario, about 2,000.

"The average cost of doing business in the Province of Ontario, based upon the turnover, 9 per cent.

"The above information must be of importance to the manufacturer as convincing evidence of the value of securing the services of the members of this organization in the distribution of the manufacturers' goods."

A Commission on Trade and Commerce

Question Raised That Appointment By Federal Authorities of Board to Investigate Matters in Connection with the Machinery of Distribution of Foodstuffs Would be Progressive Move —Similar to Railway Commission—Need Men of Outstanding Ability.

By James D. Smith.

Occasionally in every year and in many parts of the country little storm clouds scarcely any bigger literally than a man's hand, form on the trade horizon. Individually they may seem of little consequence, and purely local in effect, but taken as a whole they reflect the trend of thought of dealers all over Canada.

Generally speaking one may find in almost any trade centre one or two dealers distinctly of the opinion that they are being imposed upon by someone, although they cannot arrive at an exact conclusion as to who the offending party is. It may be a manufacturer, or a wholesale dealer, or all of them, but he has a definite impression that something is wrong somewhere.

Before the Railway Board.

The state of affairs is somewhat akin to that existing in the country before the Dominion Railway Commission was called into being. From practically all parts of the country, before that event occurred, complaints were coming with amazing persistence that the railroad company was preying upon the individual or company to an extent that was hindering business and making development almost impossible. Small shippers were reporting alleged hold ups and dealers all over the country were claiming continually that they were unable to get their goods in time to be of most service to them.

The railway commission has made good beyond the shadow of doubt. It is probably the hardest worked tribunal in the government service. That fact alone speaks loudest in its praise. The two judges who have presided at its deliberations have been men of outstanding ability and unquestioned integrity. The board has been glorified by the press of the country on many occasions and the feeling is abroad in the land that the commission stands between the people and possible railroad oppression.

Effect of Trade Board.

If the merchants of Canada could obtain the consent of parliament for the organization of a permanent committee of wide power to serve the commercial interests of this country as a commission on internal trade and commerce and if the body of men of similar calibre to the men who comprise the railway commission could be found to act upon it, disatfsfaction among manufactuers, wholesalers and retailers might be altogether done away with. This commission would in the nature of things have to be permanent and would be authorized to decide all questions arising out of differences of opinion between various sections of trade in this country. Grievances fancied or real would be submitted for investigation and its ruling on the matter could be accepted as setting forth the exact condition of affairs.

It would be easy to see that a commission with the powers of a railway board would be able to work wonders towards the developing of a satisfied feeling among the members of the trade in Canada. This permanent commission would exist solely for the purpose of investigating questions of trade. There would be a defence of no section, only an impartial investigation into the merits of the case as submitted to them for settlement. Its findings should be of the nature of a board of arbitration and should be absolute. There should be no variety of appeal from its decisions to delay the reform its investigation was intended to bring about. With men on its deliberations big enough to secure the confidence of the trade, there should be absolutely no need for further action.

Would Engender Confidence.

A commission of such power should be able to work wonders in the developing of the satisfied feeling among the members and sections of the trade in Canada. Under its powerful searchlight of investigation would come alleged discriminations and grievances. The smallest retailer in the most remote community would feel as safe and be as safe as the largest dealer in the largest city. The methohs now adopted by various sections of the trade in regard to the distribution of goods to the retailer and the selling of them by that individual would all be subject to supervision. The feeling of helplessness that seems to prevail in Canada would disappear. There would instead be confidence in the working out of the whole system and in consequence the craft would increase in dignity.

There would be no need to have a royal commission appointed to investigate the conditions of the trade in Canada, prior to the selection of this commission on internal trade. Surely there are matters enough for deliberation to give employment practically all the year round to such a body of men as this would be. Presiding over it there should be a man of judicial training. He should be able to go into all the matters in dispute from a legal point of view, and in all fairness point the way to a reasonable conclusion on the part of the commissioners. Probably the need for this would not appear to be as necessary as is the case with the Railway Board, but from time to time questions would arise that would make it imperative that some one of legal powers be in the chair.

Difficulty at Ottawa.

There may be those who will object to matters of trade being subject to the supervision of a commission. It probably would have been impossible to have approached this subject with any degree of success a few years ago. Now however, the spirit of arbitration is spread abroad in the land until there is hardly a remote community where the merits of the system have not been proclaimed. The real difficulty, it seems, would be in obtaining the consent of the government of Canada to the proposal. There seems to be a feeling at Ottawa that Federal authorities have gone quite far enough in the matter of appointing commissions. Still it would appear probable that if the dealers in various sections of the country would take this matter up with their own representatives in the Commons, that the government would see its way clear to meet the request.

Weighed in the balance and found wanting such a commission could be easily discontinued. It is probable, however, that were such a body once formed the sections of the trade would deem it a matter of wonder that business had been carried on successfully before its inception.

WILL CLOSE ON SATURDAY.

London Dealers Think it a Mistake To Wait for Monday.

London, Ont., June 29.—London dealers are going to shut up shop on Saturday, July 1st. They think it is a great mistake to try and swing the celebration of Dominion Day onto Monday, and mention, in this connection, the fact that when Christmas Day fell on a Saturday they kept it on that day. In comparison with Christmas Day, the holiday at the beginning of next month is insignificant, so far as business is concerned.

H. S. Marshall, who has conducted for years a grocery business at Maitland and Dufferin Ave., has disposed of his business to Mrs. Grayson.

EGG PRICES EXPLAINED.

The country merchant looking at the price which the wholesaler is asking for eggs and wonders why he does not receive something near that amount for the shipments which he sends to market. The city merchant who buys from the wholesaler looks at the price which eggs are selling at in the country and wonders why he cannot buy at that price. The wholesaler, in turn contends he is not making as much profit as at other times of the year. On the surface, this appears like a peculiar proposition but is easily explained.

The shrinkage in eggs at the present time is very large. The wholesalers receiving shipments from the country find a large proportion unsalable, and when these have been culled out it raises the actual cost to him much higher per dozen than was the case originally.

It is for this reason that the big margin between the price the country dealer receives and the city dealer pays exists. Country merchants should make an effort to eliminate this loss, as no doubt if they put forward some effort a great deal of good could be effected. If they would candle the eggs as they receive them, they would throw the loss back upon the person who should rightly bear it, and also raise the standard of their shipments so that they would receive a larger figure for their eggs.

THE FUTURE OF SALMON.

It is reported on apparently good authority that the salmon fisheries of British Columbia this year will total up to between seven hundred thousand and eight hundred thousand cases. This will be much the same as that of last year. The entire catch on the Pacific coast, including Alaska, is given at about four million cases,

Because of the deep interest centreing upon canned salmon this year, these figures should prove interesting to the trade. They may not be the last on the subject and are given without guaranty of accuracy, but they are the most reliable to be secured at the present time. At any rate these are the catches for which the Pacific Coast canners are making preparation. They will probably prove nearly correct because of that fact.

Early reports have been picturing the run of the salmon as going to be very heavy. The old fisherfolk have been quoted as being of that opinion. Now, however, it would seem that the fishermen were wrong and that the men who have been proclaiming far and wide to all who cared to hear, a short catch with high prices, were right.

Two things are certain. One is that the demand for salmon, constantly growing will be much greater this year than last. The other is that a run of like size to last year's will hardly suffice to supply the needs. And there seems to be a market almost bare of supplies at the present time.

A PERMANENT TRADE COMMISSION.

In this issue of The Canadian Grocer there is an article dealing with the appointment of a permanent Commission on Internal Trade and Commerce, that is entitled to serious consideration, as the issue will probably loom large at Ottawa before the year is out.

Without discussing either the merits or demerits of the commission system, it would appear that a trade board, built along similar lines to the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada would prove a most useful body in the standardizing of the internal trade of the country. The prime condition, however, would be that it be composed of men in whom is reposed the faith and confidence of the country. A weak board would be worse than useless for if pressure could be brought to bear and it be used to serve any one interest it would be a positive menace to the country.

A trade commission worthy of the name could be a court of tremendous influence whenever any question arising out of the distribution of goods was to be decided. A manufacturer could lay his plans before it for confirmation before embarking upon the marketing of any given line of goods. Alleged disputes and grievances would be despatched thither for settlement, and its decisions should be binding except where their legality might be challenged. The railway commission has unquestionably made good. What would be the fate of this one were it brought into being?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Twenty-two merchants in Prince Albert, Sask., signed up as members of a Retail Merchants' Association at an organization meeting called last week.

The rain seemed to come just a little too late to save the strawberries. It is to be hoped that the raspberries, with a better hold on Mother Earth will not be damaged to any great extent.

A delegation of St. John, N.B., merchants waited upon Hon. William Pugsley, the Minister of Public Works, recently and urged the advisability of renewing the contract with a line of boats plying between Halifax, St. John, and British West Indian points. The Maritime Province men are evidently fully alive to the need of a proper service between the two sections of the Empire, and are also quite ready to press for it to the best of their ability.

Henry Detchon, of Winnipeg, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Credit Men's Association addressed a meeting at the Board of Trade Building, Toronto, on Wednesday afternoon in the interests of association work. He has also spoken at Hamilton, Ont., and will speak at the convention of wholesale grocers on Thursday afternoon next. Mr. Detchon is hoping he will be able to start branches of the body he represents in both Ontario and Quebec.

How Dealers May Fight Mail Order Houses

Could Co-operate and Carry on a Publicity Campaign in The City Newspapers at Small Cost—Formation of Quality League and its Badge—How Methods of Big Firms Might be Used to Convince the Buying Public.

By W. J. W.

The retail grocers in the larger cities of Canada are up against a hard proposition. This is not accounted for by their own competition alone, although that is keen enough. The real troubles are the department and chain stores. These institutions keep digging into the grocer's legitimate field in all parts of the city taking a little away from one dealer here and a little from another there so that the individual merchant hardly notices the difference. But he is beginning to appreciate it now, when it is going to be hard work to effect a change of heart on the part of the consuming public, and is crying out against the inroads of the big mail order establishments.

Fight Fire With Fire.

Now, crying out against a general injury is about as effective as a drop of water thrown on a roaring fire as far as checking it is concerned. There must be some definite plan followed if results are to be achieved. Probably it would be just as well to meet fire with fire and trick with trick. There is a world of truth in that old piece of advice: When in Rome do as the Romans do. So, as far as possible, it might be wise to steal the thunder of the mail order houses. Let the retailers join in the common purpose and cry their wares to the public through the newspapers. That's the way the department store business is built up. There is no doubt of that. The sum each one of these mammoth stores pays out each year to the newspapers is so large most people would scarcely believe it, were they told the actual figures.

Would it be too much to ask the retail grocers of the big centres to become one concern for the purpose of carrying out a publicity campaign to offset that of the department and chain store? Surely there would be no trouble about that if the retailers were advised as to the small amount it would really cost and the possible benefits that would accrue.

Possibilities of Co-operation.

Let us suppose a case as an example. In Toronto there are about 23,000 retail grocers. The actual number may be a few more or a few less than that total. And suppose for argument's sake that you could get 500 of those to co-operate in a publicity campaign; what would it all cost? Assess those five hundred merchants 25 cents a week. That would give, roughly speaking, $500 a month to carry on the fight. Of course, wonders cannot be accomplished with $500, but still, there might be a dent made in the wall even with that amount. Considerable space could be taken up in two papers, twice a day with that fund. If the campaign were to be made much more effective it would take a higher assessment, that is all.

What to Advertise.

The average city dealer will probably want to know what he is going to advertise, and how any advertising associated with 499 other dealers is going to be of any use to him. We're going to that. This entire campaign is based on giving to the consuming public information calculated to turn the buying of groceries from the big store back to the small retailers. Well, then, supposing this 500 men had a good big spread in a morning paper, and also an evening sheet, announcing the formation of a "Grocers' Quality Club" say, composed only of good, reliable dealers. The distinguishing badge of this club is a large card, to be shown conspicuously in the store of the member bearing the name of the organization, and also the fact that the store in question sells quality goods at a price as low as it is possible to sell them at a living porfit. Let this first big announcement also convey the information that each morning and evening thereafter there would be some sort of talk given on the goods to be secured at the establishments of the members of the club. Any of the many points upon which the grocer prides himself could be made the subject of those talks. Individual service, prompt delivery, cleanliness, or quality of goods could be enlarged upon. There should be no dearth of material. There needn't be any "knocking" of mail order houses, in particular, indulged in. If there were, the ad. would no doubt lose much of its power. But the consuming public could be shown from day to day and week to week just why it should buy its foodstuffs in the stores that are really reaching out for its patronage. In unity is strength.

DEATH OF ALBERT HEBERT.

Senior Member of Montreal Firm Passes Away in Switzerland.

Montreal, June 29.—A cablegram from Lucerne, Switzerland, on Wednesday, June 21, announced the sudden death at that place of Albert Hebert, senior member of Hudon, Herbert & Company, wholesale grocers of this city. When the deceased left for Europe some weeks ago accompanied by his wife and daughter, it was not generally known that he was not enjoying the best of health. This fact made the report of his death all the more keenly felt among his former associates and acquaintances. He was only forty-seven years of age and besides his connection with the grocery trade he stood high in the opinion of the financial community. Like his father before him, C. P. Hebert, the deceased, had won the esteem of the English-speaking business men, with whom, as well as throughout the general community, his word was regarded as good as his bond.

His interests were attracted in another direction besides the wholesale grocery business. When the Notre Dame hospital was threatened with a financial crisis a few years ago, Mr. Hebert was one of the indefatigable workers who were responsible in assisting that institution to tide over its difficulties. Before leaving on his last trip Mr. Hebert had the satisfaction of knowing that $200,000 had been paid in and that the hospital of which he had been treasurer for several years past was saved. He leaves a widow and one daughter.

The body will be brought to Montreal for burial, being expected about July 15th.

Montreal, June 29.—Business conditions in the grocery trade continue highly satisfactory in spite of the holiday disposition now manifested and other considerations of the present. It is becoming more and more apparent that this is going to be a big year for Montreal's wholesale grocers. Reports have been most satisfactory up to now and the future appears bright. Attention is being drawn to the coming pack of salmon, and although it is yet rather early to be wondering what the prices are likely to be fixed at, the opinions now expressed are that quotations are going to be higher. First quality salmon, it is believed, will be from 75c to $1 more than last year and inferior grades will be fifty cents higher. The representative of one big packing concern stated that they would not like to quote until some time in August when they would be able to know just where they were at.

Wholesalers are beginning to make rough guesses upon the probable supplies of canned goods they are going to receive. Their conjectures bear upon the extent to which their orders will be filled. They recall last year's experience with corn, tomatoes, peas and their many customers throughout the country who had to be appeased when their orders were skimped. Just now the outlook is bright. True, strawberries have apparently got away to a bad start as reports say the crop os light, having suffered from drought. It should not be long now until something like an accurate approximation is made of the pea pack.

Said a wholesaler to The Grocer: "The bigger the pack, the heavier the consumption. With a fair price next year there should be an immense amount of canned goods consumed. Food in this form is a success and it is only by presenting the public with favorable considerations that this demand will increase. I expect corn and peas to open at 85 and 90 cents, and tomatoes at $1.05. Strawberries are likely to be about $1.47½ to $1.50. Unless the other berry crops are heavy there is going to be a shortage right here. Strawberries are coming on a market practically bare, blueberries were also a light pack and other fruits are in light supply. Already it is said raspberries need rain right now or it may be too late."

The market is bare of Valencia raisins and the demand for sugar has greatly increased of late.

The crop of French peas and mushrooms is reported to give promise of being short. Values in France have increased from 1 to 9 francs (20c to $1.80), according to quality. Prices have advanced here about 5 per cent. Peas are quoted for cases of 100 tins each, $8.50 to $17, according to quality, and mushrooms from $12 to $22 a case.

Sugar.—New activity has been apparent in the sugar market of late and buying has been on a more generous scale. The question as to prices seems to depend upon whether the demand increases to such a figure that it overtakes the supply. At present there is something of a gap here, but it may be closed up ae any time.

Dried Fruits.—Conditions have undergone no material change during the week. The wholesalers are so short of prunes that they need hardly be considered. There may be a few here and there. "The distinctive feature of Ceylon tea during May," says one report, "has beea the steady decline in quality which has taken place, owing to which better grades have declined in price in many instances. This, however, does not indicate an easier market, and taking value for value, the price of all grades of Ceylon tea has been fully as high as that ruling at the end of April.'

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—The canned goods situation is practically in the same position it occupied a week ago. The advance reported in salmon then is general. Demand for tomatoes, corn and peas continues. One wholesaler said he had sold a certain quantity of tomatoes in the city at $1.45. Enquiry from the West is still felt, and orders are filled by those retailers who have the price.

Toronto.—"The only change in canned goods is that the situation is gradually becoming more acute," remarked one wholesaler and when asked what special lines that applied to he answered, "everything." "Tomatoes and peas," he continued, "are practically done, only the United States tomatoes being now available, canned fruits of all kinds are in small compass, and wholesalers are buying among each other to supply retailers' wants, while the scarcity of spot stocks of salmon is becoming more apparent each day." Another wholesaler referred to the scarcity of tomatoes and peas, and remarked that there was still corn available. "It is a peculiar thing," he said, "that with the high price of other lines of vegetables that corn at 95 cents has been all taken up long ago." He thought there would be no corn left over, and that canned goods in general would come upon a decidedly bare market.

WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg.—The canned goods situation remains unchanged. Prices have not been advanced this week, but wholesalers are predicting that there will be a general advance when the prices for the new crop are seen, about the 1st of July. Strawberries, it is reported, will be decidedly limited, only about half of the quantity will be put down that was on the market last year. Consequently, this line will be high from the start.

ONTARIO MARKETS

Pointers.—

Canned Goods—Situation more acute.

Dried Fruits—Stocks well reduced.

Toronto, June 29.—Wholesalers are making no complaints and from reports it would appear that a steady trade is being transacted. Sugar has shown some improvement, but the demand has not altogether come up to the expectation of dealers, the consumption having been small, the strawberry season having been short while other fruits have not yet made their appearance. This week a better demand for confectionery and fancy biscuits is reported, no doubt in anticipation of a holiday demand for these lines. The trade in summer goods in general continues steady. The strawberry canning season is over but no definite statements of the results have been received. It would appear to be a moderate pack, for although the season was short, canners got an early start. The canning of peas is now about to commence.

Supplies are short in nearly all lines of canned goods and a bare market is assured for the new pack. Lines short vary with dealers and they are purchasing from each other. "The firm I have been buying raspberries from went 17½ cents more a dozen in the future," said one dealer, "and they have but few left at that price." Pure jams are also short and they are practically none to be had. I can purchase strawberries in England, bring them here and sell them at the price now being asked."

Reports from Spain state that there have been recent rains and that the condition of the growing crops are good, and if nothing happens in the curing that a moderate yield is expected, but no prices have as yet been made. Greece reports that the currant crop is progressing nicely and speculative prices named have shown a decline, under the favorable conditions. A local dealer expressed the opinion that currants would open at least as low as opening prices last year.

Sugar.—The sugar market continues strong and steady. Cuban raws have been holding firm and an upward movement in New York refined is the expectation of the trade, with the probability expressed that Canadian may follow, depending however on the condition of demand and the course taken by European beets.

Dried Fruits.—While you might be able to pick up an odd case of prunes, apricots or peaches, if you went to any one wholesaler, there would be no certainty of your having your order for those lines filled. High prices are asked for what is left and accordingly but little interest is displayed in them. Stocks of currants and raisins are not large but wholesalers are however able to supply their customers' wants and an even steady trade is being transacted.

Teas.—Only a moderate interest is being taken in teas in general, no special attention as yet having been directed to the new crop Indian or Japan. Prices in general are seemingly well maintained.

Coffee.—Coffee options on the New York market have ruled higher during the past week, and spot coffees there are a little firmer in sympathy. Locally, there has been no change in the situation although prices are steady and well maintained.

Spices.—There is no particular change in the spice situation, cayenne pepper and cloves being quoted ½ cent higher. In general, prices are firm, pepper being one of the lines especially mentioned. The usual yearly demand caused by the pickling season has not yet become noticeable but a steady trade covering the whole list is being done.

MANITOBA MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Firm.

Molasses—Lower.

Coffee—Strong.

Winnipeg, June 29.—Steadiness may be the one word used to sum up the condition of the grocery trade of the west. Wholesalers and jobbers all agree that a similar market on such a firm basis has never been in existence before in the west and consequently all are enthusiastic. Seeding is rapidly drawing to a close, and farmers are beginning to visit the towns a little more freely. Conditions for the growing crop continue to be good, with the results that so far predictions of enormous crop yields are quite likely to be fulfilled. The demand is strong in every line of the grocery trade, and while payments have not been as good as they might have been, yet it is claimed by wholesalers that it is not because retailers have not the money, but because they are investing in real estate, which at the present time is the most glowing proposition in existence. There is no change in the market, except a decline of 1c a gallon in molasses. The holiday during the week broke it up considerably, and many orders will have to be kept over until next week.

Sugar—While no change has occurred in the price of sugar, nevertheless the market is very strong and apparently is going to go higher. The demand continues to hold strong, as large amounts are being used for cool drinks during the hot weather. Stocks are all of normal size and no trouble is feared on account of them.

Syrup and Molasses—In spite of the fact that summer is not the season of big demand, a fair amount of trade is being transacted in these lines. Molasses is the only line on the market at all weaker, and a decline of 1c per gal. has taken place. Prices are as follows:

Dried Fruits—The feature of the dried fruit market this week is that no further advances have been made in quotations by wholesalers. BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, June 29.—Advices from the Orient of the first auction of Indian teas at Calcutta, held on May 30th, do not indicate anything particular. Reports are that the crop was good, but prices are likely to remain firm, owing to the large areas in Ceylon that have been taken out of tea and put into rubber.

The feature of the local market is the scarcity of live stock for beef purposes, which has continued for some time. Twenty carloads of stock were shipped from Toronto last week for this point, and three carloads of corn-fed beef arrived during the week from Omaha. In addition to this, frozen beef and veal are being shipped in, together with the mutton from Australia.

Hams and bacon have advanced another peg, and altogether the meat prices are as high as ever they were, with little prospect of immediate decrease.

Local strawberries are now on the market. Generally they are clear by July 1 or shortly after, but this year, with the late spring, the supply will extend well on into the month. Old apples are practically off the market, but new ones will be coming in from Australia and California. New potatoes from California and Oregon are coming down in price so that they may be used. The local supply will still be some time before it is ready. Butter is scarce, jobbing at 35 cents. The really good article is difficult to get.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, N.B., June 29.—Contrary to expectations Coronation week did not make much of an increase in the trade of the majority of the retail or whalesale grocers of the city, although opinions are divided among the retailers on the matter.

A few changes of minor importance were marked in the local quotations of the past week. Plate beef advanced 50 cents and is now rated at $17.25. Lard also went up a quarter of a cent per pound making pure Canadian 11¼ and American 12. Seeded raisins have seen another rise and are now from one quarter to one-half a cent higher. In feeds middlings and brans are lower but oats, both Canadian and provincial are advanced.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, June 29.—Jobbers report the grocery business brisk. The travelers are sending in good orders, and collections are up to the average. Maritime strawberries came on the market early this week for the first time this season, and they are now in good demand. The opening price was 20 cents, and today they are quoted at 19 cents. Since the opening of the berry season there has been a noticeable increase in the sales of sugar. Price changes in the list are few, and unimportant. Lard is a half-cent higher, and California seeded raisins are up to eleven cents for fancy stock.

The supply of Canadian canned peas are about cleared up, and some of the retailers are now offering Belgian green peas for sale.

Cheese shows a stronger tendency to advance, and as a result dealers are not placing any large orders, owing to the uncertainty of the market. Butter is in good supply, with prices slightly easier. Eggs are in fair demand, the price still holding at 19 cents per doz.

The fruit business continues good. Jamaica oranges are in better demand. They are quoted at $4 per barrel.

TRADE WITH WEST INDIES.

Dr. Kirkpatrick Said to be Arranging New Steamship Service.

St. John, N.B., June 29.—Plans are now under consideration whereby the trade, already very large, between New Brunswick and the West Indies, may be still further increased. Dr. E. S. Kirkpatrick, former Canadian trade commissioner in Cuba is endeavoring to interest local merchants in the holding of a meeting in connection with a new company the object of which is to put on a direct steamship line between St. John and the West Indies, and to encourage trade between the Dominion and the West Indies generally. Dr. Kirkpatrick said that poor shipping accommodations had been responsible for hampering Canadian trade in the past. He has met with much success in Ottawa and Montreal in the formation of the new company.

It is probable that the capital stock will be $1,500,000 or $2,000,000. It is expected that business will increase when shippers throughout Cuba, the West Indies, and the Dominion realize the possibilities of the trade, that the business of the company will be encouraging.

THE SALMON PACK.

Preparations on Pacific Coast for Crop Like Last Year.

Vancouver, June 29.—Preparations have been made for a salmon pack in British Columbia waters this season of about the same size as in 1910, that is, between 700,000 and 800,000 cases.

Cannery men are slow to give out figures, thinking it will influence the market, but they are easily obtainable south of the border. In Seattle they have the figures relating to British Columbia. The total pack on the coast, including Alaska, is estimated at 4,000,000 cases. The Fraser river pack is placed at 60,000 cases. The sockeye season on the Fraser opened on June 20th and will continue until August 25, when the close season commences. Fish are few as yet, the backward spring no doubt having an effect.

HEAVY SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Montreal, June 29.—On behalf of John Layton and Company, of London, England, an action for $50,000 damages has been entered against the corporation of the city of Montreal. The case arises out of the seizure of a consignment of Russian eggs which created such a furore last winter. Judgment went against the city, but an appeal has been entered and so it is expected this action will not be heard for some time, as it would hardly be fought out until the original matter has been finally disposed of.

AN OLD GROCER DEAD.

Fredericton, N.B., June 29.—One of the best known residents and the oldest grocer of this city passed away last week in the person of James Hodge, who first entered the grocery business with A. F. Randolph about sixty years ago. He was in his 94th year, and had had a long and successful career as a grocer. Until recent years he conducted his own business, but a few years ago his son, George, assumed the management. Mr. Hodge first introduced the low axle wagon in Fredericton, having seen it in use in St. John. He realized the advantages of labor saving in obviating the necessity of lifting heavy barrels of flour, and other articles.

W. C. Palmer has purchased a new auto delivery wagon to be used in connection with his grocery business.

STORE SYSTEM.

The system in the store should be such that every possible chance of the profit being cut down by leaks is eliminated. One thing that attention should be given to is the checking of goods that no more may be paid for than received. First there should be a checking up when goods are received from the transportation company, to see that the correct number of prices are received. There should be another checking up when the goods are opened, in which each line should be counted and compared with the invoice. There are always possibilities of something being short and it is that the merchant should guard against.

When this is done, the invoice should be thoroughly examined to see that all extensions and additions are correct. Every amount found in this manner is so much gained and while you may seldom find any mistakes, nevertheless you are then sure that you are not losing anything in that manner.

GETTING NEW BUSINESS.

It is commendable in a grocer that he should at all times be on the lookout for new business but in this effort he should not neglect his old and regular customers. Many a man in his mad rush to secure new trade forgets to give the proper attention to his old patrons and will for this reason lose more than he gains. A merchant sees his competitors with good custmers which he would like to win and in his attempt to do so, he neglects his present customers so that their purchases drop off and eventually he loses them. It would be best that he attempt to keep the purchases of regular customers up to as high a point as possible, meanwhile gathering in as many new ones as he can.

TESTING EGGS.

A retail grocer gives the following method of testing a fresh egg: "If an egg is fresh when placed in a glass of water it will remain resting on the bottom of the vessel; if not quite fresh it will rest with the big end raised higher than the small end, and the higher the big end is raised, the older is the egg. As the egg gets older the water contained in the white of an egg evaporates and this causes the empty space at the thick end of every egg to become enlarged. The larger the empty space the more the egg rises in the water, till in course of time it floats."

NOTES ON FRUIT.

Reports from Denia on the Valencia raisin outlook are favorable, and last year's crop is likely to be exceeded by from 5,000 to 6,000 tons, according to present estimates. First shipments may be expected in August, and with an ample yield, moderate prices for sound quality are looked for.

The crop of Brazil nuts, it is believed, will exceed previous estimates, as the low prices for rubber offer an inducement to the natives to turn toward nuts, as the latter are bringing high prices.

The Greek government will likely place the retention out of the coming crop of currants at 35 per cent. of the total expected, 160,000 tons.

Persian reports say the new crop of dates is progressing favorably. Spots are pretty well cleaned up.

The new walnut crop in France promises to be normal, but Tarragona almonds are firmer as the result of meagre supplies, and higher prices are expected.

PATIENCE THE VIRTUE.

A little girl entered the grocery with a lard tin.

"What for you, dear ?" the grocer asked.

"Pleathe, thir, a pound of lard," lisped the girl.

"Certainly dear." Then he weighed the tin. It was a work of difficulty, for it was cumbrous of shape and awkward to weigh. The grocer's temper was tried, but he smiled and succeeded.

"Now," he said "there is a good pound, where's the money ?"

"Pleathe, sir, it's in the tin."

Butter Plentiful and of Good Quality

Production of Butter Exceeds that of Last Year—The Quality is Good—Prices are Steady—Live Hogs are Easier—Provisions are Steady—Cooked and Smoked Meats in Demand—Eggs Show Big Shrinkage.

Live hogs are slightly easier this week, but prices are steady.

The Old Country bacon market has continued firm as has also the Western States live hog markets, although supplies were quite heavy. A steady export demand for pork products and a fairly satisfactory home trade, with smoked and cooked meats among the favorites, is the report of wholesale dealers.

There has been an enormous shrinkage in eggs for some time back and complaints are being made by many wholesale produce men. Rots form a large percentage of many shipments, resulting from the endeavor of the hen to store her product in secret places, and of the none too scrupulous farmers who bring them to market and the dealer who passes them along. It is suggested that the country merchant be more strict about the quality of the eggs which he accepts. If candling of all arrivals was resorted to by the merchants, it would throw the loss upon the person who should bear it namely, the farmer.

Butter is plentiful in supply and steady in price. The make continues large, exceeding that of last year, with the quality quite up to the standard of June butter. A quantity of this month's butter found its way into cold storage.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Trade in hams and bacon is active and as supplies are not as plentiful as they might be the market shows something of a firmness in consequence. Demand for live and dressed hogs is good with the supply only moderate.

Butter.—There is nothing of a feature this week in regard to butter. The demand is good, and supplies are also satisfactory. The make of butter is apparently greater than last year. Provisions.—Steadiness prevails in the provision market this week with a fairly satisfactory amount of trade being transacted. Smoked and cooked meats prove leaders at the present time and a reduction of stocks of breakfast bacon has made it a little firmer. It is suggested that country merchants candle all stocks of eggs which they receive in order that a percentage of this loss may be eliminated.

HOG SLUMP EXPECTED

Live hogs on Canadian markets have declined slightly from the position reached during the past two weeks. Last week, the opinion was commonly held that the market had been a little overdone so that the slight backward movement was not unexpected. When the English bacon market, which exercises a big influence upon Canadian prices, began to firm up about a month ago, there was a keen demand for live hogs by packers, who wished to get their product to the Old Country markets before any decline could take place. This is most necessary because the English market desires their bacon cut in a certain manner that would not be salable here, so that it would have to be sent there when cut even at a loss.

At the present time, the English market maintains its steadiness, and the same keen demand continues from packers, and even at the decline prices are steady. While the opinion has been expressed by several dealers that prices are somewhat higher than conditions really warrant, still if packers continue in the same keen request for hogs, the market may be pretty well maintained.

Practical Methods in Retail Stores

Dealer Believes that Supplying Pay Envelopes to Nearby Factories Has Been the Means of Increasing His Sales—Saskatoon Merchant Has Definite Ideas on Selling of Cheese—Manitoba Man Pleased with Book-keeping Machine.

Pay Envelopes to Factories.

Toronto, June 29.—A local dealer has a new method of advertising that has been, he says, of excellent help in increasing sales. He has made arrangements whereby he supplies pay envelopes to several of the factories in the neighborhood of his store. The one side of the envelope is printed according to the wishes of the firm in question while on the other he has an advertisement of his own, not too large, but in a snappy manner pointing out the advantages which his store affords customers. In this way his ad. is each week introduced into hundreds of homes and no doubt does considerable advertising for him.

Increased Cheese Sales.

Saskatoon, Sask., June 29.—Some merchants make no effort to sell cheese other than to place it in the cheese case. Sometimes a merchant will add a price card, but seldom does he take the trouble to display it in any better manner or increase it's sale by pointing out it's food value.

A local dealer makes a feature of cheese and has many ways of showing it. Recently he took a twin cheese weighing about forty pounds and cut it into about fifteen pieces on the morning of his busiest day. He stood each of these parts on the large end, with the points up, using a big placard to point out that it was a special cheese sale. Another placard pointed out the food value of the article and as a result cheese sales boomed. He did not find it necessary to cut the price, but merely to make the cheese department attractive.

For Bookkeeping Machine.

Steinback, Man., June 29—K. Reimer, Sons, merchants of this town, are highly pleased with the results of their bookkeeping machine. They installed an eight-hundred account machine over a year ago, and after a good trial are firmly convinced of its value. In speaking of it they said: "We gave the machine a good trial and found it of such benefit that we think that the machine pays for itself in twelve months, because it saves a lot of time, labor and trouble and is a good silent collector, because the customer gets his account to date with every bill of goods he buys, so that we can highly recommend the machine. We would not go back to our old system, while we are doing business, and have good reasons for it."

The Cheese Cutter.

Winnipeg, June 29—A local grocer expresses himself as well pleased with the principle of the cheese cutter, which he has been using in his store for some time and which he believes is a valuable asset to the merchant who uses it right. He says: "If a customer comes in and asks for a pound of cheese, she generally wants a pound and if the amount you cut off borders on two pounds, it is not at all liable to please her, or if you again cut this piece so as to give her the exact amount, there is a little piece left that is liable to amount to a loss before it is sold. But with the cheese cutter, it is different. You set the cutter at the exact amount asked for and that is the amount cut off. Besides cheese especially when hard is liable to break when being cut with an ordinary knife, but even the firmest is cut epenly and without loss by the cheese cutter.

Galt merchants will hold their picnic this year to Grimsby Beach. The date is set for August 3rd.

E. E. Brush, who recently sold his store at Kingsville has purchased a general store at Gesto, Ont.

"See This, Aunt Em'ly."

"Don't that look good? Jell-O for you. Made it all by myself."

The main reason why Jell-O moves from the store shelves so smoothly and briskly is the housewife's appreciation of the easy Jell-O way of making desserts.

A child can make up

JELL-O

desserts, and one can be made in a minute.

"Nothing like Jell-O for dessert" is the dinner watchword in several million American homes.

Canada Exports Flour to South Africa

Quite Heavy Shipments Recently—Prices Are Unchanged—Trade Fair for the Season—Wheat Continues to Fluctuate—Much Depends on Weather During Next Few Weeks—What Civilization is Doing to Japan.

Flour is unchanged and without any special features. Trade on the whole is reported fair for the season, both city and country being fairly steady but of a hand-to-mouth character. Montreal reports that considerable export trade has been done with South Africa but demand from other foreign countries is not heavy.

The wheat market continues to vary but not to the extent it did at the first of the year. Prices slumped on Saturday last, as a result of a break in the hot spell in certain parts of the United States, but recovered somewhat at the beginning of the week, the chief cause being the prediction that the government report next month would be sensational. "It is purely a weather market," declared one dealer, "and wheat prices will go up and down accordingly."

Crop prospects up to the present continue quite favorable.

In reference to the shipments of Canadian flour of late to Japan, the Japanese consul at Vancouver points out that the commercial relations between his country and this have just begun. Japan with its population of over fifty millions is rapidly changing from a rice-fed to a bread-fed nation. The possible production of wheat in that country is limited and Japan must necessarily be a large importer of wheat and flour. Up to now she has bought mostly the United States product and last year about four million dollars' worth of wheat was imported from that country. The Japanese are awaking to the fact that the Canadian flour is of a better quality and the consul predicts that a flour trade will be established between Canada and Japan.

A report from Ottawa, Ont., has it that the Department of Fisheries is instituting an inquiry into the rumor that fish in hundreds of thousands are dying, or floating dead upon the surface of the water in Quebec. The situation is said to be particularly acute in the Eastern Townships, and the Gatineau district is also given prominence. It is claimed that experts from the department will visit the affected districts and analyse the water in an attempt to clear up the apparent phenomenal state of affairs.

To Save Money from Packing Waste Paper

How Association in Michigan Experimented With a Baling Outfit and Were Astonished at the Results—The Method Used—Scheme Could be Adopted by Individual Dealers in Canada With Good Monetary Benefits.

In one of the small cities of the State of Michigan where happily the merchants seem to be inclined to work together, there was started some time ago a scheme of co-operative delivery. In connection with that there was also inaugurated a policy by which all waste paper from the establishments of the members was to be baled at headquarters and the proceeds used to swell the profits of the delivery proposition.

A baling press was put in at the headquarters of the delivery system and all the waste paper of the members, packed in boxes and barrels, was collected and set down there. Figuring on the profits from this after the first month or so the officers were astonished to find that one hundred and twenty-six dollars had been paid in by the men who had purchased this waste paper from them. That fact also occasioned astonishment among the members of the organization throughout that city. That such a common nuisance as waste paper could be made to pay dividends so easily came as a complete surprise.

When the proposal was first mooted in that town as a possible money saver the most sanguine of its advocates did not imagine the totals would run up into any such sum as that. Now they pay considerable attention to that department with the result that the profits are said to be considerably larger, although the figures are not obtainable at the present time.

As Applied to Canada.

This is a method by which merchants in many cities and town, and villages for that matter, in Canada, could save considerable money each year. Where there is a co-operative or central delivery system the lines adopted by the Michigan Association as outlined above might be followed. Where the individual delivery is in order, however, and the merchants stand alone, there would necessarily have to be an individual baling press for each dealer. He could have one of the clerks collect every day all the waste paper taken from his packing cases and all the other odds and ends that go to litter the establishment and have them put into this small press and so securely packed away at the close of every day's business. There would be little or no difficulty in finding a purchaser who would take it off his hands. The monetary returns might pay for his light or heat, or help to make up his rent in a month's time.

To Work Big Saving.

The average dealer in a fair way of business may argue that the waste paper in his establishment would not be sufficient to make his buying a baling press worth while. There were members of the association in Michigan who thought precisely the same thing, and who were astounded at the totals collected from their establishment in a month's time. For the grocer who does not buy in case lots and whose consignments arrive generally packed in paper, such a scheme should mean considerable saving in a year's time. Besides, all waste paper would be accounted for and the danger of fire would be at least considerably lessened.

There are many dealers in Great Britain who would consider a merchant extravagant who did not take advantage of all possible methods by which he could save money and accordingly reduce his operating expenses. They pack paper considerably in the Old Land, and although it has not been much used in Canada as a money maker and accordingly a money saver, it is probable that many Canadian dealers will adopt the paper press just as soon as its profits are more generally recognized.

The grocers from Port Huron, Mich., who are billed to vist London, Ont., during August will be numerous enough to fill two trains, according to report. London dealers are arranging to show the visitors a good time.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

Hopes Held Out for Good Year on Labrador Coast.

St. John's, Newfoundland, June 29.—The SS. Beothic brings the report that the winter was a good one for furriers, five hundred furs alone were taken in Groas Water Bay, about ten per cent. of them "Silver hairs." Some made as high as $2,000 for the winter, and others from $400 to $1,500. The value will be far in excess of recent years.

Sealing Catch.—Was fairly successful, good work being done early in the winter, particularly the southern part of the coast. At Battle Harbor, the total catch was considerably more than in 1910.

Trap Fishing.—Rarely commences before July, but the people rush off early in the spring to secure the choicest berths.

We have had two lean years with Labrador fishery, and it is hoped that this year there will be something like an average voyage. Reports from the different settlements give a fairly good account of the opening of the fishery, and the indications at present point to a fairly successful season.

Salmon.—No new pack yet in the market. Old stocks all exhausted and the demand for the new will be brisk. Price will probably be between $5.50 and $6.00. At present the local market is well supplied with fresh salmon, which is sold by retailers at 15 cents per pound.

Lost Customer Had Hoped to Win by Display

Last week a lady while attempting to enter a store in a western town, the entrance of which was partially blocked with a piled up display of goods, caught her dress, a new one, on a nail and the rip which followed filled her with dismay. She did not enter the store as intended but went to another down the street and gave her order.

"I'll never go in to that store again," she was heard to say to a friend. "They always have the door blocked with goods so that you hardly can get in. I might have known better than to visit that store with a good dress. Why even in the store you can hardly move around."

This illustrates the folly of which many dealers are guilty in crowding the front door so that customers can scarcely force an entrance. Many grocers have a habit of piling goods up in this manner as if to make it impossible for the customer to enter without seeing them. The real result is that the customers are so busily occupied in picking a way around the goods, they never notice the stuff at all.

Besides, the danger to clothes, and the trouble it gives customers in entering such an entrance nearly completely filled is forbidding. The attempt to display goods is to be recommended but this is one case in which the drawbacks are greater than the benefits. See that the entrance to your store is such that customers may easily make their way in and out.

Dominion Day Stimulates Fruit Trade

Heavier Purchases to Supply the Holiday Demand—California Fruits are Going Out—Strawberry Season was a Fleeting One —Lemons are Easier on Some Markets—Tomatoes are Scarcer and are Higher in Price.

Briskness prevails in the fruit markets this week, Dominion Day being held accountable for the added impetus given to business. In order to supply the holiday appetite of the consumer, retailers are ordering quite freely such lines as California peaches, apricots and plums. Watermelons are going out, while such vegetables as peas, beans, carrots cucumbers and tomatoes are in fairly steady demand.

While some markets are ruling fairly steady on lemons, others exhibit a weaker tendency, large arrivals having afforded some relief to those particular centres. The weather has not been so favorable as was expected, especially when compared with this time last year when an extra warm spell affected an enormous consumption of this line.

The strawberry season has been somewhat quicker in drawing to a close than at first expected. The first portion of the season was good, but the latter now seems less promising, while prices are now ruling higher than earlier in the month. Complaints have been made of damage by drought. The season was fleeting and the amount preserved will be small compared with other years.

Tomatoes are scarces and higher, and on some markets holdings are rather small. Supplies are now coming from Mississippi and Texas, with the crop drawing to a close, while Tennessee is starting to ship, and New Jersey will be getting into line later. It will probably be a month before the Canadian article begins to come forward in any quantities.

Old potatoes are firm on all markets, while at Toronto prices have taken a sharp advance of from 25 to 50 cents per bag, while supplies generally appear to be rather limited even for the season of the year.

While imported new potatoes are slightly easier, they are still high in price, as there is a big demand from all parts of the country, with only Virginia to supply it, shipments from Florida having stopped. The west will also be clamoring for supplies, too, as soon as they become sufficiently matured to stand shipment, so that it appears as if there will be no very cheap new potatoes for some little time.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits—The fruit season is now well under way. Strawberries have come and are now practically gone, after a short season. They were more or less of a disappointment in some respects and were not received in anything like regular order, at least there would be quite a difference in the price quoted from day to day. They flashed across the fruit sky without creating a great deal of excitement. It might be safe to say that only a small quantity were preserved in comparison with former years. Canadian cherries are offered this week at a fair opening price. Californias are going well. Apples are practically gone. Those who still quote Spies are asking a fancy price. Lemons have arrived a little more freely and are easier in price. The return of warm weather has been helping considerably. Bananas are in good demand. The fruit men are busy and with raspberries soon to be announced, the berry season should be brisk. California cantaloupes are among the late arrivals.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits—Trade in fruits is quite satisfactory this week, Dominion Day having given impetus to the demand. Pines are in rather light supply on this market, but their sale has been helped by the higher price of strawberries. Lemons are steady, but unchanged, with a fair demand and supplies none too large. Tomatoes are somewhat firmer. Navel oranges are about cleaned up, late Valencias now being the sellers. Weather conditions affected Canadian strawberries, bringing a higher range than expected. On many under short supply caused by the rain, sales were made at 14c, but the general range this week is from 8c to 12 cents. California cherries, peaches and apricots are lower, while the same is true of Canadian cherries, which rule from 75c to 85c.

Vegetables—Potato prices have again advanced and this week the lowest quotations are $1.50 per bag, while the majority are above that figure, with many as high as $1.75. Spot stocks are small, while dealers contend that supplies in the country are at a small figure. "Potatoes seem to be getting into the luxury class," remarked one dealer, "but I believe conditions warrant the price that is being asked. Scarcity of old

Two Fish Days in the Week Help Trade

Better Enquiry Farm Retailers—Lively Demand Expected—Fairly Satisfactory Summer Trade—Nova Scotia Lobster Season About Done—Large Exports to Boston and Portland During Season—No Change Noted in the Newfoundland Situation.

Two fish days this week resulted in a better enquiry on the part of retailers who anticipated a lively demand. Supplies are adequate. Brook trout are not quoted this week, but the regular demand is well looked after.

Nova Scotia reports the lobster season about done on that coast. The export trade to Boston and Portland was a record one, more lobsters being sent from the province during the spring than ever before in any one year. The receipts of mackerel have fallen off lately on the Nova Scotian coast. Smoked haddock are in good demand, principally from points in Upper Canada.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—With Friday and Saturday fast days, this week should find the demand for fish heavier than usual. The ordinary weekly trade during mid-summer is not as heavy as it might be and with mid-season conditions now existing that influence is being felt. Trade has been fairly good. and the demand should be continued to a certain extent. Brook trout are finished. Gaspe salmon are in fair supply with the price firm. Lake trout, halibut, whitefish and several other lines are favorites.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—Prices in the fish market for the past week remained unchanged, with the exception of salmon, which dropped off a little. Fish dealers say that salmon this year are of a better quality, seemingly, than for some seasons past.

A. H. Brittain, of Montreal, manager of the Maritime Fish Corporation, who was in the city this week, said that the business in fish had been encouraging of late, and that his company expected to be shipping to Vancouver before long. He said that the Maritime Provinces have great possibilities as centres for the fish industry, and the importance of the market in western Canada for the Atlantic fish would be fully realized by the people of New Brunswick in a little while.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—There are no particular features to mention. A fairly satisfactory and steady summer trade is being done, with fresh fish most prominent, but other lines receiving their share of attention also.

Be Careful How You Buy Your Refrigerator

Don't get an "Ice Box."

The damp, musty, stagnant air "Ice Box" is a breeding place for germs and disease, and the average refrigerator is merely an elaborate Ice Box.

Proper ventilation and perfect circulation of cold, dry air is only properly obtained in the "Eureka" Refrigerator, which has an exclusive and patented system of air circulation, and this guarantees an absolutely dry refrigerator.

We have been twenty-five years exclusively manufacturing refrigerators, and our present models have all our knowledge and experience worked into them.

In the matter of sanitation in materials used, in design and finish, in price, there is no refrigerator on the market can compare with the "EUREKA."

plenty on the market, but the demand was light. Salmon are not as plentiful this season as last, and the price is considered high. The lobster season is about over on this coast. The receipts of lobsters were small and some days the market was bare. The receipts of mackerel locally were also light, the shore boats in this vicinity getting few fish. Further down the coast the fishing was better. Smoked haddock are in good demand, principally from points in Upper Canada. There is not much doing in the salt fish trade. There has been no change in the price of salt cod. Salt mackerel are easier on the Boston and Gloucester markets, selling at $13 per barrel.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia - Soaps

Interesting Facts in Connection With a Product That Has Been Manufactured Since the Beginning of Christian Era—The Ingredients and Their Blending—The Peculiarities of Lines of Castile Soaps.

Soaps are chemical compounds of one or more of the oil acids, more especially with the metallic alkalies of either potassa or soda. The varieties nowadays are exceedingly numerous and the raw materials employed extremely various, including nearly all kinds of fats and oils, vegetable as well as animal. The chief household and laundry soaps are now made from oils mixed with certain proportions of tallow and resin. Cocoanut, palm-kernel, cottonseed, palm and other oils are employed in immense quantities. These oil soaps have generally a darker but more transparent appearance than the old-fashioned sorts made from tallow alone. Soaps made from vegetable oils are much more soluble than those made of animal fats and do not leave behind them such a disagreeable smell.

Modern soaps really hold more water and are apt to turn still darker on exposure to the air, but they lather freely and do not shrink much. Pure soap should consist of a fat, or animal or vegetable oil, with either pure caustic potash or soda.

Cocoanut Oil Soap.

The property of appearing dry and hard along with a heavy percentage of water, is a peculiarity of cocoanut oil soaps, which communicates the same property to tallow and palm oil soaps. The great difference between hard soap and soft soap is that in hard soap, soda is employed, whereas in soft soap, potash is used instead. The real art of soap making consists principally in knowing how to determine from the appearance of the paste and other circumstances what kind of ingredient to use during each step of the operation.

Toilet soap is or should be essentially a variety of soap made from choice selected kinds of fatty matters judiciously combined with alkalies in such fashion that the product contains practically no excess of alkali. In other words it differs from ordinary laundry soap chiefly in the quality of the materials used in its manufacture and the care and skill employed in so conducting the operation and proportioning the ingredients to one another as to obtain as a final result, a material in which the alkali used is transformed into true soap, leaving none uncombined with the fatty matters employed. However there there are a number of toilet soaps on the market in which cheap materials are used and which are not properly combined

The Castile Soap.

Castile soaps, also known as olive oil soaps and formerly called Castle or Spanish soap are either white, mottled or powdered. It is made from soap stock, a substance obtained from olives. The residue of the olives and kernels after the ordinary oil has been expressed is chemically treated with sulphuric acid, yielding this substance. Castile soap is generally hard. Although poppy cotton or other seed oil is sometimes added so as to make the product softer.

The dealer is familiar with many varieties of soap, such as almond, buttermilk, cinnamon, coal tar, glycerine, honey, sulphur, etc., mostly toilet soaps and which contain besides the ordinary materials a certain percentage of the article denoted by the name.

Soap has been in use for at least 3,000 years, and is twice mentioned in the Bible. Not many years ago a soap boiler's shop was discovered in Pompeii having been buried beneath the terrible rain of ashes that fell upon that city in 79 A.D.

THREW RICE OVERBOARD.

Three Hundred Bags Meet a Watery Grave in West Indies.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 29.—Condemned by the city sanitary department, 301 bags of rice, which reached this city on the coolie ship, Indus, were taken out to the deep waters in the middle of the harbor on the sloop Scotia and dumped overboard last week.

This rice was part of a consignment of 6,050 bags and was stored at a bonded warehouse. The sanitary inspector, making his rounds came across the shipment, and promptly seized the supply as partly bad.

The health officer followed the sanitary inspector and condemned the product to the extent of 301 bags. This is claimed to be one of the biggest seizures that have taken place here for a long time.

GILLETT'S NEW PLANT.

Toronto, June 29.—It has been known for some little time among the trade that the plant owned and operated by E. W. Gillett Co., facing on King, Duncan and Pearl Streets, which they moved into seven years ago, does not now meet with their requirements for the production of their goods. This property was sold a few days ago to the W. R. Brock concern who will utilize it for factory purposes. The Gillett Co. are now dealing with plans for their new plant which will consist of five or six buildings, and will be erected on some railway, likely in either Toronto or Hamilton.

ST. CATHARINES, - ONTARIO

The Canadian Grocer in the last month made a net circulation gain of 134: : :

Do you realize what that means?

One hundred and thirty-four more good merchants reading this paper in June than in May.

To be conservative in the extreme, let us estimate the average annual purchases of these merchants at $10,000.

In only an odd case would the figure be so low as that, and in many instances it would run as high as $25,000 to $30,000.

One hundred and thirty-four new readers buying annually $10,000 worth of goods means an increased annual buying power behind this paper of $1,340,000 every month.

And that is equivalent to $16,080,000 per year.

Increase, remember!

Now these merchants do not subscribe to The Grocer for any other reason than that it helps them in their business—helps them to make more money.

That insures for our advertisers a quality of interest they can secure in no other way.

Just think over the fact that an advertiser in this paper influences an annual buying power of fully $200,000,000, and that he can do it through a full-page space every week for about the same price paid an ordinary clerk in his office.
